SENATOR REPORTS

Lawmakers Talk Of Cent Tax Hike To End Problems

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A state senator said Saturday there is some talk among lawmakers of a one-cent boost in Louisiana's two-cent sales tax "to solve all our problems" in the special legislature.

But a floor leader for Gov. John McKeithen said, "we are not going to go along with that."

Sen. Edwin W. Edwards, Crowley, said lawmakers felt a one-cent boost would be better than what he called a "stopgap" expansion of the sales tax, which would be counted on political records as voting for new taxes and would require a two-thirds majority for passage.

SESSION TO MEET

A special session of the 144-man Legislature is scheduled to begin Nov. 16. Gov. McKeithen has said his call will go out to lawmakers no later than next Tuesday.

The main task is to vote in a new pay scale for teachers, and other school employes, and to put up money for half the scale now and raise the pay of some civil service workers.

Gov. McKeithen said he will ask the legislature to vote an additional $30 million in operating funds to cover these financial needs, and to authorize $35 million more in construction bonds for colleges and institutions.

The governor said the new revenues would come from tightening up on the present sales tax, bringing under it items now exempted, and generally making the job of the revenue collector easier.

Another item expected to be in retail prices over wholesale prices.

But three north Louisiana lawmakers want to cut the markup to 10 per cent and tack on a tax of at least five per cent with revenues dedicated to teacher pay.

Sen. Jamar Adcock, Monroe, chairman of the Legislative Budget Committee and top McKeithen floor leader in the Senate, was asked about one-cent boost in the sales tax which Edwards said was being talked.

He said the administration would not go along with it, adding, "I know the governor would favor that."

Sen. J. D. DeBlieux, Baton Rouge, said a one-cent sales tax boost "might solve some problems, but I'm opposed to any kind of general sales tax . . . I will not support a general sales tax raise."

He said the sales tax "is the most inquitable of all taxes, because the burden falls hardest on people with little income."

DeBlieux said he may support some other tax if it is needed and is fair.

Saigon Ruler To Use Arms Against Riots

Directs Warning At Factions Who Threaten Unrest

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Backed by the army, Premier Tran Van Huong warned Saturday his new regime will use force if necessary to halt demonstrations expected this week end.

His ban on street demonstrations was aimed at Roman Catholic, Buddhist and student factions, who oppose the make-up of the civilian government that replaced Maj.Gen. Nguyen Khanh's military regime.

HAS KHANH BACKING

Khanh issued a statement supporting the 61-year-old Huong. Now chief of the armed forces, Khanh declared:

"Only working in union can we defeat the danger of Communist dictatorship and the colonialists and foreigners who oppress our people and hinder us from becoming prosperous people."

The 15-member High National Council that appointed Huong in setting up the civilian government showed some uneasiness over the situation despite Khanh's firm support of Huong.

The council announced it was calling in Huong and his cabinet for consultations. A brief communique said that "since people were wondering about the cabinet," the council would discuss the matter with the premier.

Reds Celebrate Bolshevism With Giant Military Display

Red Parades Unlikely Spot To Gain Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is of the opinion that a public parade, like that in Moscow Saturday, is an unlikely place to discover high secrets about new weaponry.

Officials said the Defense Department had no immediate comment on the Bolshevik anniversary parade, adding that reports and other information from the scene would have to be analyzed before any conclusions were reached.

'NOTHING NEW'

But a spokesman commented that "in the past, there normally has been nothing new or surprising in such parades."

Observations by trained military attaches and others, together with photographs from several sources, including those from attaches, from press sources and even from official Soviet sources, help provide some technical details.

But in the numerous Moscow displays the U.S. military experts have not seen, and say they do not expect to see, any dramatically new weapon design. The word of such design presumably filters out through other channels long before the Soviets put them on public display.

Thus, the periodic parades are viewed here as essentially propaganda to assure the local citizenry and Communist allies.

In Saturday's parade, the Russians included five types of rockets, among them one described as the biggest ever shown publicly by the Soviet Union. A Russian commentator described it as a "'younger sister" of the booster used by Russia in launching its three-man space ship last month.

Press dispatches put its size at 85 feet long, with a diameter of about 10 to 12 feet. These reports said indications were the rocket was liquid-fueled.

Its described dimensions are in the range of those of a U.S. Titan I ICBM, which has a total length of 98 feet and a 10-foot diameter at the base.

Sub Missile, New Rockets In Spotlight

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union paraded a new monster nuclear missile through Red Square Saturday in an unprecedented display of Soviet military might before world Communist leaders. With it were five other new rockets, including a submarine missile that the Russians claimed can be launched under water.

Premier Chou En-lai of Red China and leaders of 11 other Communist nations joined the new Kremlin leadership atop Lenin's tomb to see the display of military muscle and to hear Defense Minister Rodion Y. Malinovsky accuse the United States of military adventures that he said threaten world peace.

BIGGEST YET

Observers compared the biggest rocket to the U.S. Atlas missile. The Russian missile is about 85-feet long and 10 to 12 feet in diameter, biggest ever displayed in an annual Bolshevik Revolution Day parade. Its range is reported to be about 5,000 miles.

A television commentator described the two-stage rocket as the "younger sister" of the rocket that fired three men into orbit last month. Tass, the official news agency, said the rocket is "distinguished for great accuracy even when fired at relatively small targets."

These were the smaller rockets in the show, commemorating the 47th anniversary of the revolution:

— A new missile similar in appearance to the intermediate range missiles withdrawn from Cuba in 1962. However, the new one looked longer, about 75 feet.

— A navy missile which Tass said could be fired under water like the U.S. Polaris submarine missile.

— A cigar shaped antimissile missile, about 65 feet long and 8 feet in diameter. It appeared to be riding backward in a protective tube. Through the open front end one could see four engine exhausts.

— A new field artillery rocket. This appeared as four rows of 10 rockets each mounted on a truck. Observers expressed belief they had a range of about 8,000 yards but were not large enough to carry nuclear warheads.

— A new antiaircraft missile which the Russians claim is their most accurate yet produced. To observers, it did not appear large enough to attack a missile or to carry a nuclear warhead.

The military parade and pageantry went on in a light snow and 26-degree temperatures.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, party secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, and other Kremlin officials were bundled against the weather as they stood overlooking the parade.

There was some speculation that the parade was organized under the regime of Nikita Khrushchev and was, for the most part, kept as planned.

It seemed too well-organized and planned to be a decision of the Kosygin-Brezhnev leadership, which took power only Oct. 15. Informed sources said it was likely the decision to put the new missiles into the parade was Khrushchev's.

LBJ Regime To Try Again On Medicare

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is drafting a new health care bill, confident that big Democratic gains in the House will provide the needed political power to pass it in 1965.

Liberals have been trying for 15 years to pass so-called "medicare" legislation, providing health insurance for the aged under Social Security. They have been backed strongly by organized labor and senior citizen groups.

A medicare bill was approved by the Senate last year but died during the final hours of the session. The American Medical Association and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce opposed it.

Medicare backers were jubilant about Tuesday's House elections, which gave the Democratic majority an indicated net gain of 38 seats.

The National Council of Senior Citizens interpreted the Johnson landslide as a "magnificient mandate" for medicare.

It said the health care plan was a clear-cut campaign issue because Republican presidential nominee Barry M. Goldwater had voted against it in the Senate.

Medicare supporters claimed the influx of House liberals added 44 "new pro-medicare seats," giving the bill an estimated majority of between 55 and 60 in the next Congress.

The election was not expected to change the political complexion of the House Ways & Means Committee, which has been the main obstacle to past medicare bills. Nor did it remove the committee's powerful chairman, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills D-Ark., who has led the attack.

Three conservative Republicans on the committee were defeated, but they probably will be replaced by members of similar persuasion next year.

Not Giving Up

Twin City and area residents, particularly those in Monroe around Fourth and Louisville, are urged to keep their eyes open and help a 13-year-old boy who refuses to give up a search for his dog, even though he's looked in vain for over a month.

Mrs. J. H. Posey wrote to tell us of her son's plight. The family only recently arrived in Monroe, where they live at 402 Bres, and the dog was a going-away gift from friends in Texas.

He's brownish and white, about eight months old, part German Shepherd and part Collie, with a red collar. The Poseys have tried everything, taken out ads, posted notices and walked themselves weary, but the youngster won't quit. Each day a different area is searched to no avail.

Arabs Suffer New Trouble In Zanzibar

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Hundreds have been arrested in a new campaign of repression by the government of Zanzibar, diplomatic sources here reported Saturday.

Arabs again appear the principal victims of the latest crackdown, with former members of the old Sultan's ruling Zanzibar National Party being rounded up in droves.

The fear, real or imaginary, of an impending counter-coup appears to be behind the wave of arrests.

One report reaching here quoted Zanzibar leaders as claiming they had discovered a plot to overthrow the revolutionary regime of President Abeid Karume.

"Everyone on the island is jumpy," said a traveler returning from Zanzibar this weekend. "People don't speak to each other without a nervous glance over their shoulder to make sure no one is evesdropping."

Two western journalists who went to Zanzibar this week were turned back at the airport by immigration authorities.

The few non-Communists who are permitted to land on the island are restricted in their movements. The estimated numbers of those arrested in the latest sweep vary from 250 to 450.

Zanzibar, the "Clove Island" 251 miles off the African mainland, is now linked with Tanganyika in the United Republic of Tanzania.

BY CONGO REBELS

Americans Held As War Captives

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The leader of a Communist backed rebel regime in the eastern Congo has declared 60 Americans and nearly 800 Belgians trapped by his rule are considered prisoners of war.

Rebel Christophe Gbenye, self proclaimed president of the "Congolese Peoples Republic," said he is willing to negotiate the release of his captives.

The Americans are Protestant missionaries and their families, teachers and five members of the U.S. consulate staff in Stanleyville, the rebel capital.

Gbenye made his announcement in a broadcast Thursday, the same day a group of 200 white mercenaries led Congolese regular army troops to capture the main rebel center of Kindu, 250 miles south of Stanleyville.

The day before the fall of Kindu to the Congolese regulars, an attack by U.S.-supplied planes sent rebels fleeing. Apparently it was this that prompted Gbenye to act against the Americans and Belgians.

He said the decision to declare them prisoners of war was due to the "bombing carried out by foreigners in areas liberated by the Popular Liberation (rebel) Army."

Some in Leopoldville interpreted the broadcast — the text of which was made available Saturday — as a sign of rebel disintegration. Recently Gbenye issued a call for help from African nations friendly to his cause.

Premier Moise Tshombe called on the rebels Saturday to lay down their arms, arrest their leaders and end the threat to the whites behind rebel lines.

Crew Missing In Air Crash

DOVER, Del. (AP) — A C133 Cargomaster with seven crew members aboard crashed on takeoff from Goose Bay Air Force Base, Labrador, Saturday, Dover Air Force Base reported.

A spokesman at Dover said the crew members "are classified as missing."

He said the plane crashed while on a routine mission for Military Air Transport Service.

U.S. Severing Special Funds For U.N. Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department confirmed Saturday that the United States is holding up its fund pledges for the United Nations technical assistance program until it sees what happens in the big fight shaping up over U.N. dues.

The Soviet Union has refused to pay that portion of U.N. assessments reflecting costs for U.N. peace-keeping operations which the Soviets opposed.

Under article 19 of the U.N. charter, members falling more than two years behind in their dues are supposed to lose their vote in the General Assembly. Under this rule, the Soviets stand to lose their vote in the session beginning next month.

The United States is by far the largest contributor of funds to the world organization.

Immediately involved in the wait-and-see tactic is the expanded U.N. technical assistance fund. A conference of the technical assistance organization has been scheduled for Nov. 16, and the United States had been expected to pledge some $24 million of the total $60 million budget for the international operation in 1965.

In explaining why the United States will not make a money commitment at the Nov. 16 meeting, a State Department statement said:

"The U.N. is now facing some important issues which bear directly on the future development of the organization and its programs. Most crucial, of course, is the problem of maintaining the U.N.'s constitutional and fiscal integrity.

"The United States naturally prefers to make its decisions about next year's programs after these constitutional issues are resolved."

MANY AWARDS BUT

Country Songster Claims Ignorance

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music's No. 1 song writer, Bill Anderson, still insists, "I don't know anything about music," but the awards keep pouring in.

At the Grand Ole Opry's 39th birthday celebration which ended Saturday night, Anderson picked up five more country music "Oscars," the Broadcast Music Inc. awards given for country tunes that hit the top ten and have a 10-week stay among the 15 leading songs.

The top names in country music sang many of Anderson's songs during the three-day Opry wing-wing.

Making the pilgrimage to this country music mecca were Jimmy Dean, Roger Miller, Johnny Cash and Burl Ives. It was only a drive in from the suburbs for Eddy Arnold, Roy Acuff, Marty Robbins, Hank Snow, Ernest Tubb, Faron Young, Chet Atkins and Minnie Pearl.

Anderson had been twanging on a guitar since he was 6, but as late as five years ago he was a journalism student at the University of Georgia.

Anderson's interest in country music led him to a job as a disc jockey in Commerce, Ga., following his freshman year at Georgia. He took his guitar to Commerce and would carry it up to the roof of his hotel so he could play late at night without disturbing his neighbors.

One midnight Anderson got the inspiration for the lyrics to "City Lights." Ray Price recorded it and it zoomed to the top of the charts.

Anderson had two more years in school but when he finished he headed straight for Nashville.

In rapid succession he turned out "Po' Folks," "Mama Sang a Song," "Still," "I Don't Love You Any More," and more than a dozen other big sellers. He has won 21 BMI awards, more than any country music song writer in history.

Anderson logs 100,00 miles a year as an entertainer, which leaves him little time for song writing. He dashes off lyrics on napkins, airline and laundry tickets — whatever is available when an idea hits.

Four local grand prize winners in the recent Monroe Morning World and News-Star sponsored amateur snapshot contest were named recipients of a total of $125 in cash prizes in the 1964 Newspaper National Snapshot Awards.

Receiving a special merit award and $50 was Lee Estes, 4114 Blanks St., Monroe, for an entry in Class D, pets and animals. Twenty-five dollar awards went to William B. Wilson Jr., 2322 Bienville Drive, Monroe, in Class A, babies and children; Earl R. Bain, 313 Medorah Drive, West Monroe, Class B, activities, and Mrs. Frances Grant, Pinecrest Drive, Route 5, Box 70, West Monroe, Class C, scenes and tabletops. All the awards were for photographs in the black and white category.

This is the second year in which winners in the World and News-Star contest won cash prizes in the national competition. Last year local finalists won a total of $150 in the national phase of the contest.

Fair Skies Due In Area Today

Recent rains in the Monroe area failed to bring temperatures down any appreciable degree.

The high Friday was 79, the high Saturday 73, and today's temperatures will reach the 75-80 range.

MILD

A total of .78 of an inch of rain fell over the Twin Cities Friday evening and early Saturday. FAA at Selman Field reported .64 through midnight Friday, and an additional .14 during the early hours of Saturday morning.

Generally fair skies are forecast for today.

Low reading tonight will hover around the mid-50s. The low Saturday was 51.

Surface winds today will be light and variable, 5 to 15 miles per hour.

BIG DAY NEARS

Congressmen Hear Woes Of Inaugural

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Everyone has ambition," the letter to the congressman said. "Yours is to get re-elected. Mine is to sing The Star-Spangled Banner at the inauguration."

The Joint Congressional Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies would like to be helpful. But it does have problems as the swearing in of the President approaches, and the letter writer won't get his wish.

"Now, son," telephoned a gentleman from the South. "I want a hotel room that overlooks the parade route. So I can see what's going on if the weather turns a mite sour."

There are 18,430 seats available for the big doings at high noon on Jan. 20.

"Oh, lordy, that's not enough," said an aide who's coordinating efforts to fit thousands of requests to a thimble of seats.

The big show comes at the Capitol's east front, when the Marine Band plays "Hail to the Chief" and the chief justice of the United States administers the oath of office to Lyndon B. Johnson as 36th president and to his vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey.

It is on this part of the inauguration that the congressional committee has charge, under the chairmanship of Sen. B. Everett Jorden, D-N.C.

While it worries about tickets and the like, carpenters are building the stands at a cost of $148,000. Work started Sept. 28. It is due to be completed around Jan. 1.

If the weather is mild, besides the 18,430 persons who will be seated, some 60,000 others are expected to fan out over the narrow streets and the lawn at that end of the Capitol.

And just how do you get a ticket for a seat to witness the oath-taking?

"Folks will just have to write their congressmen," said the committee aide.

IN CONGRESS

Long, Passman Fireworks Seen

WASHINGTON (Special) — Most of the fireworks in the Louisiana Congressional delegation when Congress reconvenes Jan. 4 are expected to stem from Sen. Russell B. Long and Rep. Otto E. Passman.

Long is locked in a fight with Sen. John O. Pastore (D) R. I. for the job of Senate Democratic whip, which is being vacated by the next Vice - President, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D) Minn.

Passman's name keeps cropping up among Southern representatives whom a group of Northern liberals would like to strip of seniority and other privileges for failure to support the Johnson - Humphrey ticket during the election. Passman has survived earlier purge attempts, however, and is expected to do so again.

Long has made no secret that he would like the whip job, which would make him No. 2 man in the Democratic leadership behind Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D) Mont. He said he thinks he can get it if he goes after it.

What is not known yet is the attitude of President Johnson. Previous chief executives have generally avoided interference in the selection of leaders of their own parties in the Senate. Mr. Johnson, however, has never forgotten his years as majority leader and has remained on close terms with his former Senate colleagues.

Washington observers assume that Long would never have made a public bid for the whip job if Mr. Johnson had given any private indication he had someone lese specifically in mind. Nevertheless, the President still has two months to mull over his views on the issue.

In Long's favor are these factors:

— He is generally popular among other Democratic Senators and is thoroughly familiar with political intricacies of the Senate. He was given credit for doing a good job of managing the Tax - Cut Bill on the floor last winter.

— Except on Civil Rights and Foreign Aid, his voting record has been fairly close to that of the Democratic majority through the years.

— As a Southerner, he might be expected to help smooth over some of the differences between the Northern and Southern factions of the party.

Running against Long is the fact that his leading opponent for the post, Pastore, is also popular and even better as an impromptu debater on the Senate floor. His keynote speech at the Democartic National Convention was only a sample of his oratorical style.

Also weighing against Long is the fact that although he campaigned strenously for the national ticket, Louisiana went overwhelmingly for Barry Goldwater and William Miller in the election.

Long is the No. 2 man on the Senate Finance Committee and the heir apparent to Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D) Va., who is 77. Long feels that becoming chairman of the committee would not hinder his performance of the whip's duties.

The Senator is due to attend the opening of the United Nations General Assembly Dec. 1 and may have an opportunity en route to New York to sound out Mr. Johnson on the whip matter.

Passman's case is more complex. Several weeks before the election a group of House Liberals led by Rep. John Blatnik (D) Minn., announced they would try to strip seniority rights of any Democratic member who supported the Goldwater ticket.

The announcement was mainly aimed at Reps. John Bell Williams (D) Miss., and Albert Watson (D) S. Car., who openly endorsed the GOP contender. Passman announced that he would not actually endorse Goldwater, he said the Arizonan "Would make the nation one of the greatest Presidents we ever had."

A similar "purge" attempt was launched in 1961 against Passman, Rep. William Colmer (D) Miss., and others who refused to support John F. Kennedy. That attempt was squelched by House Speaker Sam Rayburn, but he is no longer around.

Many Washington observers believe, however, that with the Democratic sweep of the presidential vote and the party's gains in the House, the Liberals will take the "forgive and forget" attitude that Rayburn assumed four years ago.

Passman faces more difficulty in retaining his chairmanship of the Foreign Operations Appropriations Subcommittee, a position from which, until this year, he was able annually to cut millions from the Foreign Aid Money Bills. Rep. George Mahon (D) Texas, the new chairman of the Appropriations Committee and a good friend of President Johnson, is reportedly considering plans to shift Passman to another subcommittee.

If Mahon does so, Passman will have one consolation. In the past, after cutting the Foreign Aid Bill, he was obliged to vote for spoiling an otherwise staunchly conservative voting record in the House.

Among other Louisiana Congressmen, Edwin E. Willis of St. Martinsville may face a renewed attempt to abolish the Un - American Activities Committee, which he heads. Willis, however, has made far fewer enemies than did the former chairman, Francis E. Walter (D) Pa.

The main problem of Rep. Speedy O. Long of Alexandria will be to land a good committee assignment. These assignments are made by the Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, of which Rep. Hale Boggs of New Orleans will be the No. 3 man. There are no Louisianans currently serving the Banking and Currency, District of Columbia, Education and Labor, Foreign Affairs, Government Operations, Interior, Commerce, Rules or Vetrans Affairs Committees.

Otherwise, there was little from the election in the relative position of Louisianans in the committee structure. James H. Morrison advances three notches to No. 13 place on the Agriculture Committee and remains No. 2 man on Post Office and Civil Service. F. Edward Hebert of New Orleans will be No. 3 man on Armed Services and fourth on Judiciary T. A. Thompson of Ville Platte is fourth on Merchant Marine and Fisheries and fifth on Public Works. Joe D. Waggonner Jr., of Plain Dealing, entering his fourth year in Congress, remains 13th on Science and Astronautics and 11th on House Administration.

Three Hurt Critically In Area Wreck

Seven persons were injured, three critically and one seriously, when three cars and a truck were involved in a traffic accident Saturday about 4 p.m. on Highway 80 about seven miles east of Monroe.

In critical condition at St. Francis Hospital late Saturday were Kenneth Allen and Patty Allen, boty of Rayville and Patsy Malone, address unavailable. Listed in serious condition as a result of the accident was Mrs. Charlotte Allen, also of Rayville.

Thomas Allen, another passenger in the Allen car, was listed in satisfactory condition.

A spokesman at St. Francis Hospital said the two Allen children and the Malone girl, also a passenger in the Allen, car, suffered multiple injuries. Mrs. Allen reportedly suffered multiple head injuries.

Two Negro women involved in the mishap, Ellen Lewis and Alberta Hamilton were reported to be in satisfactory condition. Hospital officials said the Lewis woman suffered broken ribs, nad the Hamilton woman, five months pregnant, received lacerations of the forehead.

State police said accurate details of the accident were sparse but apprently one car was turning south on the Stubbs-McCormick Road off Highway 80 when hit from the rear by another car, which in turn was hit by another car.

Police said it was not yet apparent how the truck became involved in the crash.

Frederick Black, 32, of Buford, Ga., was listed as the driver of the truck, and a 33-year-old Negro, Oscar W. Hamilton Sr., of Tallulah was listed as driver of one of the cars.

CRUMPLED CLUE

Hit-Run Death Hunt Ends In 20th Year

CELINA, Tenn. (AP) — It was nearly 20 years ago that a car hit Newt Lee as he crossed the road in the Cumberland Mountains to feed his logging horses. The car sped away, leaving the 64-year-old man dead.

Lee's son, Welby, vowed he would not rest until he found his father's slayer.

On Monday, the man arrested after a 100,000-mile, 18-year search —Grover Jones, 55, an Indianapolis grocery handyman — goes on trial, charged with second-degree murder in Lee's death.

Welby Lee, 31 when his father was killed Dec. 31, 1944, began his one-man search when the elder Lee's granddaughter described the car and a man who walked back to look at the victim.

Lee also found a crumpled bumper guard in a ditch near the lumberman's body.

Lee, who lives across the state line at Tompkinsville, Ky., spent 10 years, in his words, "trying to prove the wrong boys did it."

"After 10 years I had to start all over from the beginning," he said. "Every time I came to a dead end I would just boil up inside and want to catch that driver worse than ever."

Jones' name entered Lee's investigation in May, 1945, but Lee said, "I didn't pay too much attention to it because I was zeroed in on two other guys."

Lee turned his attention to Jones in January, 1962, he said, after a relative of Jones told him he had been in the area at the time of his father's death.

"I realized that after 18 years a half-job just wouldn't do," Lee said.

So when he had completed his investigation, Lee turned over to authorities a 153-page book with the case he had amassed.

Jones was indicted June 25, 1963, and was arrested in Indianapolis the following month.

Jones first waived extradition. His attorneys later argued that he was illiterate and didn't know what he was signing.

CRISIS NEARS

Rusk Opens Conferences To Mend Troubled Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk quietly opened Saturday one of the most important rounds of conferences with Western European leaders in the brief, troubled history of NATO.

The great aim of European unity which has guided American relations with Western Europe for more than a decade is in danger of being extinguished by the diplomatic storm developing around French President Charles de Gaulle.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is in serious trouble and possibly entering a period of crisis from which it cannot emerge unscathed.

Ironically this is occurring at a time when the new leadership in Russia and the old, entrenched leaders in Communist China are getting together in Moscow to try to paper over their differences, now that Nikita Khrushchev is out of the way.

While there is an appearance of surface unity between the two, at least temporarily, the gestures of reconciliation may prove to be fruitless in the long run. But this is hardly a source of cheer to Rusk and President Johnson as they contemplate the disarray in Western Europe.

Rusk met Saturday with Netherlands Foreign Minister Joseph Luns. Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak, due here Monday, has been in touch with the French. Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder of West Germany is due in two weeks. Britain's new Labor prime minister, Harold Wilson, will come in December or early January.

Undersecretary of State George Ball has scheduled early trips to West Berlin and Paris. On the first mission, ostensibly to attend a German-U.S. conference of distinguished citizens, he will undoubtedly meet with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard. About the time of his second mission he or some other high administration official may talk with De Gaulle.

In the background of all this activity is a growing belief on the part of American policy makers that the U.S. aim of uniting Western Europe into a single great power center, closely linked with this country, is no longer practical.

A major review of U.S. European policy, now beginning, seems likely to produce a new definition of purpose. Essentially, the best informed officials believe this will mean working around Gaullist France to form closer U.S. ties with Britain, West Germany, Italy and other allies.

In one respect there is not a great deal new in this situation. It was almost two years ago that De Gaulle astonished the Western world by blocking Britain's entry into the European Common Market and undertaking to form a special association with West Germany in furtherance of the idea of making Western Europe independent of U.S. direct military support.

Long before that De Gaulle had launched France on its own nuclear weapons program. But two years ago he told Europeans they could not rely on the United States in a pinch, that this country would not risk its own cities to save the cities of Western Europe.

The issues which arise out of the collision courses followed by France and the other NATO allies now seem to be approaching a climax.

To offset French development of a national nuclear force, the United States several years ago proposed an international nuclear force within NATO with this country furnishing the weapons and others sharing the cost and the manpower supply.

Coming Up: 2-Week Jaunts To Moon, Long Flights Aboard Space Model-T's

HOUSTON (UPI)—The United States soon will extend its space goals to include two-week outings on the moon and three-month flights aboard model-T space stations for its astronauts.

That is, if the National Aeronautics and Space Administration can get enough money from Congress.

But more ambitious projects such as permanent "Little America" bases on the moon, bus-sized laboratories in orbit around earth and manned expeditions to Mars and perhaps Venus are going to have to wati a few years longer.

At present, America's No. 1 goal in space is the landing of two astronauts on the surface of the moon around 1970—the culmination of the Apollo Program that will cost about $20 billion.

But hints of an expanded U.S. program came at this week's three-day convention of more than 1,000 top scientists and engineers, the third manned space flight meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

Dr. Edward C. Welsh, chairman of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, said clues as to the direction U.S. space exploration would take, after the manned lunar landing, will be found in NASA's testimony before Congress in early 1965.

But a definite pattern is already evident:

—The first step after the manned moonfall will be "limited" exploration of the lunar surface. The likeliest method for this task is a series of capsule and supply shipments that would keep two men alive and working on the moon for 14 days.

—Also, slightly modified versions of the Apollo moonship will be converted into small space stations to circle in orbit around earth for three months at a crack. Possibly two or more of these will be linked up to form an even larger outpost in space.

The money that NASA requests from Congress next year also will finance the world's most elaborate interplanetary probes — unmanned probes to Mars, and possibly Venus, to pave the way for expeditions by astronauts in the late 1970's.

Chamber Cites Buying Power In Monroe Area

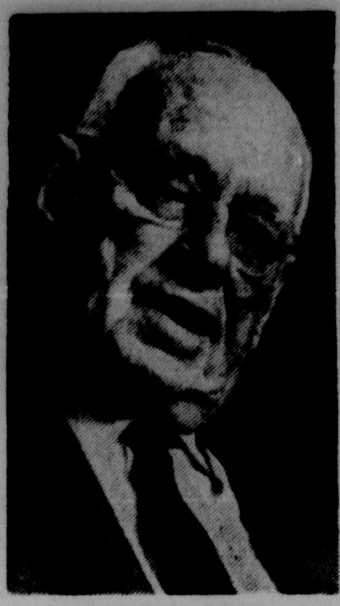
There is a buying potential of more than $400 million in the Monroe trade area, according to the Chamber of Commerce.

Biggest items of expenditures are for food, automobiles and housing, each accounting for 18 per cent of the average family's spending.

More than $125 million is spent annually on retail sales. During 1964, citizens in Monroe's metropolitan area are expected to lay out $27 million on automobiles and purchase nearly 25 million gallons of gasoline, according to Chamber figures.

The trading area of Monroe is comprised of 13 parishes with 350,000 population. The Monroe metropolitan area includes 32,-000 household units, 90,000 families, with an estimated population of 112,000.

Monroe's Chamber of Commerce figures on family expenditures also include 15 per cent for general merchandise, seven per cent for apparel, three per cent each for eating-drinking, furniture and lumber- hardware, and two per cent for drugs. Miscellaneous items account for the other five per cent.



ALF M. LANDON
. . . Not Looking Back

Cut Out Breast Beating, Landon Advises GOP

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — "The future of the Republican party isn't being helped by these breast-beatings and recriminations," Alf M. Landon said Saturday in the wake of last Tuesday's Democratic victory.

Landon, who as Republican presidential nominee in 1936 lost every state except Maine and Vermont, said he expects Sen. Barry Goldwater to remain as titular head of the party.

Landon makes it clear he doesn't waste much time looking back at what might have been—either in his own race or this year.

"One hopeful aspect of the election result is that it leaves the door wide open for development of new and perhaps more representative Republican leadership," he said.

"A national party is based on the statehouses and courthouses throughout our broad land. Look at the Republican governors in the big states of Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin and Michigan. That is the heartland of the Republican party and the record they make, along with elections of Republican governors in 1966 and the record of Republican congressmen will have a great bearing on the future of the Republican party."

As to the immediate problem of rebuilding, Landon said:

"To talk of a new national chairman until Dean Burch decides to offer his resgiantion is an exercise in futility."

"In the first place Burch is going to be national chairman until the next presidential nominee names his choice, unless he resigns voluntarily. And, second, if Sen. Goldwater has the courage of his convictions, and I think he has, he is not going to step down as titular head of his party.

"All of this fussing and feuding is pouring vinegar on a wound instead of oil on troubled waters.

"That does not mean that I agree with Sen. Goldwater's policies or that his policies will control the party."

Recalling his own presidential race 28 years ago when he was governor of Kansas, Landon said:

"I had pretty well adjusted myself to what was going to happen. He carried only Maine and Vermont that year while Goldwater carried only six this year—all but one of which were in the South.

"As far as President Johnson is concerned there remains to be solved quite a few major problems," he said.

"In South Viet Nam he has put off decisions that should have been made months ago.

Girls Meet Again For Photo Takes After Transplant

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Primped for a photographer and a handful of onlookers, two identical twin sisters involved in a rare kidney transplant saw each other in Parkland Memorial Hospital Saturday.

Nancy Freeman, 10, got out of bed and walked to the side of her twin, Mary, to whom she gave a kidney two days ago.

A kidney condition has left Mary weighing only 37 pounds at the age of 10. She was born weighing 1 pound 12 ounces. Nancy, who weighed three pounds at birth, now weighs 101 pounds.

The girls were transferred Saturday to the medical intensive care unit from the surgical recovery area, where they had been since surgery, and began receiving oral fluids for nourishment. Both had been fed intravenously since Thursday.

Doctors said that Mary's new kidney continues to function "excellently."

The girls's parents are Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Freeman of Fort Worth.

Doctors said Mary may begin growing now that she has a normal kidney. Tests indicated that since the girls are genetically identical, the operation would be successful.

BOOKS

LIFE WITH PICASSO. By Francoise Gilot & Carlton Lake. McGraw- Hill. $6.95.

This book's title carries only a small hint of its remarkable impact as an inside revelation of a personage's private life.

As a memoir it makes fascinating reading, whether or not the reader has much interest in art. It is a vivid part of the chronicle of a leading figure of the century.

Mlle. Gilot was in a virtually unique position to tell this story. A painter herself she became Picasso's model, one of his succession of mistresses, and mother of two of his children. She was part of Picasso's life for 10 years, when she was in her 20s and he was in his 60s. The narrative begins in Occupied Paris of 1943.

There are many passages in which Picasso is quoted at length on his philosophy of painting; his objectives during such periods as the cubist; and his later desire to find "subversive" ways of getting across a visual concept. There are anecdotal illustrations of his working techniques in all the media.

Hero Goes Downhill All Way

YARBOROUGH. By B. H. Friedman. World. $5.95.

The hero of thi snovel, Arthur Skelton, is an aimless man who fritters away his life because he can find no sense of values, no direction, no goal.

At the age of 6, Skelton was beating adult bridge fans. But even in his card games he was more interested in perfecting a system than in winning trophies, though at 17 he won a national tournament prize.

Skelton was the type who let opportunity slide. In prep school, his grades would have made him valedictorian, but he turned down the chance. In college he was doing well and headed for law school, but dropped out because he could see no point in continuing. He had numerous affairs, but was not interested in marriage.

He was always trying the effects of drugs — he started on marihuana as a teenager — but found only transient solace in them. Even as a professional bridge player he merely drifted, sneering at a man who was ambitious enough to become a national authority.

All this downhill chronicle of a man who lacked motivation and couldn't find his own identity is told against a background of clubs, night life, sex and disillusionment. There is a great deal of bridge talk — readers who do not play the game will have to do some skipping — and a preoccupation with narcotics.

Friedman writes well, but his material may not appeal to a wide audience. It's hip.

TENTS ACROSS MIDWEST

NEW YORK (AP) — The operators of a summer tent theater in Indianapolis are planning to develop a circuit of 22 similar playhouses in the Middle West, the South and Puerto Rico.

AFTER THE CIVIL WAR

Davis Attained Peak Of Stature

JEFFERSON DAVIS: TRAGIC HERO. By Hudson Strode. Harcourt, Brace. $7.50.

With this volume, Strode completes his biography of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate State of America. It is in some respects the most important and revealing of the three volumes, for it deals with a period — Davis' post-Civil War life — treated sketchily by other biographers; and with a man at his greatest stature.

Davis was treated shamefully after his capture in Georgia while fleeing the conquering Union armies. He was imprisoned in Fort Monroe, humiliatingly kept in irons for a time. For months, he was never out of sight of a sentry, denied the solace of darkness by a light kept burning at the head of his bed. He was the target of indignities of body and spirit while the Radicals in Washington searched for an excuse to hang him. Through it all, Davis conducted himself with dignity and fortitude.

When finally freed, without trial, he found himself a hero. As President, he never held a place in the South's affections equal to the adoration and respect he won in his twilight years. And he never retreated one whit from the convictions which, although highly controversial and perhaps too unyielding in devotion to a Lost Cause, stamped him as a man of rare integrity and courage.

Inspiring though the story is, Strode's third volume is still a disappointing work. This is narrative, but not definitive biography. Perhaps the author puts his finger on the fault when he says in his introduction, "I have tried to keep my voice as low as possible, to let Jefferson Davis speak for himself." A man as enigmatic, as steadfast as Davis cannot be described adequately on his own terms; there must be added the cool judgment of the historian. It is also a point, and a weakness, that when Strode's voice is heard, it is the voice of adulation. Davis always was right and all who opposed him were rascals.

Story About Collecting Of Big Art

In one compact package, Farah has prepared a guidebook that can open the door to art collecting for those of us with modest means, who have felt a certain timidity about entering what has seemed to be the realm of millionaires and hundred-thousandaires.

The emphasis here is on the practical — the way to get started at all levels of collecting. For the beginner, there are chapters presenting thumbnail outlines of the main schools of Western art (Old Masters and Modern Masters), and American art.

With a bibliography and a series of notes on museums and commercial galleries in major American cities, this gives the embryo collector an operating method on the road to connoisseurship.

Farah is writing from personal experience, based on years of adventuring into the environment of the museum, the gallery and even the junk shop. His account is salted with anecdotes and the sort of avuncular, inside advice which might take a beginner years to learn.

The People Behind 15 Newspapers

THE THIN GOLD WATCH: A Personal History of the Newspaper Copleys. By Walter S. J. Swanson. Macmillan. $7.95.

Although in a sense this is a corporate biography — and a remarkably detailed one — it is primarily the story of two personalities, as the subtitle indicates.

It is the chronicle of a major venture, The Copley Press, Inc., which publishes 15 daily newspapers in Illinois and California, and has an interest in another in Honolulu.

The two personalities are Ira Clifton Copley (1864-1947) and his adopted son James Strohn Copley—known through most of the book simply as "the Colonel" and "Jim"—who have headed the Copley organization since the elder bought his first newspaper, the Aurora (Ill.) Beacon, in 1905 the year he was 41.

Newspapers were a sideline at first, while the Colonel built a utilities business and represented his district in Congress. But in 1926 (when his son still was in school) he sold the utilities for a fortune, and turned all his attention to publishing.

Dissonance Of Photos And Essays

Striking as it is, this collaboration of photographer and writer cannot be fitted into any ready category.

Partly it is a collection of 60 photographs — artfully contrasted, sometimes thrown into bizarre focus — and partly a brief essay.

In between there are many views of celebrities. Usually they are shown in closeups so close that facial pores are emphasized unpleasantly. They are arranged in jarring juxtaposition — a Vicomtesse of a fashion house, the leader of the American Nazis, beatnik poet Allen Ginsberg in the nude; two Negro students and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama; a Louisiana judge and some rock 'n' roll singers.

Baldwin's four-part essay can be described only as a mood piece, having little coherence but a strong emotional beat. It is a melancholy dirge for American commercialism, racism and disorientation.

Pope's Paper On Missions Under Attack

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A document on missionary activity — for which Pope Paul VI had predicted easy approval — was bitterly assailed Saturday by prelates in the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Not a single one of the 17 council fathers who spoke in the debate in St. Peter's defended the document. Many called for an entirely new document.

The attack — one of the most massive against a single council document since the assembly opened in 1962 — came the day after Pope Paul had said there was much to praise in the text. He said this when he personally opened debate on the missionary topic Friday. He too said there was need for improvement in the text but added that he expected it to be approved "easily."

Pope Paul's appearance in the council and his emphasis on the great importance he attached to missionary activity was particularly welcomed by missionary bishops. Many of them have made no secret of their feelings that the council was paying too little attention to missionary problems.

But Saturday's debate made it clear that many prelates want a more drastic revision or expansion of the document than the Pope had in mind.

The document on missionary activity began as a full-fledged schema but was ordered boiled down to a series of propositions in order to speed up council work. This was done when it was widely believed the current third council session would be the last.

Now, with yet a fourth council session promised, pressure was rising to have the document restored to something like its original form.

"The missionary aspects of the Church's mission are such an important point that this subject cannot be compressed into just a few propositions," said Cardinal Joseph Frings of Cologne, Germany.

The 13 propositions contained in the document are mostly general statements on the need for mission work and the importance of cooperation and support for it in the Church. One proposition proposes a central mission board to coordinate all mission activities.

Many of the missionary bishops consider the document so brief as to be useless. They want extensive detailed discussions of such specific items as regular Church assessments instead of the present voluntary contributions to pay for missionary activity.

Bishop Daniel Raymond Lamont, an Irish-born prelate now bishop of Umtali, Uganda, won heavy applause with this statement:

"The propositions would give no new impetus for sending missionaries abroad, (and) could never inspire youth. We need fire, a great spirit of zeal."

Northeast Choir To Be Featured In Opera Nov. 17

The Northeast Louisiana State College Concert Choir will be featured in the production of the opera "Otello" in Shreveport Nov. 17, Joe Barry Mullins, acting chairman of the Department of Music, announced.

Verdi's famous opera is being presented by the Shreveport Civic Opera Association with Metropolitan Opera stars to sing the lead roles. It will be held in Shreveport's Municipal Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m.

The role of Otello will be sung by Dimiter Uzunov of the Metropolitan; Iago by Cesare Bardelli, also of the Met; while Katja Georgev, wife of Uzanov, will be making her American debut in the role of Desdomona. Other leads wre from the San Francisco and Chicago operas.

Davis Bingham, director of the Northeast Choir, will sing the role of Montano in the opera while a Northeast student, David Worthington of Shreveport, will sing the part of Araldo.

Bingham, associate professor of music, has had wide opera experience, performing as soloist with the Chattanooga, Kentucky, and Shreveport opera associations previously and with the Nashville Summer Opera.

He has also sung with the Louisville Symphony and on The Baptist Hour program. He was a national winner in National Federated Music Clubs competition in 1948 and area winner in Metropolitan Opera auditions in 1960 and 1961.

The Northeast Choir will leave Monroe early Saturday morning, Nov. 14, and begin rehersal on stage at 10 a.m. that day. Rehearsals will continue through Saturday, Sunday and Monday with the performance set for Tuesday evening, Nov. 17.

The choir will return to Monroe immediately after the conclusion of the opera.

Nomination and election of officers will top Monday's agenda, and Dupont encouraged members to take an active part in the membership drive now underway.

Victory Raises Hopes For House Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The election of about 295 Democrats to the House has raised the hopes of a long-time advocate of congressional reform for key changes in House procedures.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., called on the heavy Democratic majority Saturday to adopt rules next January that would make it easier for the House to act on major legislation opposed by committee chairmen. Many chairmen are Southern Democrats who frequently oppose administration bills.

One change urged by Reuss would allow 100 members to bring to the House floor a bill that is part of the President's program. It now takes 218 — an absolute majority — to force such action.

Another Reuss proposal would permit a bill to be brought directly to the floor if the Rules Committee fails to act on it within 21 days. A majority of the Rules Committee now can prevent action indefinitely.

Reuss, in a statement, said the 1964 platform on which the successful Democrats ran calls for a revision of congressional rules "to assure majority rule after reasonable debate and to guarantee that major legislative proposals of the President can be brought to a vote after reasonable consideration in committee."

"We must honor that pledge," said Reuss, who was a member of the Platform Committee that wrote the plank.

Reuss noted that the Ways and Means Committee has refused for years to permit legislation for health care for the elderly to come up for a vote in the House. And for 16 years, he said, the District of Columbia Committee has refused to bring out a bill granting home rule to the capital.

"Thus committees can act as virtual sub-legislatures," he said, "going their own way regardless of the House on most bills."

The present requirement for 218 signatures on a discharge petition makes it virtually impossible to get action through this procedure, Reuss said. Since the rule was established in 1936 only two bills have been enacted through discharge petitions.

EMPHASIS ON FEMININITY

Holiday Season Fashions Unveiled At Benefit Here

By Bette Ellen Smith
Women's Editor
News-Star—World

Girls will be girls this holiday season with emphasis on femininity in the dazzling array of fashions destined to light the after-dark hours. Elegant fashions, designed to be seen and be seen in, spotlight the discotheque look of motion and ultra-feminine ruffles, a la Tom Jones.

A preview of fashions for the upcoming holiday season was revealed at a benefit style show sponsored by the Opti-Mrs. of Monroe, Saturday afternoon at the Paragon Club. Proceeds will go to the scholarship fund to Northeast Louisiana State College.

Using the theme, "Happy Holidays," fashions keyed to round-the-clock wear during the party-going season, were shown by Letha's with members of the Opti-Mrs. as models. The theme extended to the ballroom of the Paragon, wherre decorations in gold and red were suggestive of the holidays. A gold lamp post, with its two large globes, based with gilt-sprayed flower and leaf clusters was the focal point and centering tables around the room were tall red candles, encircled with gold - sprayed leaves. A large bell topped a gold display rack which held the door prizes and the red and gold motif was used in the centerpiece for the serving table. Background for the style show was a large green tree, laden with oversize red balloons.

Mrs. Stanley Passman, president of the club, welcomed the guests and introduced the narrator, Mrs. Harry Cooper and the general chairman of the show, Mrs. J. Carl Parkerson. Members who served as models were Mrs. John Lacy, Mrs. Jack Phillips, Mrs. Allen Coon, Mrs. Clay Blakemore, Mrs. Robert Lee, Mrs. Robert Anderson, Mrs. J. P. Mosley, Mrs. Robert Bruce, Mrs. Jerry Thomas, Mrs. Leo Wall and Mrs. Sam Marrs. Miss Juliana Hale provided piano music throughout the showing and entertainment was by Lee Junior high school choral group.

The supple, feminine look of the season is executed in bias-cut crepes, flowing chiffons, velvets, shimmering satins and sculptured brocades. The pale and lustrous look is combined with traditional hues, offering a wide variety from which to choose fashions for the holidays.

Shown in crepe was a short frock called Pink Champagne, which featured a low back, long sleeves and quilted scroll pattern skirt. The epitome of the pale look was exemplified in a white crepe sheath with corded waistline, topped with a short overblouse, etched with delicate pink and silver sequined leaves. Dazzling was the white crepe formal two piece gown, lavishly beaded with iridescent sequins, silver bugle beads and pearls. Also jeweled was an elegant blue overblouse, embellished with blue, silver and gold sequins and pearls, paired with a white satin skirt.

The evening coat is an important contender for fashion honors this season as noted in the shimmering emerald satin ensemble shown. Fringed ruffles, in the Tom Jones look, were used over the shoulder of the Empire gown, which was topped with a free flowing coat, accented by a ruffle extending down the front and encircling the hem. Destined for the discotheque trek was a short beige cocktail dress with gold tassles, as was a gay citrus and royal blue chiffon sheath with bias cut panel floating from the back. A sleeveless royal blue ribbon knit overblouse completed the costume.

Diamond shaped sequins in high shades embellished a white sweater paired with an at-home skirt of shocking pink in pure silk. Also for at-home entertaining are the ever popular pants, such as those shown in shocking pink print with tiered ruffle overblouse teamed with bell-bottom pants.

Vying with the stars for evening glitter will be the formal gown in all-over gold sequins, fashioned on slim lines, or the sleeveless silver metallic sheath, its lone accent being a bow at the front waistline. An exotic formal shown featured a bold tangerine metallic sheath, with accents of pink and green and a floating tangerine chiffon scarf.

Newest way to dress after dark is in the theatre suit, with several shown in velvet, a fabric synonomous with the holiday season. One creation modeled was of rose quilted velveteen jacket teamed with a matching sheath skirt accented by a grey velvet belt and a long-sleeved blouse of striped rose cotton. A conversation piece was the pink poodle purse carried with the ensemble. Black and white was paired in a theatre suit of velvet, with white quilted satin lapels, and a simple white satin overblouse. Beautifully executed in a relaxed silhouette was a two piece cocktail dress of rich brown satin encrusted with matching brown cut velvet, and tiny tracings of glitter.

Ideal for any daytime activity, was the costume shown which comprised a cape of white poodle cloth with a two-piece dress of bronze shade. Other suits for daytime wear were noteworthy for detail including a side effect of fringe on a black and white checked wool with matching hood; a beige wool cut-away, collared in beige and white fox fur; and a three-piece metallic knit costume with Chanel-type jacket, piped in gold braid.

VFW Sponsors Speech Contest For Students

'Christian' Cut Off Union Name

PARIS (AP) — Leaders of France's second largest labor union voted Saturday to drop the word Christian from its title. The French Confederation of Christian Workers changed its name to the Democratic French Confederation of Labor by a vote of 70 per cent of the delegates at the union's congress.

Union leaders said the action had been taken to escape the stigman of clericalism, never too popular in France, and to attract members who may be Moslems, Jews or agnostics.

France's largest union is the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor.

HOT POND

ATIKOKAN, Ont. (AP) — A hot pond will enable a new $6,000,000 sawmill here to operate at full capacity both winter and summer. The pond, which washes foreign matter from logs, is heated in winter with off-peak hydro power to loosen bark and thaw logs.

Ford Shutdown Continues This Week

DETROIT (AP) — The nine-plant United Auto Workers strike that has watered down Ford Motor Co.'s car and truck production apparently will spill over into next week at least.

Most of the striking local units by late Saturday had not scheduled new negotiations on at-the-plant disputes that caused the walkout of some 25,500 UAW-represented Ford employes.

The strike shut down four assembly plants, two stamping plants and three parts making plants of the nation's second largest auto manufacturer Friday.

It followed failure to settle local contracts with the Ford plants in the six states. The local contracts supplement the national agreement reached Sept. 18.

Spokesmen for striking union locals in Sheffield, Ala.; Wayne and Ypsilanti, Mich.; Chicago Heights, Ill., and Buffalo, N.Y., said there were no weekend meetings scheduled. A negotiations session was set for Monday at the Sheffield Ford aluminum foundry.

A number of the UAW units reported overtime, shift preference and job posting provisions as issues holding back local agreements.

Malcolm L Denise, Ford's chief negotiator, said the strikes which have slashed the firm's auto production by an estimated 16 per cent are "completely unnecessary."

Denise said many of the issues "should not even be on the bargaining fable." He asserted "the union is seeking concessions from the company that would restrict its right to manage the plants efficiently."

UAW Ford department director Ken Bannon said, "in every instance where an unresolved issue has prevented a settlement, a settlement on that question has been reached at another plant."

Besides cutting the 16 per cent from Ford's daily auto production of about 10,000 cars, the strike has cut the 1,800-unit-a-day truck production by 34 per cent, a spokesman said.

A possible 10th strike was faced by Ford in St. Louis, Mo.

With this endeavor today, we offer the readers of the Sunday Monroe Morning World what we hope will be an interesting column weekly on the world of art — about things and events locally, in the area and nationally and internationally.

"Actually it is only through art that we can get outside of ourselves and know another's views of the universe which often is not the same as ours and see landscapes which would otherwise have remained unknown to us. . . like the landscapes of the moon.

Thanks to art, instead of seeing a single world — our own — we see it multiply until we have before us as many worlds as there are original artists. And many centuries after their core — whether we call it Rembrandt or Vermeer — is extinguished, they continue to send us their special rays" . . . . Marcel Proust.

In the excitement of the election you may have neglected to properly celebrate what was officially declared "American Art Week" which started on November 1. If you did, you can still view the colorful mood enticing works featured here by visiting the Masur Museum of Art on South Grand street, which is open daily between 2 and 5 p.m., except Monday. The current exhibit is a showing of paintings by Marie Hull, who was born in Summit, Miss. Mrs. Hull has studied her craft in both the U.S. and Europe and her well-deserved awards could fill this column.

Her credits of work in museum collections reads like a coast-to-coast telephone book. Regional and National "Jury" (Competitive) shows have exhibited Mrs. Hull's colorful paintings in such impressive showcases as "The Art Institute" at Chicago, "Brooklyn Museum," Brooklyn, "New York World Fair 1939," "Baltimore Museum," Baltimore, and many, many others. No "nouveau artist," Mrs. Hull has been acquiring awards and honors for a number of years . . . . the latest being reported just the past week when Mrs. Hull had a work selected for showing in the highly competitive Birmingham, Alabama Art Association exhibit. Only three days remain to view the exciting work of Mrs. Hull here.

Saturday night, Nov. 14, will be the "invitation only" preview of the third museum presentation of this season. There's valid reason for many preview parties (a custom popular in art conscious cities over the nation) as the coming exhibit will be a showing of painting from Monroe collectors of art. Museum associates and Auxiliary members entertaining guests may bring them along on the invitations they will receive in the mail this week.

AUXILIARY MEMOS

Hostesses who will be at the museum to meet and greet you will be: Sunday Nov. 9, Mrs. W. B. Inabnet and Mrs. A. Parker. Tuesday Nov. 10, Mrs. Ryan Sartor, Wednesday Nov. 11, Mrs. Hillman Madison and Mrs. Jack Rivers, Thursday Nov. 12, Mrs. Pierre Lauve and Mrs. Hayden Cutler, Friday Nov. 13, Mrs. M. L. Russo and Mrs. Anthony Pendolo, Saturday Nov. 14, Mrs. Viron Burge.

Some days only one name appears but you can be sure two members of the auxiliary will be on hand plus one of the curators of the museum to tell visitors where the main exhibit begins, where to find the Northeast Louisiana Archeological Societies' display of artifacts and which gallery of the museum is devoted to the work of our local artists.

ART NEWS HERE AND THERE:

Here: In the aforementioned gallery, you may see the works of the museum curators. The much praised paintings of Mary Anita Lennon, Bess James, Chiquita Squires, Dottie McKinley and Ed Shutz, have recently returned from Baton Rouge. Our local artists were given a five-man show in that city by The Louisiana Art Commission. If you're in Jackson, Miss. within the next three weeks visit the Mississippi Art Association Gallery and point with pride to two paintings by Monroe artists. Selected by juror Pat Trivigno from a huge field of entries, Bess James and Ed Shutz are receiving well deserved "congratulations" for the honor

OTHER WORKS

Among other works of a young Greek-American artist on display at the Green Gallery in New York City, is a 6x12 bedroom of such surreal clutter — it would make even Dali wince. Lucas Samarras considers the chamber he occupied for 14 years the most important idea in his show. He sees it as "assemblage, even sculpture, his past complete and the realist thing he could do." The gallery has placed a price of $17,000, on the room! Comment: I had all intentions of cleaning my desk of gum wrappers, pointless pencils, at least sixty clippings from various journals, (some dated 1963), sketches for the P.-T.A. carnival puppet show, last week's grocery list and my Susies' half-eaten "Sugar Daddy" that I've put my elbow on three times today, but I may be throwing away a fortune, instead of cleaning I think I'll slip another piece of paper in my typewriter "To Whom It May Concern, Green Art Gallery, N.Y., N.Y." . . . . .

Farmers Consider Own Supermarket

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Farmers who produce the nation's food are talking about going into the supermarket business.

The decision could come in the next month on a unique marketing proposal which could give farmers more economic muscle. Farmers are looking for what they call a fair shake in prices. They also want more leverage in dealing with food processors.

It's a fairly open secret that the plan is for the American Farm Bureau Federation, or at least 10 of its autonomous state federations, to buy one or more supermarket chains.

The plan is known as the "Ohio marketing proposal." It was developed by the staff of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and approved by the board of directors.

It will be presented Wednesday to the annual state meeting, and, if approved, will be presented to the national conference in Philadelphia beginning Dec. 6.

A committee of the national American Farm Bureau Federation already has begun studying the proposal and is expected to have its recommendations ready for Philadelphia.

Reports have it that the proponents are interested in buying the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. group of supermarkets which handle, about 12 per cent of national food sales.

Although the bureau declines to name any company, C. William Swank, general manager of the Ohio bureau's agricultural marketing association, admits, "We've talked more about one than another" and adds, "We're not dealing idly."

According to Swank, the power in the food industry has shifted from the food processors to the retail chains.

The big retail chains, pushing and advertising their own brands, have weaned the consumers away from the national brands, once the trump card of the big processors, he said.

Government standards have assured the quality of products, Swank explained, and the consumer tends to buy the "unnamed" product because it is cheaper.

The retailer now "calls the shots," Swank said, describing the retailer's pressure on the processor who, in turn, pressures the farmer. As an example, he said the turkey farmer cannot find out how much the processor will pay for the turkeys until the supermarket set its price for the housewife.

Owning an influential share of the retail outlets would give the farmers an effective weapon in getting bargaining rights with the food processors. It would offer advantages to those who do bargain fairly with farmers and disadvantages to those who refuse, Swank said.

He explained that those who play ball, in effect, could be assured of "full supply contracts" to provide processed foods under the store label. This might lead to eventual elimination of brand name products, "but they are declining anyhow," Swank said.

On the other side of the scale, the uncooperative processor might be faced with reduced display room and smaller orders for his products, Swank explained.

The proposal is most feasible in the dairy, livestock and poultry markets and in the produce for canning areas.

Financing the purchase would require money from less than one-third of the national federation's 1.6 million members, according to D. R. Stanfield, executive vice president in Ohio.

If 500,000 farmers invested $100 per year for four years it would provide $200 million to purchase stock, Stanfield said, explaining that additional funds could be raised through the sale of 20-year debenture bonds.

Stanfield speaks of four supermarket chains — A&P, Safeway, Kroger, and American Stores (Acme) — as the "four billionaires," which control 20.1 per cent of the food purchased in the country. He said one of them would require about $400 million for controlling interest.

Although the Ohio group would prefer that such a business venture is entered nationally, Swank said the purchase probably could be made by members in the major "farm bureau states," which he said are the midwestern and southern states and California.

The Great Slave Lake Railway will soon link Roma in northern Alberta, Canada, to Great Slave Lake in the Mackenzie District of the Northwest Territories.

Japanese Police Battle Students Protesting Subs

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — Club-swinging riot police clashed twice Saturday with about 1,000 students demonstrating in front of a U.S. naval base here against planned visits by U.S. nuclear submarines. Officials said 134 police and demonstrators were injured.

About 10,000 Socialists, unionists and students took part in each demonstration, police said. Only students fought, however.

Shortly after noon police put up an iron fence and stationed hundreds of riot policemen in front of the main gate of Yokosuka Naval Base. Shops and stores around the base closed.

The first violence erupted around 4 p.m. as snake-dancing, chanting students marched up to the main gate. The students were carrying placards, some saying "Yankee go home."

Police ordered them to cease but the demonstrators ignored them, dashed toward the police cordon, and began hurling rocks, placards and even shoes.

The police charged into the demonstrators, swinging their truncheons.

Some demonstrators were clubbed to the ground. Then the enraged demonstrators counter-attacked. Some policemen were dragged into the crowd of students and knocked to the ground.

Interesting New Books Are Added

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

An interesting assortment of new books was added to the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library last week. There are books for every reading taste and you are certain to find a book which you will enjoy. There are a number of new fiction titles "Herzog" is the title of Saul Bellow's new book. It presents a picture of a man badly shaken by life and his efforts to make a comeback. "The Rope Bridge" by Cecilie Leslie is a compelling story with the setting in modern day India. "Threshold" by Stehpen Coulter is a commanding adventure story which holds the reader's interest from beginning to end. A fantastic collection of short stories is "The Hole In The Lead Apron" written by Jesse Bier. If you like books which border on the supernatural, this is for you. Another collection of short stories, but for a different audience is "The Brigadier and The Golf Widow" by John Cheever. This collection deals with upper middle class suburbia and most of the stories first appeared in the New Yorker. "If Morning Ever Comes" by Anne Tyler is a skillful tale of family relations. It is the story of the return of a small town boy for New York and his effort to identify with his family. "Second Time Around" by Clifford Hanley is a thoroughly modern story of the effort of a man on the way up to adjust to personal loss. It will appeal to both men and women readers. For those who like mystery stories, there are several new titles "The Case Of The Horrified Heir" by Erle Stanley Gardner; "A Kind of Anger" by Eric Ambler, "The Hunting Ground" by Clifford Francis; "Ax" by Ed McBain, "Verdict Suspended" by Helen Nielson and "Funeral of Figaro" by Ellis Peters.

There is a wide variety of interesting non-fiction in the recent additions to the collection. "The meaning Of Christian Values Today" by William L. Bradley is a very significant book. "Best Sermons, 1964" edited by George Paul Butler is a splendid collection of sermons. "Children and Religion" by Dora P. Chaplin should be useful to both parents and teachers. "Jobs, Men and Machines" edited by Charles Markham is an excellent study of the effects of automation. "A Biography Of the Constitution Of the United States" by Broadus Mitchell is a very fine study of the origin, writing and adoption of this important document. There are two new books in the field of education; "Measurement In Today's Schools" by Julian Hanley and "Fundamentals of Measurement" by Norville Downie. There are three new books of science, "Life and Death of The Sun" by John Rublowsky, "The Science of Physics" by Arthur Beiser, and "General Biology" by Gordon Alexander. Practical book are "A Commonsense Guide to Medical Care" by Richard H. Blum, "The Farmer's World, the Yearbook of Agriculture for 1964" published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (a copy for each branch was sent to us by our Congressman, Hon. Otto F. Passman); "The Picture Book of Perennials" by Arno Nehrling, "Horses of Today" by Margaret Cabell Self; "Casserole Treasury" by Lousene Brunner, "Creative Leathercraft" by Grete Peterson and "The Art of Painting" by Pierre Seghers.

Sports enthusiasts will find three books of interest; "Best Sport Stories of 1964" by Irving T. Marsh; "How the Pros Play Football" by William Dudley and "Fishing Secrets of the Experts" by Vlad Evanoff. Two additions to the literature collection are "Southern Savory" by Bernice Kelly and "Malory's Originality" a critical study of "Le Morte D'Arthur" edited by R. M. Lumiansky.

In the field of history and travel there are several interesting new books "Pandora's Last Voyage" by Geoffrey Rawson is an interesting annal of the sea "The Marsh Arabs by Wilfred Thesiger" is a good discussion of the Arabs of Iraq. "The stupidity problem and Other Harassments" by John Fischer is a scintallating commentary of life in our times "Twenty decisive Battles of the World" by Joseph B. Mitchell is a revision of the older work by Creasy. "People and Policy in the Middle East" by Max Thornburg is a very fine commentary of present day conditions in that part of the world. We are happy that we have been able to add to our collection the definitive biography of Woodrow Wilson, written by Arthur S. Link and published by Princeton University. Christopher Hassall has written a new biography of Rupert Brooke. Sheila Burnford calls her autobiography "The Fields of noon." Charles Chaplin's autobiography has occasioned much comment and interest "The Earth rests lightly" by Marie Quintanilla is a fascinating story of life in Spain today. Her Imperial Highness, Princess Soraya has written her autobiography, in a way which will appeal particularly to young people. "The three worlds of Captain John Smith" by Philip L. Barbour will be useful to history students.

House Pet Claws Infant To Death; Animal To Die

QUEBEC (AP) — A baby girl three months old was clawed to death by a young pet lion Friday night.

Police said Saturday the owner of the lion was fined $25 about three weeks ago for keeping a wild animal in the suburban community of Sillery.

In the aftermath of the killing, a veterinarian was ordered to dispose of the lion.

Sgt. Pierre Audet of Sillery police said the owner of the lion, Georges Baker, had been fined in accordance with a new law forbidding the keeping of wild animals. The law was passed after protests by neighbors against the Baker lion, police said.

The victim of the accident was Manon Tanguay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Paul Tanguay. Baker owns the house in which the Tanguays have a basement apartment.

The lion, four months old and weighing about 135 pounds, was a female.

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

With Jimmy Hatten

Ever consider tracing down your ancestors? George W. Erskins, 90, of Eros, has no doubt about his. He is a descendant of Augustine Washington, the grandfather of George Washington, who of course, was the father of our country.

Erskins has stamped his mark on his community. He was a pioneer in the telephone industry in this part of the state, in fact, one of the pioneers of the Louisiana telephone industry.

Two of his brothers, C. A. and I. M. Erskins established a telephone system in Eros, which was bought out by George who built a larger center.

On August 1, 1928, he opened the Chatham telephone office, selling out in 1948.

Erskins, still very alert mentally, remembers a sheep drive in 1905. He and a helper started out, near Wyatt in Jackson Parish, to drive 143 sheep to Monroe for sale. They camped at Wade Pool farm some three miles below Eros the first night, driving the sheep to Chenier Creek the next day. But the creek was too high for the sheep to cross, so they detoured by way of Forkville, arriving in Monroe the second night, with 139 sheep.

STILL DRIVES

Erskins still drives his car and lives alone in the home where his office once was. He frequently drives into town and plays dominoes with a group at a filling station. He enjoys TV and the radio and keeps abreast of the news

On the subject of ancestors, E. W. Plummer told us about the following:

One of the picturesque figures to arrive at Columbia about 1830, was Jacob Humboldt, who had served as a geeral in the Mexican Army. General Humboldt is said to have been of noble lineage, a native of Austria, who had crossed the Atlantic in quest of adventure.

He found life in Mexico where his abilities in military science gave him preferment, and where he was commissioned a general, unpleasant.

When trouble between Mexico and Texas developed, he came to Louisiana and chose Columbia as his home. Here he identified himself with the American settlers and Anglocized his name to "Jacob Humble," and is so known in the history of Caldwell Parish.

He served as a member of the State Legislature in the decade before the Civil War. Many of his descendents live in Northeast Louisiana today and think nothing of their "blue blood" handed down from this noble ancestor.

NEW NAME

Something else about Columbia. When Americans in considerable numbers settled on and near the Columbia site, they called the settlement "New Kentucky."

During the days before the Civil War, Plummer reports, Columbia's streets were often jammed with ox wagons laden with cotton, pipe staves and logs, especially in December. Farmers sold their produce at that time and bought their annual supplies. Happy merchants would often entertain with old fiddlers contests and no one wanted for good "likker."

As could be expected, there were those who got a little too high.

One oft-repeated story was about a farmer, thoroughly "soaked," who wrecked his ox-pulled wagon. The oxen pulled loose and left both farmer and wagon, and as friends came to his aid, he took one look at his oxen-less wagon and muttered: "Well, if this ain't me, I've found a wagin; and if it is me, I've lost a yoke of oxen."

French Official Unaware Of Pact

PARIS (AP) — A French Foreign Ministry official said Saturday night he knew nothing about rumors that France has asked help from the Soviet Union in building the supersonic jetliner Concorde if Britain abandons plans to cooperate in the project.

The spokesman said, "this is the first I have heard of any such development. I know nothing about it."

The rumor apparently started at a reception held at the Soviet embassy celebrating the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. Some 2,000 guests were present.

Officials of France's Sud Aviation Corp., the firm involved in building the airframe for the projected airliner, were not available.

Area Negro Dies After Shooting; Suspect Sought

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — A Lake Providence Negro died enroute to a Monroe hospital Friday night following injuries received in a shooting incident.

The dead man was identified as Isom Asberry, 34, who was shot through the door of 411 Hood street at about 9 a.m. during an argument with Jerry Gordon, 50, Negro, also of Lake Providence.

Gordon allegedly shot Asberry in the back, leg and hip with a .22 calibre rifle as he stood with his back to the door. Asberry fell over the bed and onto the floor.

Gordon then reportedly came into the house and fired again, time hitting Christine Harris, Negro, in the leg.

According to investigating officers, Gordon left the scene of the car wreck on foot, carrying the rifle. He had not been apprehended Saturday night.

The Harris woman was treated at the East Carroll Parish Hospital and then transferred to a Monroe hospital Saturday morning.

Swift Emissary Quick First Time, Trips At German

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler neatly side-stepped Premier Chou en-Lai of Red China Saturday but inadvertently shared a toast with Walter Ulbricht, Communist boss of East Germany.

Kohler was in an awkward situation at a revolution day reception in the Kremlin.

The ambassador managed to avoid Cuba's Enresto Guevarra, minister of industry and chief expert on guerrilla warfare. But when Kohler went with other ambassadors through an informal reception line, Ulbricht was standing next to Leonid N. Brezhnev. As the Soviet Union's top Communist, Brezhnev is the kind of man an American ambassador chats with socially. Kohler had his wine glass raised to clink Brezhnev's and, while he was chatting, Ulbricht clinked it too.

Russian Attacks Robert McNamara

MOSCOW (AP) — Following a policy of alternating civilian friendship and military toughness, the Soviet defense minister accused U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara Saturday of threatening to destroy the Soviet Union "'at any moment."

Grim-faced Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky said "Any attempt from an enemy will be answered in a suitable manner."

He spoke shortly after smiling Anastas I. Mikoyan, the Soviet president, spoke of peace in the whole world. Leonid N. Brezhnev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, said earlier that the majority of Americans cherish peace.

Malinovsky and Mikoyan were among top Soviet leaders making toasts at a Kremlin reception that concluded celebrations of the 47th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Special guests were leaders of a dozen Communist nations, including Premier Chou En-lai of Red China.

After Malinovsky spoke, diplomatic sources said, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin went up to U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler apparently to soften the effect of the defense minister's remarks.

Malinovsky's remarks were similar to, and perhaps a bit softer than, his usual Revolution Day and May Day statements. They usually breathe defiance of assumed threats from the West.

Speaking from Lenin's tomb at the parade through Red Square, he accused the United States of "military ventures creating a threat to peace."

He was more specific at the reception.

"We are not threatening anyone," he said. "We shall not do as the U.S. Defense secretary who threatens to destroy the Soviet Union at any moment.

"Anyone who threatens to destroy others is not a serious person in our contemporary conditions."

In a statement to the U.S. Democratic party's Platform Committee last Aug. 17, McNamara in discussing military strength said U.S. strategic forces are "sufficient to insure the destruction of both the Soviet Union and Communist China, under the worst imaginable circumstances accompanying the outbreak of war."

Malinovsky concluded his remarks with assurances of army loyalty to the Soviet Communist party. It was the first such public assurance since Brezhnev and Kosygin succeeded Nikita Khrushchev in the top jobs of party and government last month.

Brezhnev toasted Soviet military forces. He said they are defending all Communist countries.

Spot Leak

Two Monroe youths Saturday were credited with helping to conserve the city's water supply by at least several gallons.

S. J. Cicero, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Cicero, 1402 Roselawn, and Buddy Haynes, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Haynes, 1616 Roselawn, discovered a leaking fire hydrant at the corner of N. 14th and Stubbs, and reported it to the fire department.

Startling

"Monroe still has a street car."

Mrs. Aline Banister often tells this to startled visitors to the Ouachita Valley Museum, where she is curator.

A street car in Monroe? Where? Why haven't I seen it? are questions asked.

"It is in downtown Monroe and it's still in operation," she replies.

Mrs. Banister refers to the converted street car being used as a dispatch station by a cab company in the 200 block of Grammont street.

HARRISON G. BAGWELL

State GOP Leader Urges Easing Conservative Hold

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A Louisiana Republican who was a leader in the 1952 fight to name Dwight Eisenhower a presidential nominee said Saturday conservatives should ease their grip on the party.

Harrison G. Bagwell, the 1952 GOP candidate for governor, said in a statement, "the presidential election demonstrated most effectively that a factional, or fractured party is destined to defeat."

"Those individuals," he said, "who so strongly believe that the Republican party should be only the sanctuary of the conservatives should either reappraise their thoughts — or affiliate with a party bearing that name.

"The Republican hierarchy that led our party to such an ignominous defeat must of necessity be overhauled — and quickly. Party leadership must be moderate and progressive, showing both an awareness of the present and appreciation of the future."

A representative party, Bagwell said, "must of necessity assume the presence of conservatives, liberals, moderates — a party wherein there can be an exchange and interplay of ideas, not a brusque trampling of all those with whom the dominant faction may disagree."

"San Francisco and the election more than adequately support this conclusion," the Baton Rouge attorney said. He is chairman of the Sixth District Committee of the Republican State Central Committee.

Sen. Barry Goldwater carried Louisiana and its 10 electoral votes.

Top leader in this state for Goldwater was Charlton H. Lyons Sr., Shreveport oilman, who grabbed nearly 300,000 votes when he ran as the Republican challenger last March against Gov. John McKeithen.

U.S. MARSHALS MARK 175 YEARS OF SERVICE

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

Many changes have occurred since the nation's oldest federal law enforcement agency was formed. The modern marshals stand out in sharp contrast to the old time lawmen, and their duties include many things not dealt with by their predecessors. Here is a report on the history of U. S. marshals nationally and district-wise, and a look at their present roles.

Western Louisiana District U. S. Marshal Joseph W. Keene, Shreveport.

The Mountie always gets his man, it is said, but a United States Marshal must never let his get away.

The old marshal of the West had to be fast with a gun, but the modern marshal of today must be equally competent with a set of figures.

Just as the image of U. S. Marshal Wild Bill Hickok tearing his long locks out over travel expense would be distorted, it's wrong today to picture a modern marshal wearing a ten-gallon hat and a low-slung Colt .45.

The popular image of a U. S. marshal as a business-suited man arresting a ship or paying the wages of a federal judge would come closer to reality, according to Western Louisiana District U. S. Marshal Joseph W. Keene.

42-PARISH DISTRICT

Keene, 49, black-haired and of stocky build, is boss of a district that covers 42 parishes, stretching from the Atchafalaya River at Angola and everything west to the Gulf of Mexico. It extends into Morgan City at the extreme southeast portion and is bounded to north of Lake Providence on the extreme northeast portion.

This year, U. S. marshals are marking their 175th anniversary. The service comprises the nation's oldest federal law enforcement agency having been created Sept. 24, 1879 along with the original court system.

Two days later, President George Washington picked 13 men to serve as marshals for 11 of the original states and the Districts of Kentucky and Maine.

Keene, who has been with the marshal's office since January of 1935, and who was appointed chief marshal by the late President Kennedy Oct. 6, 1961, explained the diversity of the duties of the marshal's office and just what its place is in the federal government's law enforcement machinery.

NEW TYPE

The ten-gallon hat types have long ago evolved into a new breed, whose duties range from criminal to civil to clerical to instructor.

The modern U. S. marshal has to have a knowledge of all these things in the performance of his duties, Keene observes.

Keene says that counting himself "and the three girls here in the office," his force covering the Western Louisiana District is 11. "We have fewer people working for us today than 35 years ago," he said, adding, that meanwhile, the work load has "multiplied 10 times."

"That's why we're attempting through training programs to make all our personnel full-scope men, trained in civil, criminal and office procedure, prepared for a multiplicity of duties."

"If it were not so," Keene told an interviewer with a wave of his pipe, "we'd have to triple our forces."

The old-time marshal in this area, as in areas of the old West, certainly took his life in his hands when the star was pinned to his shirt.

ASSASSINATION AT RUSTON

On Nov. 21, 1891, Chief Marshal James M. Martin took pen in hand and sadly wrote to the attorney general in Washington:

"In reply to your telegram of the 18th instant, in regard to the assassination of my field deputy, John T. Sisemore, will say that he was murdered on the evening of the 17th instant at 6:30 o'clock in the suburbs of the town of Ruston, Lincoln Parish.

"He was decoyed from the highway into the edge of a pine thicket from whence he was shot with a double-barreled shotgun, loaded with buckshot at a distance not exceeding 15 feet. Both barrels of the shotgun were fired in quick succession.

"The first shot, however, took effect in the right breast, just above the heart, producing death in about 10 minutes. Friends reached him before he expired. He was rational, and when asked the question who shot him, he replied that he did not know. He could not see them.

"It was just about dark and the assassin, being protected by the pine brush, it was impossible for him to have seen him. Mr. Sisemore was there making preparations for a moonshine raid in Union Parish near the Line of Arkansas, and contemplated doing so the night he was shot."

"My theory is that some of those moonshiners had got knowledge of his intentions and hence the sad tragedy. Mr. Sisemore had been my field deputy for several years. He was a brave, determined and prudent officer. He was regarded with terror by the lawless element of that country.

"I regret to say that the government has lost one of its best officers. He leaves a wife and five small children."

COME AND GO

Marshals come and marshals go, but it seems the moonshiners remain. At least a remnant. Says Keene, "In that particular area, we still occasionally have moonshine cases."

He said that, "We used to have moonshine cases by the hundreds," but the area spoken of in the letter is "one of the few areas in North Louisiana where we have them anymore."

Although the history of the U S. marshals is sketchy because no systematic records were kept in the last century, some of the better known figures and events have been fairly well documented.

They include "Bear River Tom" Smith, one of the better frontier lawmen, who was town marshal and also deputy U. S. marshal of Abilene, Kan., one of the wildest communities in America at that time.

One writer said the 1871 census showed Abilene having 32 taverns, 64 gaming tables and 130 known professional gamblers. A drunk cowpoke was apt to shoot up anything in sight, including another cowpoke.

Thomas J. Fleming, a writer for This Week magazine, said, "In desperation, the town fathers hired two policemen from St. Louis. The day they arrived, the cowmen were shooting up the town. Both lawmakers got back on the same train and went home."

BROUGHT LAW, ORDER

But the town fathers turned to Tom Smith who within months brought law and order to Abilene without firing a shot. Smith rode unharmed on his striking gray horse, Silver Heels, enforcing the town's ordinance on checking firearms. He knew the Texans would not shoot him-as long as he stayed on his mount — they loved horses too much.

But Wild Bill Hickok used guns to keep order. "Hickok could perforate the brim of a hat while it spun in the air or, with a gun in each hand, could keep a tin can dancing in the dust," according to Wayne Gard in "Frontier Justice."

Only one man disobeyed Hickok's order to surrender a gun. He was 6-foot, four-inch Phil Coe, a fierce-looking man with a full brown beard and mustache. Hickok feuded with Coe over a dance hall damsel named Jessie Hasel.

Fleming wrote, "On Oct. 5, 1871, Coe joined a bunch of cattlemen celebrating their upcoming departure on the trail. About 9 o'clock, they were all thoroughly drunk and were charging around town playing rough pranks. In front of the Alamo Saloon, Coe shot a dog. Wild Bill strode out of the Alamo and ordered Coe to surrender his gun.

"There were about 50 men in the crowd, many with drawn guns. Coe sneeringly told the marshal that if he wanted his gun, he'd have to take it. Instantly, in classic Western style, both men went for their pistols. Wild Bill's first shot caught Coe in the abdomen."

The fatally - wounded Coe twice returned Hickok's fire, one bullet grazing Bill's side and the other whizzing between his legs. At that instant, a figure lurked out of the darkness. Hickok whirled and fired. He had killed Mike Williams, a policeman who was running to help the marshal.

That was about the last gunplay in Abilene. Hickok was soon fired and peaceful citizens urged cattlemen to take their herds and their wild cowboys elsewhere.

MANY OTHERS

There were many others — Wyatt Earp, who with Doc Holliday was charged with murder, but exonerated for their shoot-out at the O. K. Corral with Billy Clanton and the McLowery brothers; Bat Masterson, who failed to get re-elected sheriff of Dodge City after street fighting became prevalent; Nathaniel K. Boswell, who trailed two desperate horse thieves and single-handedly induced them to put handcuffs on each other, and William Tilghman who captured William Doolin, who had been one of the notorious Dalton gang, as he took a bath for his rheumatism at Eureka Springs, Ark.

Violence of the foregoing type is, hopefully a thing of the past. But the marshal's dedication to duty and his valor are a part of the tradition and history that go into the makeup of the modern marshal.

MARSHAL'S DUTIES

What does the modern marshal do?

—A marshal and his deputies, in executing the laws of the United States within a state, may exercise the same powers which a sheriff of such state may exercise in executing the laws of the state.

—The marshals pay the salaries, office expenses, travel, and subsistence allowances of marshals and United States attorneys and their staff, and of the judges and various personnel of the United States courts.

—The marshal collects his lawful fees (such as those received from plaintiff for serving process on defendant in civil cases) and accounts for them as public monies.

—He serves processes, transports and commits prisoners.

It follows, then, that a district such as that of Western Louisiana would have been blessed with a jack-of-all-trades, man-on-the-go public servant who knows how to tackle a problem and dispense with it in time to be ready for the next.

Well, a man-on-the-go image would fit a marshal's office that has 25,000 miles of travel expense in an average month, as is the case here. In the Western District during fiscal year 1963, more than 10,000 processes were served. A total of 9,831 prisoners were handled, and 2,366 man-power hours were spent in the courtroom.

During that same period, $558,000 was dispersed for the pay of judges and other officers of the court, while property valued at $29,960,000 was seized.

To get this kind of performance, organization would have to be the prime ingredient. A closer look will show how it is done.

The district has six division points. Shreveport is the headquarters, with Keene as the guiding hand over all. His chief deputy is Emmett G. Wyche, and Lester Jordan is field deputy. Also at Shreveport are Delmer Anglin, Betty Wilcox, Juanita Taylor and Daisy Kine.

AT DIVISION POINTS

At the division points are Russell Jordan, Monroe; Earl Dunn, Alexandria; Byron Schiller, Lafayette, and Larry Dailey, Lake Charles. The other division point is Opelousas, which Schiller handles due to its proximity.

If a marshal were to lose a man, he would be subject to fine and imprisonment. "Therefore," Keene muses, "we're not apt to lose one if we can help it." Pointing out that negligence would have to be proven for a penalty, he also noted that, "that would be very easy to prove, frankly."

A writer once wrote that a marshal "led a life that was full of novelty spiced with danger, and flavored with adventure." It would be hard to think of anything more novel than a U. S. marshal arresting a ship.

But that, according to Keene, is exactly what a marshal is called on to do in his district, which includes some sizeable ports.

He explained that in the waters, a vessel is considered as an individual and that at times a marshal has to seize a vessel in the name of the government to recover claims.

Usually, the marshal will wait for the vessel to be loaded and ready to pull out, then he goes down and makes the nab.

Though a modern marshal is hardly the rough - and - tumble prototype of a Bill Hickok, his job, by its very nature would insure that it's no paragon of safety.

But Keene won't linger long on this subject. He says only that he's "never met what you'd call real physical violence," but admits that maybe he's seen some touchy situations.

He says that the duties of a marshal are about 20 per cent handling criminal cases and the rest civil.

EXECUTIVE, ADMINISTRATIVE

The U.S. marshal is actually the executive and administrative officer for the federal court. He is appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation and is supervised by the U. S. attorney general. The full importance of the office of U. S. Marshal may be realized by Keene's statement that, "We are the means through which the federal courts operate."

A mark of the U. S. marshals is their method of conducting training classes. Keene said the classes, usually of two-weeks duration, are for training new personnel and re-training old personnel.

The training is in operational procedure, finances, and the physical realm, including judo. Marshal service personnel is used exclusively as instructors "which we've found to be very effective," Keene said.

The persons in the class, therefore, are trained "not in theory, but in practical aspects — from a knowledgeable position."

Keene, who was born at Lake Providence, has lived in Louisiana most of his life, although he resided in Texas for a short while. He graduated from the Shreveport public school system and attended Centenary College. He was made chief deputy in 1940 and then chief marshal in 1961.

He is married to the former Mary Baird of Shreveport, and they have one son, Randy, 17. They reside at 261 Stuart St., Shreveport.

SHORE PATROL DUTY

With three and one-half years spent in the Navy, Keene nevertheless wasn't out of the law enforcement aspect of military life — he was with the shore patrol.

In proclaiming last Sept. 24 as "United States Marshal Day," President Johnson remarked, "The marshal's duties have changed with the times. Some of the services once performed by marshals have now been reassigned to specialized agencies.

"However, the importance of the marshal's position as an indispensable arm of our judicial system remains undiminished. Throughout the changes which have characterized this country's rise from a young republic to the foremost power in this world, the marshal has always performed with steadfast dedication, competency, and inspiration.

"Over the past century and three-quarters, the marshal's star has symbolized a tradition of service and courage; it has shone with the gleam of constancy and integrity in the performance of duty."

The President, in remarks to U. S. marshals at the rose garden of the White House last August said that the marshals' service and the Presidency are now 175 years old.

He said, "We still have only one President. But where President Washington nominated 13 United States Marshals, Presidents today nominate 91 of the 92 marshals.

Whatever changes time has brought in the marshals' service, one duty remains the same.

As the President said, "The first task of the first marshal is still your task today, the task of maintaining respect for law and order on which our democratic system stands."

The Teacher Pay Raise

Governor McKeithen is struggling hard — meeting with groups of Legislators and conferring with many other people around the state — to find a way to give the public school teachers a pay raise, as he promised when he took office. He should have both public sympathy and support for the effort he is making to meet the most difficult problem he has had to face.

But the action of small groups of teachers in South Louisiana in threatening to strike if they do not get exactly the amount of pay increase they demand is harmful to the teaching profession, to the immediate cause of the teachers, and to the efforts of the Governor. Legislators supporting demands of such teachers help neither the teachers, the state, nor themselves.

These teachers should be told right now by their school boards that if they are dissatisfied with whatever pay raise results from the coming special session of the Legislature, and walk out on strike, they can keep right on walking and make it a permanent jaunt. In other words, they should be informed that no teacher who strikes will be taken back. Apparently these teachers are not acting as part of the Louisiana Teachers Association, but as an "independent" group.

If a pay raise is essential for "the welfare of the children," as the South Louisiana groups proclaim (and that is only one part of the case), then a strike also would be a strike against the welfare of the children. The people of Louisiana would so interpret it.

There are several things to keep in mind concerning the teacher salary case. For example:

1. Public school teachers of Louisiana should have a higher pay scale — always with every possible guarantee that the teacher will be worthy of the pay. Governor McKeithen has proposed a flat $500 a year increase for all public school employes, which he said would require most of new revenue the state can raise at this time. If that is all the money that can be raised, it is all that can be paid.

2. But the question can be raised as to whether a flat across the board increase for everyone employed in school systems is the thing to do. In practical application it is the simple and easy way, but it is not necessarily the best way. No convincing case has been made that we know of as to need for pay increases in non-academic school jobs equal to increases given those actually engaged in instruction and administration of it.

3. From all the information that we have been able to gather, teachers who are just starting in the profession or recently entered it are the ones most in need of a pay increase. In other words, their pay is farther out of line than is the case at the higher brackets of experience.

4. There are some groups of civil service state employes who are just as badly in need of a pay increase as the teachers, and who deserve it. Fortunately, this situation can be handled with a very few million dollars but the fact remains that they should not be ignored in order to favor another group of public employes.

We believe that Governor McKeithen will accept whatever the Legislature offers as to salary increases for teachers — across the board, or larger increases at the beginner level. Increases averaging $500 per year, regardless of how distributed, would, we understand place Louisiana either at the top or barely second to Florida and close to the national average, in the amount of money per capita spent by state government on education. However, Louisiana is quite far down the line nationally in the amount of money spent by local governments from local revenue — parish and city school districts — on education.

Whatever the final decision of the Legislature may be, it must not come through yielding to guns pointed at the backs of Legislators, the Governor, or the people by a few teacher groups in South Louisiana or anywhere else. These teachers who are making so much noise about what they will do if they don't get what they want are only hurting the whole teacher cause. As we said at the start, it should be made clear to them if they want to take a walk, the gate is wide open and will be closed tightly after they move through it.

Future Of Conservatives

Last Tuesday's lamentable mishaps at the polls did not kill conservatism in this country, and neither did they destroy the Republican Party.

Conservatism is a philosophy, a belief, something in the heart as well as the head — and, above all, it is an attitude. It has survived through centuries. In practical political applications it rises and falls, winning and losing battles. But no matter how many battles are lost, the war goes on.

One need only look at the recent history of both major parties to see how fallacious a funeral sermon for the GOP is at this point.

In 1928, when Herbert Hoover swept the uncouth, blunt and not too well informed Al Smith off the boards, national magazines and other publications proclaimed the absolute and complete death of the Democratic Party. It had elected only two Presidents since the Civil War and might as well fold up and quit — so the "experts" said.

Four years later the Democratic Party went into presidential power and stayed there for 20 years.

In 1952 and 1956, the Democratic Party again supposedly was wiped out of existence in presidential elections. In 1956 Adlai Stevenson carried, in addition to Missouri and Arkansas, only Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina. These states are comparable to those Senator Goldwater carried — he added Louisiana and Arizona to the Stevenson list and lost North Carolina.

Yet, four years after the Democratic Party's second Stevenson debacle, the Democrats again were victorious (1960). This time it was with a minority candidate who failed to get a majority of the vote cast, but who soon became almost a godlike personality to tens of millions of people all over the earth.

* * *

If the Republican Party is to revitalize itself by 1968 — and regionally for the 1966 congressional elections when a lot of the riffraff and trash which President Johnson carried into office with him can be swept away through the off-year elections — it must heed what Richard Nixon said Thursday in publicly ripping Governor Nelson Rockefeller to pieces and declaring that Mr. Rockefeller's support for an individual to take National Committee Chairman Dean Burch's place, or any other post in the Republican Party, would be "the kiss of death." Mr. Nixon is right and he has a right to speak. He went down the line 100 per cent for the Goldwater-Miller ticket—30 days of campaigning in 36 states. Any effort to revitalize the GOP around Governor Rockefeller could put the Party into a coma far beyond 1968. Three times in state primaries he pledged himself to support Senator Goldwater if the latter became the nominee. Then he ran out, arousing political contempt around the nation.

* * *

There are several things the South will have to keep in mind, and some of them are going to be quite agonizing, as our own future course develops through the passing of time.

First, the South's political leadership is made up almost entirely of public office holders who prate about conservatism between elections and wouldn't be caught within shooting distance of it at presidential election time.

This includes all Southern U.S. Senators except Thurmond, and especially such Senators as those two supposedly staunch conservatives, Harry Byrd of Virginia and Richard Russell of Georgia. Each either openly or privately gave full suport to the liberal-radical Johnson-Humphrey ticket. Also, all but one or two of our Southern Democratic members of the House of Representatives. None of our Southern Governors were willing to help the Goldwater-conservative cause openly.

So, when we talk about "uniting the South" into a third party and things of that kind we are talking nonsense. Florida, Arkansas, Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee preferred the liberal - radical — Johnson-Humphrey ticket. Why they voted that way is not material now. What is important is that they did.

Next, there is no future in any so-called "free elector" or "unpledged elector" movement or in any thought of trying to center any Southern strength around a Southern segregation candidate such as Governor Wallace of Alabama. He did well in expounding the Southern cause in the Democratic presidential primaries of Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland and made a fine showing. But the "Wallace Democrats" in those states were Johnson-Humphrey Democrats last Tuesday. The precinct returns prove it.

* * *

The World offers no solution to the South's problems and recommends no course for its immediate future except to stand by for the moment. But the South must recognize that segregation or desegregation never can be a successful national political issue from the Southern standpoint — something that The World emphasized in the 1952 presidential campaign two years before the Supreme Court handed down its school desegration decision, and again in 1956 and again in 1960, and this year also.

At the same time both Democrats and Republicans outside the South had better realize that civil rights, meaning civil rights for white people as well as Negroes, still are an issue and that the issue can become hotter and hotter as time passes.

The statement of Louisiana Democratic Committeeman Marshall Brown that the civil rights issue will die down soon and "everyone will be Democrats again" is puerile nonsense. There are two complete titles of the civil rights act yet to be put into effect and President Johnson was careful not to excite the situation during the campaign.

Negro leadership has made it clear that its rank and file remained peaceful only "until after the election."

The uproar in the Republican Party right now is mild to what may come in both Parties — throughout the nation — before the next presidential election rolls around.

Khrush To Get Formal Trial

Banishment For 'Crimes' To Follow

THE NEW SOVIET leaders are preparing to bring deposed Premier Khrushchev to trial.

A major announcement is expected from the Kremlin this week setting the final stage for the coming Khrushchev trial and banishment.

The Soviet leaders' delayed statement on Khrushchev's ouster will list the "crimes" he allegedly committed against the state and the Communist Party.

That's the unpublished estimate of the new Kremlin rulers' intentions prepared by U. S. intelligence authorities and being circulated among members of the National Security Council, highest U. S. policy-making body.

These intelligence experts reported to the Security Council that the latest information from Western diplomats in Moscow clearly indicates the crackdown on Khrushchev is going to be much more severe than originally thought.

They are now predicting Khrushchev will be brought to trial and subjected to the same "vicious denunciation" that he organized and led against Stalin at the 20th Soviet Party Congress.

Like the discredited Stalin, Khrushchev will be loudly denounced for developing the "cult of personality," and then implicated in many of the bloody purges that he accused Stalin of being responsible for in the '30s.

PULLING THE STRINGS — The forthcoming trial and attacks on Khrushchev are being engineered by two Soviet leaders who conducted the purges for Stalin in the days before World War II.

According to the intelligence findings, they are Mikhail A. Suslov, 62-year-old party theoretician and the most powerful man in the Kremlin, and Boris N. Ponomarev, his 59-year-old party co-worker.

Little - known Ponomarev, the Kremlin strategist planning the take - over of the U. S. was assigned the task of preparing the party's case against Khrushchev by Suslov. He also was given the job of explaining Khrushchev's ouster to Communists outside the Red empire.

Rated as one of the key leaders to watch in the power struggle going on within the Kremlin, Ponomarev reportedly is Suslov's No. 1 choice to head up a "worldwide federation of Socialist (Communist) states."

Formation of this new Communist international federation will be proposed by leaders of the Soviet Communist Party at a meeting early in 1965 of all Communist party leaders in the world.

Ponomarev's handling of the party's case against Khrushchev could go a long way in determining this new Soviet leader's future role in both the Kremlin and the worldwide Communist conspiracy.

NO VISITORS — Until his purge trial, Khrushchev is being held under house arrest in a villa just outside of Moscow.

U. S. intelligence authorities report that all requests by Western diplomats to see the former Soviet leader have been refused by Premier Alexei Kosygin and Leonid Brezhnev, the party's First Secretary.

All these Soviet officials will say is that Khrushchev will get his day in court — Russian style.

Other Soviet government sources have revealed to British diplomats that Khrushchev is free to move about his villa, but is constantly accompanied by two KGB (Soviet secret police) to see that nothing happens to the former Kremlin boss.

COMING HOME TO ROOST— Major foreign problems with explosive international ramifications are piling up for President Johnson.

In the past three weeks, the Central Intelligence Agency has sent more than a dozen reports to the President showing that Soviet-made arms have arrived or are en route to Cyprus, the Congo, Bolivia, Algeria, Indonesia, Cambodia and North Viet Nam.

In the two latter countries the arms, although manufactured in Russia and Czechoslovakia, have been delivered by Chinese Communist technicians.

Arms shipments to Cyprus by the new Soviet leaders include anti-aircraft guns and tanks flown to the Mediterranean island aboard Russian cargo planes.

A fleet of Soviet missile-torpedo boats, similar to those sent to Cuba, are reported en route to Cyprus aboard Soviet bloc ships. Cyprus naval personnel are being trained in their use both in the Soviet Union and Cairo.

In Cambodia, Soviet anti-aircraft guns and six MIG-17s have shown up on newly-constructed airfields in the interior of that country. The jet fighters were flown from Russia, with several stops in Communist China for refueling.

The new Soviet arms are believed to be part of the Kremlin's strategy to discourage the U. S. from resorting to a policy of "hot pursuit" to chase attacking Viet Cong Communist guerrillas across the South Viet Nam border into Cambodia. The Viet Cong are using Cambodia as a sanctuary.

According to White House insiders, the President has reacted to these foreboding developments by asking intelligence, diplomatic and military authorities to gather additional information on Soviet intentions in these areas.

Rockefeller Gets Role Of Revenge

IT WILL TAKE some time for the statisticians and the analysts to make any real sense out of Tuesday's Republican debacle. Obviously, it was not mass hypnotism on the part of President Johnson that won him his victory. The Republicans have already begun to call it "Rockefeller's revenge" in recognition of the master role played by the New York governor in creating the image of Senator Goldwater which bemused so many of the voters.

Others note that Mr. Johnson's sweep parallels that of Warren Gamaliel Harding's in 1920 and see some significance in this. Certainly a case can be made for the theory that in both instances the American voter wanted "normalcy" more than anything else. The Goldwater candidacy disturbed him — particularly when his most common - place act was labelled "radical" by those who but a few years ago took great umbrage at those who used the word as a term of opprobrium.

WHAT THE MONDAY morning quarterbacks offer in explanation may interest the historians. Those who must plan the future of the Republican Party can allow themselves but little of this luxury. In the weeks ahead, they must come to definite conclusions and then act on them. Will the GOP jettison the Goldwater men now in control of the party machinery? Will it declare war on the Rockefellers and others who worked slickly in the just-concluded campaign to destroy what chances the conservatives had? Your guess is as good as mine.

But as the shock of the landslide wears away, at least one significant fact emerges for Republican scrutiny. The Goldwater vote represents the minimum, bedrock conservative base in the United States. Whereas the pundits depicted the Goldwater forces as "a fringe of a fringe," the conservative vote in the United States represented almost 40 per cent of the electorate. No matter how you look at it, this hardly can be brushed off as an inconsequential faction.

The Republican Party can either decide to reject the well-organized but out-gunned Goldwater legions and to take up where it left off with Rockefeller - liberal forces. Or it can start building immediately on the conservative muscle which was overcome only after the most sustained effort of press and the Establishment that this writer has ever witnessed. In retrospect it is amazing that Senator Goldwater was able to survive the barrage of fear-mongering which was his opposition's primary weapon.

BETWEEN NOW and November, 1968, the work must be done. The GOP has been badly beaten. But it starts out with a solid following which, because of its size, makes the term "extremist" obviously ridiculous. Conservatism is a force in America, but it has yet to be directed properly. The past campaign demonstrated how futile is any uncoordinated political effort.

If the Republicans have the courage to accept their defeat and the intelligence to realize that it will be the aim of the liberal Establishment to impose the belief that only a swing to the left can bring victory in the future, that will be a giant first step. The more perceptive of the professionals in the party are aware of this. But they know that the pressures will be great to toss out the baby with the bath water.

The proof of the conservative pudding — to switch the metaphor — is in the election results. Those who tried to flee the conservative designation fared as badly or worse than the conservatives. The one upset victory was in California where George Murphy, a conservative, was able to vanquish Pierre Salinger in a state in which Democrats outnumber Republicans by 3 to 2. Mr. Salinger struck all the liberal poses. He grasped firmly both President Johnson's and John F. Kennedy's coattails. Yet he lost.

THIS WILL BE cold comfort to the battered Republican National Committee. But it can note that there was a modicum of unity in the California GOP. And it can add that no party fighting intramurally can win an election. Conservatism was not on trial in this election. No one gave its voice a chance to be heard. Many who responded to conservatism's hidden appeal did it more by instinct.

If the temporarily demoralized GOP sees the past election as a mandate for a return to "me-tooism," then it is condemning the party to another three decades of impotence and futility. This may seem like whistling in the dark, but past history vindicates the point of view. In 1856, the infant Republican Party sustained a bad defeat — but persisted. In a sense, the Republican Party of 1964 is a new party. It deserves another chance.

No-Silver Coins Are Considered

"WE HAVE REACHED the point," says Dr. Vladimir Clain-Stefanelli, curator of numismatics at the Smithsonian Institute, "where silver is too precious to be used as a coinage material."

"The main issue is not whether to reduce the silver content in our coins," adds a U.S. Government expert, "but rather the choice between reducing it or eliminating it altogether."

The odds are becoming overwhelming that silver soon will begin to disappear from our coins — dimes, quarters, 50-cent pieces, even silver dollars.

The U.S. Treasury is now midway through a one - year study of all U.S. coins — the first comprehensive reappraisal of U.S. coinage in our history. It will not report to the new 89th Congress until next spring, but almost surely one of its major proposals will be legislation to reduce or ultimately to eliminate silver from our coins.

Substitutes being seriously considered by authorities range from aluminum to zirconium to plastic.

BEHIND OUR LOOMING scarcity of silver lies one key force: skyrocketing production of coins which contain silver to meet our acute coin shortage. Production of coins is now running at 7 billion a year against 1.5 billion only five years ago.

Behind our coin shortage, in turn, lie these major forces: a growing population; record spending; profusion of vending machines; an all-time peak use of small-change sales taxes; and most important, a soaring number of coin collectors, hoarders and speculators.

Reflecting the law of demand-supply — and speculation — the price of silver has now risen on the commodity futures market above the standard $1.29 an ounce price maintained by the U.S. Treasury.

In effect, this means that speculators are betting the Treasury will be forced to halt its $1.29 "bargain" sales of silver. They are gambling that by March it could become profitable to melt down "cartwheels" — including processing costs — to extract the silver they contain; that before the end of next year it could become profitable to melt down dimes, quarters and 50-cent pieces.

It's more unlikely that the speculators will win their bets, but we are moving into the year's biggest shopping and coin-absorbing season — Thanksgiving to Christmas.

THERE IS THE threat that in this period our coin shortage could reach crisis proportions and speculation in silver might skyrocket.

What are the facts behind today's silver problem?

Fact one is that, throughout the world, silver is being used up much faster than it is being produced and existing stockpiles are being drained. In the 1964 fiscal year alone, the U.S. Mint used 114 million ounces, three times what the Mint used four years ago — and this amount could nearly double in 1965. Yet we produce only 40 million ounces a year. Total consumption of silver in the free world is now twice world production. Fact two is that collecting and hoarding of coins have grown to such proportions that the U.S. Treasury has been forced to swamp the nation with coins. Hoarders are now literally secreting hundreds of millions of silver dollars and Kennedy 50-cent pieces. If we hold to today's projected production rate, the Treasury's entire supply of silver — 1.35 billion ounces — would be wiped out in 3½ years.

Fact three is that industry's use of silver has been climbing in recent years as new uses for the metal have been discovered in photography, electronics, the areospace industry.

To conserve its silver resources, the Treasury is now withdrawing silverbacked $1 bills and replacing them with gold-backed Federal Reserve notes. To dampen coin speculation, Congress this year passed a law freezing the 1964 date on all new coins and coin production is on an emergency schedule.

The irony, though, is that the crash production to meet the coin crisis is intensifying the silver crisis. Increasingly likely is the minting of U.S. coins with less silver in them — or none at all.

HAPPINESS

He is happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home — Goethe.

ONLY A WORD

Only a word may leave a sting
To wound a kind and loving heart,
It may be but a trifling thing
That cuts as deeply as a dart.
Only a word may stir up strife
And quickly cause a bitter hate;
The deepest sorrow make for life,
Then may repentance come too late.
Only a word may be a ray
Of sunshine in some dismal room,
And help to brighten many a day
Which would be spent in gloom.
Only a word may lead the way
From tortured keen as any pain —
May help some weary one to pray,
And teach them faith, hope, and charity.

CIVIL RIGHTS TOO?

Our government under the Johnson administration gets all upset when it suspects even remotely that a Negro has been deprived of his so-called civil rights.

But how about this?

The past week the U.S. Air Force radio and television stations in Tripoli, Libya, were accused of deleting from programs they carry all references to Jews and Judaism out of "respect" for the feelings of the Libyan community. Admitting to such censorship taking place, the Defense Department says there are '"no plans to change the policy." The department spokesman said there is a self-imposed policy — carried out at the discretion of base commanders in all countries where the armed forces have such installations — to censor any items to which the host country might take exception on religious, social, political and other grounds.

The censorship came to light when Jewish airmen wrote New York's Senator Jacob K. Javits. And to top it off, the New York Herald Tribune quoted Col. B. M. Kilgore, chief of the information services division of the AF in Washington, as saying if it came to choosing between a good relationship with the Libyan government and nondiscrimination against our men, "the national interest comes first."

One of the servicemen who wrote Javits commented, "I am wearing the uniform of my country to keep our basic rights free, and one of them is, of course, the Freedom of Religion. I, my family and the other Jewish military here are giving up the basic freedom we are guarding."

How two-faced can our government be?

THE NATION

Not by her houses neat
Nor by her well-built cities,
Not yet again
Neither by dock or street
A nation stands or falls
But by her men.
Not by the joiner's skill
Nor work in wood or stone,
Comes good to her or ill,
But by her men alone.

WONDERS

A reader wonders if Khrushchev now will raise roses, or push up daisies.

IDLE RAMBLINGS

TO PREFER the rose over any other flower is a sign of conformity and lack of imagination. Dandelions are far more inspiring.

ON SPIES — Britain has the most handsome spies, Russia the dullest looking ones — and America the most expensive.

THE SUREST way for a girl to make an enemy of a man over 40 is to hesitate when he starts to kiss her — and then turn her cheek.

INCIDENTALLY — to get along with women, the thing a man needs most to remember is to call them "ladies" if they are under 25, and '"girls" if they are over 25.

A SUCCESSFUL executive is the one who got ahead by the memos he didn't write.

AIN'T IT SO — This one was told by John Bluck. Seems that one of his boys asked him the qualifications of a U.S. Senator. John told him, then added "this is true unless your name is Kennedy or Salinger (referring to Bobby Kennedy and Pierre Salinger). In answering the question either on a test or on his homework, the boy added the part about Kennedy and Salinger. The teacher must have agreed— she marked it ok. So. . .after all it does pay to know about current history.

Many Roads

Stray roads lead to Heaven;
Those with fearless eyes

PROBLEMS — Highway troopers in Oklahoma were wondering, it seems, why their high - speed cars couldn't catch some bootleggers when they got into a race. Then they finally found out: The bootleggers had purchased the old highway patrols cars and fixed them up.

MEN ARE UGLIER

Did you know girls are smarter than boys? We're sure this will scarcely come as news to girls of any age or to married men. It may, however, shake up boys and young men, although even they must have a gnawing and growing suspicion that they are being consistently outsmarted by what in the mid-Victorian era was euphemistically known as the fair sex.

The latest proof of this, if any is needed, is provided by tests given 750,000 California students in the fifth, eighth and eleventh grades. These tests — steady now, fellows — showed that with the single exception of mathematics in the eleventh grade group, girls excell boys in scholastic ability and all "basic" skills.

Being a male, we're not smart enough to know exactly what "basic skills" include. But we'll bet our miserable IQ against whatever is small enough to make a fair bet that one of these skills is the instinctive good sense to leave something tough like mathematics to the man.

DID YOU KNOW — That although most of the driving is done by day, night makes you three times as likely to be involved in a fatal accident.

QUOTABLE NOTABLES: "A hero is an ordinary man who is brave five minutes longer." — Ralph Waldo Emerson.

MINORITY GROUP —Did you ever stop to realize that some 25,000,000 of us who voted for Goldwater now comprise the biggest minority group in the land. Maybe we can now get help from the federal government and some surprising Supreme Court rulings. . .

PET PEEVES

Everyone, we suppose, has a pet peeve or two. Have you ever listed yours? It might be the guy who comes into the office all smiles and joking every morning, or the waitress who insists upon bringing you your complete breakfast before getting around to a cup of coffee.

At a recent meeting of business executives at the University of Georgia, they were asked to list principal ones. And these might be taken as good suggestions to young people coming into business today who want to get ahead.

Most of all, the busy executive says his pet one is the fellow who comes into the office to see him and doesn't get to the point. Then, said another, is the fellow who comes to the point and won't leave it. Third, there's the man or woman who has to be told again and again to do something. Next came the individual who is not receptive to change.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK — "After seeing the results of last Tuesday's presidential election, it almost makes you afraid from now on to trust the American voters at the polls."

DID YOU KNOW

The safest day for driving a car is Tuesday. One in five Americans killed or hurt in a traffic accident is a victim of Saturday driving. The second most dangerous day is Sunday. . . .

If you have a secret, don't tell it to the federal government. Uncle Sam already has enough of his own to keep. His agencies are reported to have on file some three billion secret or restricted documents.

UNUSUAL LAWS

There's always some unusual laws. But we believe some of the most unique came to light the other day out in Texas concerning what you can do and can't do in an election.

One law, for example, forbids any kind of betting on the election. In fact you can't bet a cup of coffee on the outcome. The law in question read: "If any person shall . . . wager or bet in any manner whatever upon the results of any such election, he shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $1,000 or be confined in jail for not less than 20 nor more than 60 days or both.' '

The real shocker is "if an election judge bets on the outcome, he can get a five-year jolt in the state prison."

Another law still in effect there prohibits the carrying of a bowie knife within one-half mile of any polling place. Then, too, voters in Texas are strictly forbidden to carry about his or her person, a pistol, dirk, dagger, slung shot, sword cane, spear, brass knuckle, of any other kind of a knife made and manufactured for the purpose of offense or defense.

But the best one is this: Your boss could be fined $500 for failing to allow you to take time off t ovote.

TWIN CITIES WEEK IN REVIEW

Guessing Urged On Main Story

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Here's a guessing game for your Sunday morning amusement. Play fair and don't read ahead for the answer. What was last week's biggest story?

Regular readers, if any, get three guesses; infrequent ones get only one try; if you never read this, you don't get any and it serves you right.

SUSPENSE

TYLER

Not very surprising, however, was the way it went, either in the Twin City area or nationwide. With the U.S.A. going virtually all the way with L. B. J., Ouachita Parish, along with the Fifth District, Louisiana and other southern states went only part way, and that grudgingly.

The Fifth District ratio gave the Tory candidate a 4-to-1 lead, while in Ouachita Parish it was around 5-to-1 and something like 6-to-1 in Monroe, with each area reporting a record or near-record turnout. (This opinionated Minute Man was champing at the polls at five minutes past 6 a.m. and found approximately 40 persons already ahead of him. Activity was intense in many precincts almost throughout the day.)

In events last week leading up to Operation Landslide, Fifth District U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman, himself a Democrat, again attacked Democratic Party campaign tactics. He charged "blackmail to coerce support of a political candidate."

NO NAME

Without naming him, the popular and influential foe of foreign aid and other things federal, took issue with U.S. Sen. Russell B. Long who, in a Sunday television talk, indicated Johnson would be inclined to help states which supported him.

Passman said he was "frightened by the prospect of future years if voters allow themselves to be bought or coerced into voting against what's right."

Perhaps it's all part of an immutable national life cycle. At any rate, readers of history needn't look far for parallels. Hopefully, forces at work in the country today won't have the effect they've had in other times. Maybe times really can change so thoroughly through material progress that principles thought to be enduring and unalterable by circumstance or environment are without force.

Maybe. But that'll be the day Santa Claus dies.

So much for the sob sister stuff. Talking about politics inclines one to "shooting from the lip." Besides, our form of government, it's said, gives every man the right to become his own oppressor. So be it.

Climbing is not the only way to get to the top of an oak tree. You can always sit on an acorn.

Passman, of course, was not opposed, but Democrats and Republicans (both of the Southern variety, so you couldn't go wrong) were scrambling for parish school board seats in wards 10 and five.

SCHOOL BOARD

Mrs. George M. Snellings Jr., wife of a well-known Monroe attorney (she's a licensed though non-practicing barrister herself) and the mother of three, became the first GOP-ite to attain a slot in the organization. Mrs. Snellings won a solid victory, leading a field which also included two Democrats.

Capturing the other ward 10 seat in a nip and tuck tussle with fellow Demo H. W. Tolson was local printing executive Milton W. Ford. His final majority, based on complete but unofficial returns, was a mere 24 votes, as he saw a much wider lead very nearly evaporate when the last box, a big one, reported around 11:30 p.m.

In ward five, where only a single spot was open, Democrat Bill Norris outpolled Dr. Claude K. Smith handily enough, though it was hardly the stampede some had forecast.

Tuesday's ballot also included a fantastic array of proposed constitutional amendments, 41 in number and testing the mettle of even the bravest voter with a demanding trial of optical quickness and manual dexterity. And, finally, after all these years of innumerable revisions on the state's Magna Carta, one of those revisions certified the need for rewriting the document itself. It passed convincingly.

In fact, the World was gratified to learn that in its coverage area voters generally supported the stances recommended by the paper on each of the 41.

Other amendments passed, from which locally salubrious effects may be expected, are numbers eight and 37.

The former endorses formation of a Red River Waterways District, an inland project aimed at linkage of most major north Louisiana cities, Monroe included, in an economically-envigorating network of navigable waterways.

The much-discussed No. 37, of course, will make firm in 1965 Monroe's city limits, for school taxing purposes, and hopefully eliminate reported instances of double taxation.

Future annexation, that is, will not obligate annexees (that may not be a real word, but you know what I mean) to take up and participate in the retirement of city school construction bonds previously approved by city voters.

Both amendments found great favor in the Twin Cities and the parish and rolled to victory in the state.

POLITICS

Still dabbling our notes in politics, which as you've by now surmised, accounted for most of the week's news, we turn again to dashing developments and deeds of derring-do in connection with the state teacher pay raise.

(We've been accused in this column of taking a flip attitude toward teachers problems in seeking to realize their first increase in some eight years. Actually we're quite sympathetic, have a vested interest in fact, though with a long - running story of this type to the new angles and new phraseology necessary to describe similar subject matter may be construed as something other than objectivity. Objectivity, it must be apparent if you've read us much, is not an issue and the tenor of our remarks, in most cases, is purposely light, even light-headed, if you please. Forgive?)

Monroe's solons, Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and George Wood were in the capital city Friday as participants in one of a series of sessions with the governor, scheduled by the chief executive for exposition of his plans concerning an upcoming legislative call.

Teacher pay naturally is the major windmill marked for tilting at the 15-day special session Gov. McKeithen will commence Nov. 16. He announced an idea for "broadening the base" of a state sales tax as a means of raising approximately $30 million, which would provide probably about half of the pay boost teachers have asked.

INTRIGUING

Finding teachers such an intriguing topic, follow now into a look at the week's school board meetings. Both city and parish policy makers assembled Tuesday. Separately, of course. You needn't be alarmed.

Monroe boardmen decided to consider: (1) An increase in liability insurance coverage, up to $50,000, on individuals involved in school bus accidents, and (2.) Costs connected with a new state law dealing with retirement for certain categories of teachers over the age of 50.

The latter item also was reviewed by the parish board and both systems anticipate possible unbudgeted expenditures of amounts in the neighborhood of $20,000. Only the idea was the Legislature's. They didn't appropriate funds.

Here's other news you might have missed:

A major food collection drive, sponsored by area churches, was set underway and will run through Dec. 15 in a fall roundup to gather groceries for the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home here.

STATISTICS

Statistics provided the paper set food requirements at the home for a single meal, breakfast for example, as: 30 dozen eggs, 300 biscuits, four sides of bacon and 12 tall cans of fruit juice, which, believe it or not, is more than is consumed in the Tyler household, long a record holder.

Tom Wafer, 716 McCain Dr., Monroe, was elected Thursday as president of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing in America. Wafer is probably the first man without a mustache ever to achieve the distinction.

First graduates of West Monroe High School, the class of 1954, held a reunion and got moving an alumni association.

The World In Focus

SOUTHERN PARTY BOLT

By John Cale

Solid South

FOR YEARS, the Republican Party in planning its campaign strategy wrote off the South as being solid for the Democrats.

So last Tueday's election brings up a new question: why the big switch all the way from Louisiana to Georgia? The answer to that one reveals a bedrock of sentiment that may be the reason former Vice President Richard Nixon appeared to be whistling "Dixie" at a post-election news conference.

NIXON

Others in the GOP had little reason to whistle any tunes except dirges in a minor key. Michigan Governor George Romney managed to score a victory in his state, but it's hard to forecast at this point whether he will aspire to Republican Party leadership prior to the 1968 nominations. There's another problem, too, in that Michigan holds elections every two years. So 1966 could see further changes in the state with the big thumb.

Disappointment

MANY HAD hoped the campaign of 1964 would serve as a clear-cut presentation of political views along liberal versus conservative lines. Perhaps this sort of contest was implied. But both Democrats and Republicans avoided too close an attachment with elements that had their political branding irons hot.

For example, Senator Barry Goldwater's vote against the Civil Rights Act might have been the single stroke that saw him sweep the South into the GOP column. But was this a big factor in the overall pitch for conservatism he has been making for years?

President Johnson's strategy built around the so-called "Great Society" might have spelled out the basis of today's liberal politics — if the President had chosen to outline it during the campaign. But this entire area of politics took a back seat to the fact that under the present administration there was "peace and prosperity." Though these more or less ideal conditions are subject to change without notice, better than 42 million voters turned out to say they weren't ready to serve that notice on the Democratic administration at the polls.

IN CONTRAST, some 26½ million Americans expressed a desire for a change. Excluding Goldwater's home state of Arizona, the Republican Party scored victories in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina — all states of the old "Solid South," solidly Democratic in former years.

It's ironic that the southern vote for "change" can only be interpreted by the national Democrats that the South must want "war and depression" since it voted against "peace and prosperity."

Since things went as they did, this is a political fact of life we'll just have to live with. It's the wrong message, but that's the way the victors are apt to read it.

GOP Future

LANDSLIDE victories pose a threat to a real two-party system since such a strong expression of sentiment is apt to undermine opposition in principle. The expression, "if you can't like 'em, join 'em," applies as well today as it did in 1936 when Franklin Roosevelt swept every state except Maine and Vermont. And the Republican Party might prove to be just as divided on the question, "What now?"

THE CONSERVATIVES say President Johnson's victory was only a temporary setback. The moderates argued that it proved Senator Barry M. Goldwater's philosophy was out of step with the times.

Goldwater himself said all the election showed was that it would take "longer than we thought" to put the conservatives in power.

He told a news conference Wednesday that the conservative cause had not been hurt by the Johnson victory. More than 25 million persons voted for the GOP ticket, Goldwater noted, and "that's a lot of votes." But he indicated that he expected the moderate wing to battle him for party leadership.

WILLIAM E. Miller, the GOP vice presidential candidate, echoed some of Goldwater's statements. Miller said he does not feel the Republican defeat means the voters repudiated the conservative philosophy.

He also attacked John B. Martin, Republican national committeeman from Michigan, for demanding that national chairman Dean Burch resign in the wake of the defeat

Miller said if Martin "had done things our way, we might have done better."

But liberal Senator Clifford P. Case, of New Jersey said the defeat will mean the end of the Goldwater leadership. "I don't think the party will follow him," Case said when asked today what would happen if Goldwater attempted to remain as head of the GOP.

CASE SAID he believed that the party soon would no longer have a "single head." He said he felt new leaders would take over — some of them "not now known to the people."

In California, Representative Bob Wilson, the GOP congressional campaign committee chairman, predicted a three-way fight for party leadership.

He said "the Romney people, the Taft people in Ohio and Nixon" all would be involved in the intraparty contest.

Other Shakeups

WHILE BALLOT marking was heavy in this country last week, not-so-orderly means were set in motion in at least two other countries to bring about a change in leadership.

Crown Prince Faisal assumed the role of King of Saudi Arabia on Monday, replacing his ailing brother, King Saud. While there was no revolt in this case, Saud was reportedly opposed to any more that would strip him of his title. Sources said he would probably be exiled on a general pension to one of the Europen countries.

FAISAL HAD acted as Saud's prime minister on and off for years. Today's announcement was not a surprise.

Middle Eastern capitals had buzzed this weekend with rumors Faisal was about to assume the Saudi crown.

Faisal's accession to the throne is expected to be a stabilizing factor in the oil-rich but backward kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

SAUD HAD long been accused of living in the past, of squandering the nation's oil revenues on pleasure and palaces. Faisal is considered more businesslike, more forward-looking, more interested in building the schools, roads, factories and hospitals that Saudi Arabia badly needs.

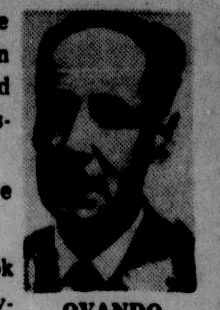
LECHIN

At the end of the previous week, ex-President Victor Paz Estenssoro announced that skirmishes over the country had been put down and that his government was intact.

Apparently, his assumption was not based on sound facts. Tin miners and students in several cities other than the capital had been rallied by Juan Lechin — boss of the country's miners.

As a result of the unrest, Paz was forced to step down and flee the country early last week. A military junta made up of Generals Rene Barrientos and Alfredo Ovando took over in an arrangement that lasted only an hour and 20 minutes.

During his brief "presidential term," Ovando had been booed and hissed by the crowd in the square, incensed because of the protection that troops under his command provided for ousted ex-President Victor Paz Estenssoro when he fled to Peru Wednesday.



OVANDO

"He (Ovando) let Paz escape," the crowd chanted.

IN THIS atmosphere Barrientos took sole charge of Bolivia's new military government Thursday with a pledge to hold "democratic elections . . . in the least possible time."

A CROWD of about 20,000 persons massed in Murrillo Square roared its approval of Barrientos' announcement that he was taking over the junta. Barrientos, who was Paz's vice president, masterminded the revolution that overthrew the president this week from his headquarters in Cochabamba, Bolivia's second city. He came to La Paz Thursday to take part in the new government.

Top Of Agenda

APPARENTLY, the Soviet Union has placed at the top of its agenda some sort of reconciliation between its new governmental officials and Red China.

A meeting that opened during the latter part of the week in Moscow saw Red China's Premier Chou En-lai and other foreign communist chiefs assembled for talks.

The appeal published in Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, was clearly intended to serve as the keynote for the first big gathering of Communist rulers since Nikita Khrushchev's downfall last month.

"THE COMMUNIST Party of the Soviet Union calls for an implacable struggle against the appearance and survivals of any kind of nationalism and chauvinism and against tendencies toward national narrowmindedness and discrimination," Pravda's editorial said.

In their bitter feud with the Chinese during Khrushchev's time, the Soviets accused the Chinese of fomenting a schism in the Communist world with nationalist, chauvinist policies. The charge has been indirectly aimed at some East European Communists, most notably the Romanians.

THE CHINESE premier headed a seven-man delegation to the celebration Saturday commemorating the 47th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

It will be the first high-level meeting between the Soviet and Chinese Communists since peace talks between the two parties broke down in Moscow in July 1963. After that the conflict between the two nations sharpened and split the world Communist movement.

Observation

FOR WHAT it was worth, former British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home called on the Soviet Union at the eve of the Kremlin confab to recognize that the balance of power in Asia is shifting toward Red China.

If this was a voice from the British "loyal opposition" trying to drive a wedge into a communist realignment, it would prove about as effective as defeated vice presidential candidate William Miller calling on Hubert Humphrey to oppose Medicare when Congress goes into session again.

Back Home

LOUISIANA GOVERNOR John J. McKeithen, officially neutral in the national election, was concerned during the week mostly with the approaching November 16 special session of the Legislature.

The governor spent most of last week meeting with members of the House and Senate to get their reaction to his proposals for financing a partial teacher pay raise.

Although the administration has said it will implement only half of the $1,000 a year pay raises backed by the United School Committee, pressure appears to be mounting in the legislature to give teachers a full pay raise.

Three legislators already have said they are prepared to fight for full implementation of the teacher pay raise package.

They are Representatives James A. Moreau of New Orleans and Parey Branton of Webster Parish and Senator Danny Roy Moore of Homer. Other legislators also have voiced support for giving teachers what they have asked.

ONE administration floor leader, Representative Lantz Womack of Franklin Parish, said he did not expect any major problems in the session, which probably will last 15 days.

Several legislators already have come forth with their own plans for financing the teacher pay raise.

MEANWHILE, outgoing U. S. Representative Gillis Long suggested that there might be money for the state in the federal anti-poverty program, though he did not cite any connection with the teachers' pay raise issue.

Long said Wednesday Louisiana should hire a coordinator to handle its relations with the federal anti-poverty program.

Long, who lost his bid for renomination to his central Louisiana congressional seat, has been mentioned for appointment as a top man in the national anti-poverty program.

He said 37 states already have hired coordinators — a full time job with the salary split by the state and the federal government.

He emphasized the program is not a welfare scheme.

"THE ONLY things it gives are jobs and opportunity," Long said. "I hope Louisiana won't be left behind by its inaction."

He said 20 regional training centers will be created across the country, and Louisiana would be a prime location. "If someone would try."

Optimism

ABOUT THE only lighter moment to be found during the events of the week was actor-politician George Murphy's account of how he beat roving candidate Pierre Salinger in the race for U. S. Senator from California.

Murphy, who danced duets with Fred Astaire and played papa to Shirley Temple and Elizabeth Taylor is the first movie actor to achieve so high a national office.

HE DIDN'T attempt to downplay his image as a good-guy song-and-dance man. In fact, says he: "It did me plenty of good. People remembered me from the late, late show. Don't forget, I was always the good guy."

But Republican George's solid victory over Democrat Pierre in a race rated a toss-up indicates voters didn't accept the image at face value. Murphy is a successful business executive and veteran behind-the-scenes political figure.

HE RAN a smooth, relentless campaign, based on advice from his father, Mike Murphy, who trained early Olympic teams. The elder Murphy's counsel: "Get off first, run a fast race, and never look behind."

A Troubled Land

FOR 2-YEAR-OLD Robin Warne, home for much of her life has been Phu Vinh, 80 miles south of Saigon in the Mekong Delta of South Viet Nam. She and her parents, W. Robert and Susanna Warne, are in their front yard in the picture at left. A small Buddhist altar is in the background. Warne represents the U.S. State Department's Agency for International Development (AID) in Vinh Pinh Province. Holding Robin, (center) Mrs. Warne looks over a commissary delivery at the grass air strip two miles outside Phu Vinh. She always picks up supplies and mail when the plane makes its twice-a-week U.S. Army "milk flight" to supply the Americans in the isolated Mekong Delta community. To keep in touch with the people of Vinh Binh Province, W. Robert Warne works with them in the field, (right) where he can listen to their needs and complaints. Here he is helping a farmer harvest rice. Ninety per cent of the province's population are rice farmers, and about half of them are tenant workers. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)

When trouble brews and war drums are beaten in far-off lands, the first rule of order is to evacuate the wives and children of Americans. But there are some families for whom this is different. They go where the trouble is — father, wife, children.

Typical of such families is the W. Robert Warne family, now on duty in Phu Vinh, capital of Vinh Binh province, in the Mekong Delta of Viet Nam. Rob Warne is 26 and is assigned by the U.S. State Department as its representative in the province of 20,000. He works for the department's Agency for International Development.

It is no desk job. He is involved in almost every aspect of Vietnamese life, working always to translate into living terms the philosophy behind American involvement in Viet Nam, and for that matter, all of Southeast Asia. This requires that his wife, Susanna, play her role. Even Robin, who is 2 and was brought to Viet Nam as an infant, contributes to her daddy's over-all effort since participation of the whole family demonstrates dramatically the willingness of Americans to live with the Vietnamese and share the burden of the war.

The danger of war is always present for the Warnes, who have been in Phu Vinh, 80 miles south of Saigon, nearly two years. Recently, a Viet Cong infiltrator or sympathizer tossed a grenade into a house one block from Warne's, wounding three American soldiers. Rob has been involved in at least 10 incidents — ambushes, exploding mines and ground fire — in visiting the hamlets of the province.

His role really is that of a frontline diplomat because now the Americans are engaged in a job of persuasion. It is part of the "New Life Hamlets" project in which Vietnamese are being induced to voluntarily work toward achieving long-term goals. Instead of a hamlet with a mud wall topped with barbed wire, the idea is to build those things which make the people feel secure and strong. The Vietnamese decide what they need and want in their hamlet, not Rob. But he helps direct them toward achieving it. The most popular projects have been schools, wells, canals, bridges, maternity centers, first-aid stations and agricultural development. In working toward this goal, Rob may on one hand be in a rice field with a small farmer, listening to his problems. Or Rob and Susie may be conducting classes in English.

How To Help Our Diplomats

Farewell To Foggy Bottom: Problems At State

EDITOR'S NOTE — Ellis O. Briggs, author of the new book "Farewell to Foggy Bottom," recently retired after 40 years in the U. S. diplomatic service during which he served as ambassador to eight countries on three continents. Against this background, he details the problems piled upon diplomats by their own countrymen, and offers suggestions for improving the diplomatic service.

By ELLIS O. BRIGGS
Written For
The Associated Press

The ambassador, as the chief representative of his government abroad, has become the harassed American, struggling with the twin hazards of Washington planning and absentee management, and with almost as many kibitzers and crusaders underfoot as there are at an evangelist rally.

Thus the American Embassy in London gives shelter to 44 separate agencies of the federal government. They waved megaphones like coxswains at a Henley regatta, and they have 44 pipelines carrying their clamor back to Washington, where the result is rarely mistaken for the voice of America.

HOUSES MANY

Thus the American Embassy in Mogadiscio houses over three score propagandists, handout specialists, Peace Corps volunteers, Pentagon attaches, and CIA agents, all ostensibly helping the ambassador wreak good on the bewildered Somali tribesmen.

Thus the American Embassy in Athens is host to a unit of the United States Coast Guard, protecting our merchant marine from barratry on the Acropolis, and to a dozen representatives of the Agency for International Development, including a director and a program officer, for a program that ended three years ago.

A penetrating look at these mysteries has recently been taken by a subcommittee of the Committee on Government Operations of the United States Senate. Its 16-page study is entitled "The American Ambassador." During nearly two years of non-partisan investigation, this small and efficient subcommittee, headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., took testimony from the secretary of state and his ranking assistants, and from ten American ambassadors, with service all the way from Rio de Janeiro to Moscow, and from Vienna to the Congo.

TOP PREY

Distilling from hundreds of pages of testimony the essence of the ambassadorial problem, the subcommittee concludes that no profession in the world is as much a prey to deep thinkers, backseat drivers and dogooders as is that of diplomacy, and that if American chiefs of mission are to survive the ministrations of these amateurs and volunteers, they must have authority commensurate with the responsibilities they are expected to discharge. The solution is as simple as that, but it is possible of realization unless the President himself is prepared to take action. Recent presidents have been stronger on rhetoric and executive orders than they have in supporting their envoys.

The modern ambassador, in the words of the subcommittee report, is expected to perform his functions "with less independence and less policy authority than ambassadors once exercised, and with far more people underfoot ... and he is expected to serve as leader and coordinator of his country team, while lacking power or even much influence over the budgets, the personnel systems, the reporting requirements, and the operating policies of many of the field staffs theoretically subordinate to him."

This goes to the heart of the problem. Although Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy both sought to fortify the ambassador by declaring his pre-eminence over all the other official Americans in a given country, their orders did little to make the authority of the ambassador effective. The 44 Washington agencies are still permitted to dispute with the State Department the right of the latter to have the final word on the conduct of foreign affairs, and the representatives abroad of those agencies, while subordinate to the ambassador in matters of protocol and on ceremonial occasions, still have wide latitude in their activities and operations.

The ambassadorial authority should extend to funds and personnel, including the budgets of other agencies and the assignment of the key officials from those agencies who are to serve in the ambassador's establishment.

BE AWARE

No ambassador in his right mind would seek, for example, to control the mechanics of the CIA activities in his country. The ambassador should, however, be fully aware of the objectives of those operations, and apprised of the value of the assets it is proposed to risk to attain them. And if the hazard seems in the ambassador's judgment to outweight the possible gain, he should be in a position to veto the operation. Otherwise the executive-coordinating role of the ambassador is meaningless, and he may soon find himself sitting on a bomb, with both the fuse and the detonator in the hands of another American official or agency.

Again, the ambassador should have the authority not only to remove individual members of his mission whose performance he considers ineffective, but he should possess in addition the far more important power to trim excess field staffs, and to abolish or consolidate overlapping jobs, including those abundant slots in the machinery of administration. As the subcommittee observers, "understaffing can be the best staffing; if officers have more to do than they can possibly do, they are more likely to do what is important."

DON'TS

Some impressive don'ts are listed. The subcommittee would place a long-overdue curb on special Washington emissaries zooming hither and thither, hectoring an ambassador at his post and trying to paddle his canoe for him. Those visitors often succeed only in rocking the boat, or in punching a hole in the bottom. Such commuter trips "are now clearly overdone, and a serious consequence is to erode the prestige of an ambassador in the eyes of the local government."

Instead, the subcommittee recommends that ambassadors should return to Washington more frequently—two or three times a year at least—in order to re-immerse themselves in the stream of policymaking, and to make sure that each embassy abroad is in step with the procession at home.

A "clamp-down on the open mouth policy" is likewise advocated, so that it is the ambassador accredited by the president who is spokesman for the American government in a given country "and not a troupe of visiting firemen." Once the firemen have departed, the report notes, the ambassador may face the "unnecessary and difficult job" of tidying up and putting together the pieces scattered about by his heedless and too articulate visitors.

The ambassador also needs more effective support in the Department of State—what the report calls "a strong rear echelon at headquarters"—so that when an important issue is raised by an envoy, fast action can be taken on it in Washington, and a suitable reply cabled back to the ambassador before the matter has died on the bureaucratic vine, or withered on the dessicated stalk of a missed opportunity.

This could be accomplished by increasing the stature of the Country Desk Officer, thus providing each ambassador with a more stalwart working counterpart in the Department of State. Maybe so, but to expand the existing departmental rabbit warren to accommodate 100 additional souped-up bunnies, each serving as the opposite number of an ambassador abroad, and each lustily thumping the Foggy Bottom terrain, might contribute still further to the personnel "layering" that Secretary of State Dean Rusk cited in his testimony, without significantly improving an ambassador's liaison with Washington.

SIMPLER

It would be simpler to strengthen the five geographic bureaus of the Department of State in which the Country Desk Officers operate, and to raise the rank of the five assistant secretaries of state who head those bureaus, so that the officials who are responsible for the substantive aspects of foreign operations cane clearly outvote the other areas of the State Department, where much of the bureaucratic delay now takes place.

Finally, national policy begins at home, and no ambassador can be effective if he is kept guessing about the intentions and objectives of the government he serves. Here the difficulty is identified as the "frequent failure of Washington to provide a timely, coherent, approved policy line, and to give the reasons behind its action — or inaction."

NOT SCARCE

A scarcity of documents is not involved — on the contrary, the archieves are bursting with comprehensive planning papers "in which all contingencies are itemized (except the one circumstances will produce) and all possibel sources of action are delineated (except the one that will actually follow.)" Noting moreover the "dreamlike logic" of the planner's world, the committee concludes that the conduct of foreign affairs will continue to be mainly a matter of "detecting changes promptly and devising action quickly", for which no plan, paper, or professor is a substitute for the strategic and tactical sense of the experienced diplomatist. Therefore, suggests the report, the ambassador and his staff should make important contributions to policy planning. If they fail, or if they "offer few insights and poor advance, the cure is not to disregard them but to move them — or remove them."

None would subscribe more heartily to that formula than the hard-pressed ambassadors.

The adoption of the subcommittee's recommendations would not only strengthen the ambassadorial hand, it would immeasurably facilitate the transaction of our government's overseas business. The appropriation required to implement the entire set of recommendations would be a fraction of the cost of a single giant firecracker at Cape Kennedy.

Otherwise, when a better madhouse is built, the American ambassador is likely to be the first to seek asylum in it.

THE REALM OF COIN

Type Set Good In Place Of Key Coins

By JOHN BLUCK

Coin collectors who are unable to complete a series out of circulation or are unable to buy needed coins because of high prices can find much satisfaction in putting together a type set.

A type set is nothing more than a collection made up of one coin of each type, regardless of date or mintmark. The most common and inexpensive date will serve the purpose just as well as a costly, rare date since both coins will be of the same design.

Take a nickel type set for example. It would include eight coins dated between 1866 and 1964, and it could consist of either low grade circulated coins or uncirculated or proof specimens. The eight coins would include the 1866 or 1867 Shield nickel with rays and any other date between 1867 and 1883 without rays; the 1883 Liberty Head or V nickel "no cents" variety and any other between 1883 and 1912 with cents; the 1913 Buffalo nickel on raised ground and any other between 1913 and 1938 with the buffalo on flat ground; and two Jefferson nickels, one "silver war nickel" dated 1942 through 1945 with large mint mark on the reverse and any other between 1938 and 1964.

With these eight coins a collector would have a type set which included one five-cent nickel of each type ever minted. A similar collection could be formed for cents, dimes, quarters, half-dollars, dollars and the odd types such as three-cent silver and three-cent nickel, two - cent and half - cent. If the collector wanted representative gold issues he could assemble a set of Indian and St. Gaudens gold or the Liberty types. He would end up with a few dozen coins, all different, as opposed to hundreds of coins in the various series. The cost would be only a small fraction of the expense of trying to collect all dates and all mint marks of all series. And the type collection probably would be the envy of most other collectors and of great interest to many non-collectors.

In recent years the so-called twentieth century type set has become popular. When complete, the set includes one cent, nickel, dime, quarter, half dollar and dollar of each type minted since 1900. There are albums made especially for this collection, and if the collector desires the best he may obtain a specially made plastic holder which enhances the beauty of the coins.

The type set idea can be expanded as far as the collector wishes. If he wants representative coins of all types minted before 1800, however, he should be prepared to spend a considerable sum. Many of the early cents and half cents, as well as some of the early dime, quarter and half dollar types are scarce to the point of being rare and command high prices even in the lowest grades.

Type sets are not a recent innovation. Collectors of limited means who have insisted that their coins be of the highest quality have collected by types for many years. Occasionally type sets come on the market which consist largely of proof coins. To duplicate them would cost thousands of dollars, and few collectors are likely to attempt a comparable set.

While American collectors turn to type collections because of the high cost of many key coins in almost every current series, members of the collecting fraternity in other countries are beginning to collect by series. This is a recent development since collectors in Europe and other parts of the world have traditionally collected only by type. They were not the least interested in assembling a monotonous series of dozens of identical coins whose only difference was the date or mintmark. But American influences are bringing about a change, and our overseas friends are scrambling to snap up scarce or rare coins of their own country to complete their series collections.

This has resulted in much more information being made available to the collecting fraternity about the scarcity and rarity of coins which were always considered common or available in large quantities. The 1951 English penny and the 1930 Australian penny are good examples. When collectors began assemblying series collections they discovered these two coins were extremely scarce, even to the extent of being considered modern rarities, especially in the better grades and uncirculated.

Their collecting problems were increased when Americans in increasing numbers began to collect British and Australian pennies by date series. In the case of the 1930 Australian penny the price has doubled and redoubled in just a few months. Today a specimen can easily cost the collector in excess of $100.

Coin collecting has its cycles, with one series of coins being extremely popular until another series replaces it in collector favor. Right now it appears that the hobby is in the early stages of renewed interest in type collecting. This is apparent in the price increases of many type coins in the better grades. If the cycle continues long enough and the prices of type coins in desirable condition are pushed high enough, there could be a gradual swing away from type collecting to another popular form of collecting — series collecting by date and mintmark!

Belgian Prelate Explains Views On Birth Control

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Leo Cardinal Suenens "clarified" his appeal Saturday for a restudy of the Roman Catholic ban on artificial birth control. He apparently acted under Vatican pressure.

Suenens, primate of Belgium and a leader of the church's liberal faction, stressed in a speech to the Ecumenical Council that the question of birth control "must be submitted to the Holy Father and judged by his authority."

He said his impassioned speech to the council last week was not intended "to re-elaborate what has been authentically and definitely proclaimed by the teaching authority of the church" on contraception.

What he had meant in those remarks, he said, was that "it was only a matter of carrying out a study in this field."

Suenens and several other high prelates told the council Oct. 29 that the church out to take another look at its ban on artificial means of birth control, which they said has brought on "the contrary practice of the immense majority of Christian couples."

"There are grounds for thinking that our outlook has become too one-sided . . . we still have much to learn," Suenens said.

He said the church should not repeat the mistake it made in the 16th Century by forcing Galileo to recant his theories that the earth revolved around the sun.

But conservative delegates to the council disagreed strongly in subsequent speeches, and observers said pressure from these circles—and possibly Pope Paul VI himself—brought about Saturday's clarification.

TRIAL FOR NAZIS

TUEBINGEN, Germany (UPI) — Three former Nazi guards will go on trial Monday on charges of complicity in the murder of prisoners at the Stutthof concentration camp near Danzig, Poland, in 1943.

The accused are Otto Karl Knott, 54, Otto Haupt, 54, and Bernhard Luedtke, 55. It is estimated that a total of 30,000 Jews and Russian prisoners of war were executed in the camp.

Annual Youth Appreciation Week Slated

Monroe's outstanding youngsters will be honored during the Monroe Optimist Club's annual Youth Appreciation Week beginning Monday through Saturday, chairman J. P. Mosley has announced.

Besides saluting the outstanding boy and girl at three Monroe high schools, the Optimist Club will sponsor a trip to the capitol for a group of civics students at St. Fredericks High School.

George Parsons, chairman of the capitol trip, said the St. Fredericks group will leave Monroe early Tuesday morning to tour the Esso refinery at Baton Rouge.

The trip also will include a visit with Gov. John J. McKeithen during the afternoon, plus a tour of the capitol.

"This is our third capitol trip and we have found that it is beneficial for the students who make it," Parsons said.

Mosley said the Optimist Club would present awards to the outstanding boy and girl at Ouachita Parish High School, Neville High School and St. Fredericks High School during the week.

The students will be selected by the faculties at the high schools on the basis of scholastic records, leadership, athletics, religious activities, overcoming handicaps and feats of bravery or merit.

Tuesday, 8:30 a.m., Ouachita High School; Wednesday, Neville, 1 p.m.; and Friday, 9:15 a.m., St. Fredericks.

Dr. E. J. J. Kramar, professor and chairman of the Department of Speech at Northeast State College, will address the high school student bodies for the presentation of the awards.

"The purpose of 'Youth Appreciation Week' is to put the spotlight and emphasis on the fact that most young people of today are good citizens," Mosley said.

Chinese Predicts Sino-Soviet Split Soon Will Mend

TOKYO (AP) — A Communist China official declared Saturday "'no force on earth" could break China's ties with the Soviet Union.

The spokesman said it wasn't surprising that differences had broken out between the two Red powers, but they were temporary and would soon be healed.

Peking Mayor Peng Chen told a reception given by Soviet Ambassador S. V. Chervonenko that "no force on earth can break the ties established by the great October Socialist revolution," according to the New China news agency in a broadcast monitored here.

Annual Scouter Banquet Is Set For December 10

The annual Scouter Recognition Banquet of the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council has been set this year for Dec. 10 and will be held on the roof of Monroe's Frances Hotel. Featured speaker will be the Hon. Carlton Harris, chief justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court.

"The event has been moved up from its usual time in January, but as usual a full house of adults scouting leaders and friends of scouting from throughout the council is expected," according to Executive Jack E. Pankey.

"We have a well - known and outstanding speaker coming to be with us and a lot of outstanding people to recognize in this annual attempt to say thanks."

The council comprises 14 northeast Louisiana parishes. In former years crowds have ranged around 400 to 500 persons. Last year's program was held in Ruston.

Alabama Rallies In Fourth To Topple LSU, 17-9

Bulldogs Come On Strong In 2nd Half To Down Tribe, 23-7

Take SEC Crown With Vital Victory

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama unleashed its famed defense in the second half Saturday to beat Louisiana State 17-9 and win the Southeastern Conference football championship.

Louisiana State led through more than half of the battle of nationally ranked football giants and played on even terms in every department with the Crimson Tide.

The victory was Alabama's eighth straight without a loss this year and left the Tide 7-0 in SEC play. With but one conference game left, no one has a mathematical chance of catching the Crimson Tide.

	LSU	Alabama
First downs	16	12
Rushing yardage	97	148
Passing yardage	178	74
Passes	15-40	7-9
Passes intercepted by	0	3
Punts	7-40	7-48
Fumbles lost	0	2
Yards penalized	43	61

The first half was all offense — much to the surprise of the 68,000 persons who jammed Legion Field — but it was a defensive contest in the second half.

Neither team could muster much of a drive in the early going of the second half and Alabama got the winning point with 14:55 to go in the fourth period when David Ray kicked a 37-yard field goal.

Alabama made it clear quickly that it had given up trying to run on the Tiger line, which outweighed the Tide forward wall 25 pounds to the man. Quarterback Steve Sloan passed to Ray Ogden for another first down and 'Bama came to life.

The Tide moved the ball to the LSU 24, but then lost three yards on the next play to make it fourth and about 3½ yards for the first down. Ray then came in and split the uprights with a perfect strike.

Alabama salted it away with 7:44 to go when Hudson Harris picked off a Pat Screen pass and raced 33 yards down the sidelines for the touchdown. The reliable toe of Ray made it 17-9.

LSU tried to make a comeback in the waning minutes of the final period and decided to keep Screen in the game even though his knee, which has kept him sidelined much of the season, was in questionable condition.

This may have proved costly to the Bayou Bengals, for Screen was again sent to the sidelines with about 7 minutes to go when he reinjured his knee. It was obvious he was in pain as he was carried from the field.

But Billy Ezell, who had directed LSU successfully in the first half, came back in and took up where he left off. He passed the Tigers to the Alabama 11 where the Alabama defense again met the test and took over on downs.

The Crimson Tide chose to play it safe all the way, keeping the ball on the ground even though it cost them possession again as a desperate Tiger defense put the halt on. Alabama punted and Ezell passed the Tigers right back to the Crimson Tide 10. But two plays later Ray intercepted one of Ezell's passes in the end zone to kill that drive.

Alabama then wasted the 24 seconds left on the clock.

Alabama fell behind early when halfback John Moseley fumbled a punt on the Crimson Tide 20 and LSU's Richard Garnier recovered the ball. With 11:01 to go in the first period Ezell hit Moreau on a 13-yard touchdown pass.

Alabama fought back and went ahead with 7-6 with 3:44 to go in the first quarter when Bowman scored from one yard out. In the second period Moreau kicked a 37-yard field goal to give LSU a 9-7 lead which they enjoyed until Ray booted his field goal.

LSU Win One Of Greatest — Bear Bryant

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — "This was one of the greatest victories I've ever been at Alabama," said Crimson Tide coach Paul (Bear) Bryant Saturday after his team whipped Louisiana State 17-9 and clinched the Southeastern Conference championship.

The Bear was hoisted on the shoulders of his jubilant players who carried him to midfield to meet his former pupil, LSU mentor Charlie McClendon.

The two embraced and chatted walking off the field before McClendon broke away and sprinted into the LSU dressing room.

"Not one of my boys quit," said a solemn McClendon. "They gave us everything . . . all the way.

"I said they were the guttiest team I'd ever seen last week when we beat Ole Miss. I won't change that one bit this week."

Bryant said he considered it "a great victory for the team, fans and state of Alabama, but personally I couldn't get a big bang out of it because of my close relationship with coach McClendon."

Bryant coached McClendon at Kentucky some 15 years ago. McClendon was a star end on the Bear's 1949 team which defeated national champion Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl.

Bryant said that had the Crimson Tide not intercepted a pass by LSU quarterback Pat Screen for a touchdown, "I was going to use (Joe) Namath in the fourth quarter."

As it was, Namath was in for one play, throwing a 14-yard pass in the waning seconds of the first half as the Crimson Tide tried to go ahead on a field goal.

McClendon said he couldn't "think of enough words to praise Billy Ezell."

"That boy has just got more guts . . . He gives 100 per cent and more all the time."

Ezell, nearly in tears in the solemn LSU dressing room, shook his head and said: "That's just the breaks, but it was a whale of a game."

McClendon told newsmen, "I still want to stress that these kids are students and not professionals, but they played as good as any group of pros could. They could have quit after that interception, but they didn't."

Asked to assess Alabama, McClendon laughed and said:

"They're an eight-point better club than us."

"They came up with some of the clutch yardage when they needed it . . . but I just can't say how proud I am of my boys."

"Alabama has an excellent football team and like any team coached by the Bear, they really get after you."

Bryant said that any one of Ezell's passes at the end "could have hit . . . Coach McClendon did a great job of planning his team for us . . . we were not surprised at them throwing that much."

"Frank McClendon made three great saves for us late in the game when he batted passes away."

Bryant said that end Charlie Stephens and tackle Jim Simmons were injured early, "but too early to determine how serious."

Stephens who, like Namath, saw only limited action, had the wind knocked out of him in the fourth quarter. He recovered enough to stand with his teammates on the sidelines, but saw no further action.

Sugar Officials Want Alabama For Bowl Again

One member of the selection committee, who asked not to be identified, said, "We still think an Alabama-Notre Dame game would be the greatest any bowl could come up with."

The Sugar Bowl has been wooing Notre Dame, although the Fighting Irish, ranked No. 1 in the nation, have had an anti-bowl policy for more than a quarter-century.

Alabama went to the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Day and defeated Mississippi. The Crimson Tide also appeared in the 1962 Sugar Bowl after it won the 1961 national championship.

Other teams still high on the Sugar Bowl list, the official said, include Texas and Nebraska.

Alabama, also is the No. 1 choice for the Orange Bowl, officials of that classic said.

Jack Baldwin, a member of the Orange Bowl's selection committee, watched the game and then met after it was over with coach Paul Bryant of Alabama and members of the press.

Baldwin said the other teams rated high on the Orange Bowl list are Nebraska, Notre Dame and Texas.

Oregon Rallies To Tie WSU, 21-21

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Sophomore Mike Brundage directed an 87-yard scoring drive in the closing minutes as Oregon rallied to tie underdog Washington State 21-21 Saturday after blowing a two-touchdown lead.

KEN AMBRUSKO, 12 at right, dashes down the sidelines on a 101-yard kickoff return in the final three minutes Saturday to give Maryland a 27-22 victory over Navy. Teammates on the sideline near the 40-yard line cheer him on as two blockers lead the way. No. 47 is Steve Szabo of Navy. (AP Wirephoto)

Tech Gets 8th Victory In Homecoming Battle

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Editor

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech, the nation's fourth ranked small college football team, move almost at will on the arm of quarterback Billy Laird here Saturday afternoon and defeated Southeastern, 28-7, before a packed homecoming crowd to virtually wrap up the Gulf States Conference championship.

In winning their eighth straight of the year, Coach Joe Aillet's Bulldogs clinched a tie for the title and now have only one remaining GSC game on the schedule, that being a Nov. 21 date with Northeast State in Monroe.

Tech puts its national ranking on the line next Saturday night when it faces traditionally tough Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg.

Laird, who is now near his 1963 form when he set several Tech passing records, completed 14 of 26 passes Saturday for 226 yards to give the Bulldogs all the offensive spark they needed.

However, the Canines, who completely dominated the game, also rammed for 113 yards on the ground and compiled a total of 15 first downs to Southeastern's three. The Lions managed 45 yards rushing and 41 passing against the Tech defense which has probably been the most consistent strong point of the club all year.

Southeastern aided the Tech cause considerably with five lost fumbles but the outcome would undoubtedly still have been the same, although perhaps not quit as severe on the scoreboard.

Louisiana Tech, scoring in every period but the third, tallied just about everything possible to the delight of the old grads.

BULLDOG POINTS

The Bulldogs scored twice on short runs, with halfback Alden Reeves and Laird having the honors, once on a Larid to Maurice Greer pass, once on a safety and twice on field goals.

Speedy Campbell kicked the first field goal and also chipped in two extra points and end David Lee, the team's regular punter, booted the last three-pointer. Lee's kick was the first field goal he had ever tried for Louisiana Tech.

Starting from its 31, Tech moved 69 yards in eight plays with Laird accounting for all but seven yards of the total on passes. The former Woodlawn of Shreveport field general started the drive off with a 10 yarder to end Pat Lynch who lateralled to Wayne Davis immediately after catching the ball at the 41. Davis failed to pick up any additional yardage but the Canines still had a first down.

After Reeves picked up two yards on a halfback draw play, Laird dropped back quickly and hit Davis with a flare pass to the left flat. Davis turned the completion into a 21 yard gain with a bit of hard running before being nailed at the Southeastern 36.

Fullback Gerald McDowell was stopped at the line on the first play from here, then it was back to the wild blue yonder. On the same play which worked so smoothly to Davis on the left side, Laird hit flanker back Corky Corkern in the opposite flat and he shook loose from a tackler at the 32 and went to the six before being blocked out of bounds. The play covered 30 yards.

Reeves, the sophomore from Jonesboro, took over from here and three plays later he rammed over from the one with just five minutes of playing time gone. Campbell converted, the Tech cannon boomed, and the Bulldogs were off and running.

LIONS MOVE BALL

The clubs traded punts after failing to mount a drive and Southeastern took over on its 25 following a David Lee boot. The Lions came up with their best offensive showing of the day on this drive, going to the Tech 20 before losing their first fumble of the game when fullback Harry Nunez was jarred loose from the ball and Reeves fell on it.

Sparking the Lions' 55 yard drive was a 20 yard pass play from Dick Cothern to Earl Dieterich which gave SLC a first at the Tech 47. On the next play following the pass, halfback Ellis Johnson made the best run of the day when he broke loose from at least five Tech tacklers and went for 23 yards before being stopped on the 24. However, Nunez fumbled on the following play.

But Southeastern got a second chance minutes later when a Laird pass was picked off by Jerry Hollifield at the 35 and returned to the 15. Three plays, including a five yard penalty, netted a minus six yards and presented SLC with a third and 16 situation on the 21. The solution to the problem was solved by Cothern on the next play when he found end Maurice Ogier all alone at the five yardline. He quickly stepped into the end zone for Southeastern's only TD of the day.

Kenneth Dyer kicked the PAT to put SLC on even terms with the Bulldogs for the last time.

Tech broke the game open in the second quarter when it scored twice as a result of Southeastern fumbles deep in SLC territory.

The first score was set up by Corkern's fumble recovery at the Lions' 36 following a Lee punt which was bobbled by Lester Smith. The Bulldogs scored in nine plays with Laird going the last one on a sneak. A low snap halted any chances for Campbell to kick the extra point.

GREER RECOVERS

Immediately following this score, Southeastern fumbled on its first scrimmage play at the nine yardline and Greer recovered for Tech at the four. But the 'Dogs didn't cash in this time, instead having to wait a couple more minutes when Carl Underwood intercepted Laird's pass at the one yardline.

But three plays netted four yards and Southeastern punted. Hollifield, who finished with a 38.9 average on eight kicks, would have had an even better average except for this kick which went only 23 yards to the Lions' 28.

With Laird completing three passes in four plays, Tech quickly scored for a 20-7 lead. The finale came on a nine-yarder to Greer and Tech carried its 13 point lead into intermission.

The third quarter was strictly a punting duel with both Hollifield and Lee getting off some beauties. However, Tech got a drive started late in the third quarter highlighted by a 45 yard gainer on a pass over center from Laird to halfback John Wurzburger which carried from the Tech 20 to the SLC 35.

Laird came back with another pass from here, hitting Lee for 23 yards to the 12 but Tech stalled and had to settle for a 27 yard field goal on the first play of the fourth quarter by Campbell.

Only a few plays later Tech got its safety when there was a bad snap from center on the Southeastern one yardline while Hollifield was attempting to punt. The ball went over the kicker's head and out of the end zone.

Tech completed its scoring late in the quarter when a Rich Golman-supported drive fizzled at the 21. Golman picked up 44 yards on three straight carries, moving the ball from the 47 to the four but a penalty put the ball back on the 21.

Lee kicked from the 26, receiving credit for a 36 yarder and Tech had its eighth triumph sewed up.

Indians Score On Gunn's 90-Yarder

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

LAFAYETTE — After a particularly electrifying first half, the University of Southwestern Bulldogs fumbled and bumbled their way to a 23-7 victory over Northeast's Indians — with the aid of several Tribe fumbles and bumbles.

USL had one good sustained drive, fumbled into the end zone for another score, and capitalized on a blocked Northeast punt and an Indian fumble for its other tallies, which included a field goal.

A crowd of 10,000 watched as Northeast dominated the first half of play, but still came out trailing 9-7 at the half, and then fell apart in the second half.

The Tribe got its only marker in the second quarter on a 90 yard kickoff return by junior halfback Neal Gunn with 8:40 left in the period. Hank Cantrelle, a freshman, kicked the point after to put the Indians ahead for the only time in the contest.

Southwestern had taken the lead with a little over nine minutes left in the first quarter when Northeast was forced to punt on its second series of downs and Al Wheeldon blocked Alton Thomas' boot and recovered at the Indian eight yardline.

USL halfback Lonnie Price boomed over from the five on the second play after the blocked punt for the first score of the game with 9:07 left in the half. Northeast end Don McCrary, who played an outstanding defensive game for the Tribe, rushed in to block Gerald Landry's PAT attempt.

Gunn ran the kickoff back to put the Indians ahead. His 90 yard jaunt was almost halted at the Indian 40 where he was hit by three Bulldogs, but he tore loose to the 50, was hit again and came away streaking down the sidelines for the score.

Later in the quarter, Lewis Landry recovered a Dee Faircloth fumble on the Indian 21 yardline. USL pushed down to the 13 and Gerald Landry booted a 29 yard field goal. Two minutes were left on the clock when the kick put USL ahead, 9-7.

Northeast quarterback Johnny Garrison went begging for pass protection in the second half, fading to go to the air several times and being thrown for repeated losses by the blitzing Bulldog linemen. The losses while attempting to pass were responsible for Northeast's minus four yards rushing in the second half.

The Indians, as usual, led the statistics at the end of the first half. The Tribe picked 114 yards rushing in the first two quarters while USL mustered only 78 and NLSC led in first downs six to three.

Southwestern got its two second half scores on a 14 yard pass from quarterback O'Neal Weber to Price while ended a 42 yard drive, and a fumble recovery by halfback Dwight Sevin in the end zone in the fourth period for the last score of the night.

USL fumbled three times during the final scoring drive, once for a loss of eight, once for a gain of 10 and on the final time recovering in the end zone after an 11 yard run by Weber.

The Bulldogs took the second half kickoff and with 11:25 left in the third period they got into Northeast territory for the first time under their own steam. The drive started at the Bulldogs' 17 and finally ran out of juice at the Northeast 38. Harvey Saddler's kick was downed on the Indian eight yardline to give Northeast possession for the first time in the half.

Later the Bulldogs started their own defensive show the next time Northeast had the ball when they drove them back to their 10 after the Tribe took over at its 17.

Southwestern brought the resulting punt back to the Northeast 47 and in two plays quarterback Bill Bayard kept to the 29 and a 15 yard penalty moved the ball to the Northeast 14.

USL moved one yard deeper on the following play and then Weber tossed his 14 yard scoring pass to Price. Landry kicked the point after to give USL a 16 - 7 lead with 4:35 left in the quarter.

McCrary broke up a Weber pass to set the stage for the second Landry field goal attempt on the 33 yardline with 1:05 left in the third. McCrary's effort forced the Bulldogs into a fourth down situation and Landry's kick was short.

After taking over on the 20 yardline, the Indians' Garrison tossed a pass to Gunn to move the ball to the 36 yardline. The pass ended the third quarter.

But Garrison lost four and then 10 and Thomas punted from his 25.

Northeast spotted the Bulldogs a pass interference penalty which moved the ball to the Southwestern 37 on a crucial third down play. Weber picked up 10 on the next play and fumbled two plays later for another 10 yard gain which took the ball down to the Northeast 48. Seven plays later Weber, who rushed for 73 yards on seven attempts, fumbled into the end zone with Sevin falling on it.

USL has now gone for 21 quarters without being scored on by rushing. It was the fourth straight victory for coach Russ Faulkinberry, the most he has seen in four years at the University.

The Indians fell to a 0-7 season record and are dragging the GSC cellar with a 0-4 mark. The Bulldogs are 1-1 in Gulf States Conference play and 4-2 overall.

Garrison ended the night with a minus 13 yards rushing in 13 trips. Bobby Scafidel paced the Indians with 50 yards in nine carries with Gunn getting 21 on eight and R. F. Wilson, another defensive standout, getting 31 on six attempts.

Garrison completed two of eight pass attempts for 18 yards, but suffered most of his 50 yard loss when he faded to pass but was smothered.

Board Chairman Is Pleased With Owner Decision

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eugene Grobschmidt, chairman of the Milwaukee County Board and a leader in the fight to keep the Braves in Milwaukee, expressed great pleasure Saturday that the National League club owners had ordered the Braves to remain here next year.

"I think they were convinced that we were on the up and up with them and told them the truth about the monetary gain the Braves had made while they were here," Grobschmidt said.

"The rest of the clubs could see our point," he said. "The sports writers around the entire country agreed with us. I think the sports writers did more than anyone else in helping us. They gave an honest picture of what is happening here in baseball and I'm very proud of them."

As for next season, Grobschmidt said that if the Braves express a real willingness to do their best in Milwaukee, "I'll do everything in my power to help them get a good record. I hope we can mend our fences and forget the past."

The league also granted permission for the Braves to move to Atlanta in 1966.

Boston Celtics Take 9th Straight Basketball Win

BOSTON (AP) — The unbeaten Boston Celtics extended their victory streak to nine games Saturday night, crushing Detroit 130-113.

Four of Boston's nine victories have been at the Pistons' expense and Saturday night's was the most convincing as the Celtics opened with an early blitz Detroit was never able to overcome.

Boston hit on 15 of its first 24 shots to run to a 20-point lead early in the second period.

Detroit countered with a brief spurt and pared the deficit to nine points. But Sam Jones came off the bench and spurred Boston to a secure 64-44 halftime advantage.

Even with ace rebounder Bill Russell and many of the Boston regulars riding the bench for much of the game the Pistons were unable to close the gap.

Olympian Joe Caldwell scored 31 for Detroit.

Braves Get Go Ahead To Move To Atlanta

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Braves were ordered to play in Milwaukee next season but granted permission to move to Atlanta the following year as baseball's upper echelons wound up a historic meeting Saturday on a climatic note.

The National League took action of the Braves' efforts to shift their franchise, first directing the club fulfill the contract with Milwaukee County playing there in 1965, then voting unanimously to allow the team to go south in 1966.

Owners from both the National and American Leagues also agreed to another key move: To again make the baseball commissioner a true strong man, in the pattern of the legendary Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The owners agreed to restore to the commissioner who succeeds the retiring Ford Frick next year the full powers of the office, thus giving him unlimited jurisdiction over all aspects of the game.

Frick himself triggered this step in a stirring speech to the owners. He said baseball must have a true czar to regain public confidence and stop the flood of criticism directed against it in recent years.

Other recommendations arrived at during the joint session of the two leagues which closed the three-day meeting:

1. Overwhelming approval for a free agent draft of high school and college players to replace the first-year rule. The free agents would be combined with first-year players not carried on big league clubs' 40-man winter rosters in an unrestricted draft.

2. Centralization of all high baseball offices — commissioner, and headquarters of the two major leagues and the minor leagues — one of the two-team cities in the majors, New York, Chicago or Los Angeles.

3. Expansion of the college summer program from three to four leagues.

4. A program for the recruiting and development of young umpires.

The National League's action in the case of the Braves probably was the only maneuver that would extricate the club from its legal tangle and still pave the way for its move into possibly more lucrative territory.

The Braves, who were the first modern big league club to switch homes when they moved from Boston to Milwaukee in 1953, have been exploring the possibilities of transfering to Atlanta for some time.

Club officials were to have asked permission to move next season at a special league meeting in New York on Oct. 22. However, Milwaukee County obtained a temporary court order the day before restraining the club from asking to move, and no such request was made at the meeting.

Longhorns Edge Baylor In Fourth

WACO, Tex. (AP) — George Sauer leaped high in the end zone to snare a desperation pass from Marvin Kristynik with 1 minute, 51 seconds remaining Saturday and Texas defeated Baylor 20-14.

Baylor, crushed by Texas for three quarters, rallied in the fourth for two quick touchdowns off the passing arm of Terry Southall.

That put Baylor ahead 14-13 and with only 4:46 left, it appeared that the Bears had upset the nation's No. 6 team.

Then Kristynik went to work on his aerial game, and put together enough aerial yardage to help take Texas 50 yards to the Baylor 24.

At that point, the Longhorn hurler found Sauer almost alone six yards deep in the end zone and tossed to him for the winning score.

It was a heartbreaker for the Bears, who mounted two fine attacks to go ahead deep in the final period.

Until the fourth period, had

Texas made a runaway of the game.

Texas smothered Southall for losses a dozen times as he tried to pass.

By the end of the third quarter, David Conway had kicked two field goals for Texas and Harold Philipp had scored a touchdown with a seven-yard dash.

In the first series of the fourth quarter, Baylor marched 91 yards to tally, with Southall passing to Ken Hodge for 15 yards.

A fumble recovery by Baylor's Donnie Laurence on the Baylor 44 set up the second Bear score ten plays later Southall passed to Lawrence Elkins for eight yards and a touchdown. Tom Davies kicked the two extra points and Baylor seemed home safe until the Kristynik to Sauer.

Two 4th Quarter Houston Tallies Give 13-13 Tie

HOUSTON (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Bo Burris led Houston to two fourth quarter touchdowns for a come-from-behind 13-13 football tie with Florida State University Saturday.

The Seminoles held a 13-point advantage when Burris' throwing resulted in the touchdowns in the final quarter.

His favorite receiver, Fred Biletnikoff, left the game after the first play with a leg muscle cramp. Biletnikoff ranked second nationally in pass receptions.

The battle of the two independents left Houston with a 2-4-1 season mark and the favored Seminals 6-1-1. Florida State's only loss was to Virginia Tech.

West Virginia Cops SC Crown With 20-19 Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Virginia struck for three touchdowns in the first half and then held on for a 20-19 victory Saturday over George Washington and the Mountaineers' first Southern Conference football championship since 1958.

A crowd of 14,200 saw the visitors score their fourth conference triumph without a loss by the margin of Doug Stanley's two extra point kicks. George Washington missed two tries for two-point conversions.

Garry Lyle, GW's quarterback, fumbled both conversion tries, the second with 5:05 remaining in the game.

Lyle was ejected for shoving one of the defenders after the play was over. His substitute, Steve Welpott, tried to rally the Colonials but a fourth-down pass was dropped on the West Virginia 32 with 1:16 remaining. The Mountaineers ran out the clock.

South Carolina Nets First Win Of Year, 17-14

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina had its hands full with an aroused Citadel football team Saturday but utilized the strong running of Marty Rosen, Dan Reeves and Phil Branson to win its first game of the season 17-14.

South Carolina's clinching touchdown in the third period climaxed a 92-yard march. The drive included runs of 39 yards by Reeves and 33 yards by Rosen, with Reeves going over from the one.

Francis Grant intercepted a Reeves pass and raced 76 yards for The Citadel's first touchdown early in the third period. The score cut South Carolina's halftime lead to 10-7.

The Southern Conference Cadets got their final touchdown with less than one minute to play. John Breedlove's plunge for the last yard ended a 97-yard march.

South Carolina dominated the first quarter after forcing the Cadets to fumble on the 27. Jack McCathern kicked a 38-yard field goal when the drive bogged down.

Top Ranked Notre Dame Hold Off Panthers, 17-15

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Top-ranked Notre Dame, led by daring John Huarte, built up a 14-0 first period lead and then fought off the inspired Pitt Panthers Saturday for a 17-15 football victory.

It was unbeaten Notre Dame's defense, yielding almost as many yards rushing as it had in their first six games combined, which staved off possible defeat in the end.

The Irish forward wall rose up to stop Pitt quarterback Fred Mazurek for no gain on a fourth-and-one situation in the last quarter on the Notre Dame 16.

The victory ran Notre Dame's string to seven. Pitt now is 2-4-2 for the season.

It was Huarte, Notre Dame's record-breaking quarterback, who gave the Irish the breathing room they needed against the determined Panthers.

On third down on his own nine in the first quarter, Huarte faded into the end zone and passed to halfback Nick Eddy, who caught the ball on his 35 and raced for the score to make it 13-0. The play covered 91 yards.

Then Joe Azzaro kicked his second conversion. Azzaro also provided what proved to be the winning points when he booted a 30-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Pitt's first touchdown came in the second period and was set up when end Brian Generalovich recovered a fumble by Pete Andreotti on the Pitt 32.

The Panthers moved to the 18 and were going to try a field goal but Notre Dame was off side. On the next play fullback Barry McKnight rambled 10 yards to the one. He then plunged over for the score. He also ran for two points to make it 14-8.

The touchdown drive began on the Pitt 20 and all of the yardage but 10 was picked up on the ground with workhorse McKnight accounting for 31 in eight carries.

Indians, 14-13, After PAT Fails

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Virginia, wasting its opportunities prodigally, nosed past William and Mary 14-13 Saturday when the Indians failed in a two-point conversion try after a touchdown with 20 seconds left.

Bob Davis, Virginia's brilliant sophomore, scored both Cavalier touchdowns but in the end it was two extra-point kicks by Tom Shuman that won.

The Indians, down 14-0 at halftime, pulled up to 14-7 on Chuck Albertson's 42-yard touchdown run in the third period and then to within a single point as time began to run out after Jack Becker's 56-yard pass to Albertson to the Cavalier 19.

Dennis Haglan got the second touchdown for the Indians but when he tried to pass for the two points that would have won, a Cavalier lineman batted the ball to the ground.

Davis' touchdowns for Virginia came on a two-yard run and a 64-yard pass play from the fellow who alternates with him at quarterback, Tom Hodges. Both scores were in the second quarter.

BLANK BUCKEYES, 27-0

Second Ranked Ohio State Stunned By Nittany Lions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Penn State's four-time losers turned Ohio State's second-ranked juggernaut into a stumbling, fumbling giant Saturday and beat the highly favored Bucks 27-0 in what must go into the books as the season's biggest upset.

The Nittany Lions in winning their fourth in four starts against the Bucks annihilated both the offense and the defense of Coach Woody Hayes' Big Ten Conference leaders.

With quarterback Gary Wydman guiding the Lions and fullback Tom Urbanik blasting the forward wall, Penn State scored in every quarter as it handed Ohio State its first shutout in 45 games and blasted any national championship hopes.

The victors went 65 yards in eight plays, 35 in five, 42 in seven and 64 in 10 for their touchdowns. Ohio State failed to reach enemy territory until the final minute.

The Bucks appeared battered and bewildered and were completely futile in the opening half as they failed to score a first down, and wound up with a minus 14 yardage.

It wasn't much better in the second half. Ohio State's initial first down came with 5:11 left in the third quarter, and it was on a penalty. The Bucks had only five first downs for the entire day, their lowest output in memory.

Kunit scored Penn State's last two touchdowns on runs of two and five yards. Quarterback Gary Wydman counted another on a three- yard option run, and Dirk Nye put over the opener when he recovered Urbanik's fumble in the end zone.

A crowd of 84,279 witnessed the contest, moving Ohio State's five-game gate to 415,530. It was Dad's Day and the fathers of most players were seated on the sideline for the humiliating defeat.

ANDREGHETTI KEY FIGURE

Kentucky Eases Into 22-21 Win

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky end John Andreghetti played the defensive game of his career Saturday as he led the Wildcats to a 2-21 homecoming football victory over Vanderbilt.

Andreghetti intercepted a Vanderbilt pass, recovered a Vandy fumble and caught quarterback Dave Waller behind the line of scrimmage to choke off a last minute attempt at a two-point conversion.

The teams traded touchdowns in a wild first half.

Kentucky took the opening kickoff and marched 83 yards in a 21-play in the first quarter.

took a Vanderbilt punt at its 28 and moved to another touchdown.

The homecoming crowd of 32,000 had hardly settled back when Vanderbilt countered with two bombs of its own. Waller reeled off five straight completions in the Commodores scoring drive.

Barely two minutes later Vandy's Steve Bevil, a reserve sophomore halfback, returned a punt 72-yards for Vanderbilt's second touchdown. Waller then passed to halfback Bob Sullins for a 15-14 Vanderbilt lead.

The second half belonged to Andreghetti. Late in the third quarter he intercepted a Waller pass at the Vanderbilt 23. Kentucky turned that break into the winning touchdown.

Andreghetti added to Vandy's frustration on the next series of plays when he recovered a Vandy fumble on the Kentucky eight.

Vandy came back to score with less than one minute left and elected to try a two-point conversion.

Waller faded to pass but he was hit by Andreghetti at the 13.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest fullback Brian Piccolo scored all of Wake Forest's points Saturday as the Deacons walloped favored Duke 20-7 to knock the Blue Devils out of the Atlantic Coast Conference lead.

Piccolo scored on an 11-yard pass from quarterback John Mackovic and battered his way one and three yards for other touchdowns as Wake Forest broke its string of 12 losses to Duke.

Piccolo, the nation's leading ball carrier going into the game with 722 in seven contests, carried 36 times and gained 115 yards against the leading rushing defense in the conference.

The loss dropped Duke to second place in the ACC with a 3-1-1 record and elevated N.C. State, 5-1, into first place.

ORANGE BOWL PROSPECT

Syracuse Takes Win From Army

NEW YORK (AP) — Syracuse drove 51 yards to a touchdown after the opening kickoff and went on to a 27-15 victory over Army Saturday that kept alive the Orange hopes for Eastern football honors and a bowl bid.

Len Hall, chairman of the Orange Bowl Committee, was among the crowd of 37,552 at Yankee Stadium that saw Syracuse's powerful race horse backs—Floyd Little, Wally Mahle and Jim Nance—grind out two fourth period scores after Army had gone ahead 15-14 on a break and a gamble in the third.

"We're definitely interested in Syracuse for the Miami game," Hall said afterward.

Little, the 190-pound sophomore who wears the "44" numeral once carried by Jimmy Brown and the late Ernie Davis, plunged one yard for one touchdown and threw a three-yard pass to Brad Clarke for a second.

The clinching last period scores were made by Nance, from the two, and Mahle from the four after drives of 65 and 49 yards.

Army snapped back late in the game and carried to the 39, but Charley Brown intercepted a pass by Rollie Stichweh on his own 15 and ran back to the Army 39, ending the Cadets' final threat.

It was the sixth triumph in eight games for the hard-running Syracuse team, beaten by Boston College and Oregon State in upsets. It was the fifth setback in eight games for the Cadets, having one of their worst seasons since the cribbing scandal of the 1950s.

Army hopes were raised midway of the third period when a bad pass from center sailed over the head of Rich King, the Syracuse left-footed kicker, and the Cadets got the ball on the Syracuse 15.

On the fifth play, fullback Donald Parcells, who had an outstanding individual performance, smashed over from the two, and Stichweh, from a shotgun formation, ran over for the two-point conversion. That put Army ahead 15-14.

The powerful Syracuse team took the ensuing kickoff and went 65 yards to recapture the lead and then added another score moments later.

Southern Takes 39-13 Win From Wiley College

BATON ROUGE (Special) — James Little a pint-size freshman halfback from Picayune, Miss. razed Wiley College defenses for four touchdowns in pacing Southern University to a 39-13 victory over the Wildcats in University Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Taking the opening kick off, Little threaded his way 90 yards to a touchdown, scored one in the second quarter with a 38 yard scamper, broke off tackle for 14 yards and the only touchdown of the third quarter, then spiced his afternoon's performance with a dazzling 16 yards scoring junket in the closing minutes of the fourth quarter.

John Clayton booted a 40 yard field goal and three extra points from placement for six points, and William Davis blocked Wiley punt then fell on it for a touchdown to give Southern the halftime edge over Wiley by 23-7.

John Clay, on a one yard pick-up, scored Wiley's second touchdown, and a try for two points via a pass with Clay throwing, wrapped up scoring for the visiting Texans.

Air Force Stuns Bruins, 24-15, In Ground Game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Air Force turned foot soldier Saturday and marched through the favored UCLA Bruins 24-15.

The Falcons scored in every quarter but didn't gain a yard through the air in their long drives. In fact, they tried only four passes, all in the first half, and none was completed.

The Air Force, with quarterback Paul Stein directing, slogged 70 yards in 16 plays the first time it got the ball. Dick Czarnota smashed over from the one for the first of his two touchdowns.

Bart Holaday, who kicked three conversions, put the Falcons in front 10-7 with a 21-yard field goal in the second quarter.

This was the Falcons' third victory in as many years from the favored Uclans. Honors were well divided between a crunching array of backs who time and again shredded the Bruin line and employed to perfection the pitchout and rollout maneuvers.

STEP CLOSER TO COTTON BOWL

Razorbacks Shut Out Rice, 21-0, To Run Skein To 8-0

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) —The unbeaten Arkansas Razorbacks Saturday took a big step toward a New Year's Day Cotton Bowl date by defeating Rice 21-0 for their ninth straight victory and third consecutive shutout.

Arkansas scored twice in the final quarter to break open what had been a defensive battle. Razorback safety Harry Jones picked off a Rice pass and returned it 35 yards for one fourth period score and Bobby Burnett punched four yards with less than two minutes left for his second touchdown. Tom McKnelly kicked all three extra points.

The Arkansas defense was so rugged Rice crossed midfield only once, to the Razorback 41 on the play before the half ended. Rice got only six first downs in the entire game.

The victory left fourth-ranked Arkansas with an 8-0 record for the year and a 5-0 mark in the Southwest Conference. The Razorback winning streak dates back to the final game last year and is the longest in the history of the school.

Arkansas started a 65-yard scoring drive late in the first quarter and moved the distance in 11 plays with Burnett punching over the final yard. Arkansas missed only one scoring opportunity, in the second quarter when McKnelly missed a 30-yard field goal try after a Rice fumble.

Rice's only attack was in the form of a sophomore, tailback Chuck Latourette, playing before a home state crowd of 33,000. The attendance equalled a Razorback stadium record set in 1961 against Texas.

Latourette, of Jonesboro, Ark. got four of the Owls' five rushing first downs and kept Arkansas away from the Owl goal with his booming punts. He kicked 10 times for a 45.8 average.

Arkansas rolled up 228 yards on the ground, chiefly on the heels of tailback Jackie Brasuell. Quarterback Fred Marshall added 51 in the air for a total offense of 279 yards.

Meanwhile, Rice was held to 102 yards, 68 of it on the ground. Rice had minus three yards rushing in the second half.

END JACKETS' STREAK, 22-14

Vols Wallop Georgia Tech With 19 Point 4th Period

ATLANTA (AP) — Tennessee found new offensive punch Saturday and combined it with sterling defensive play to hand eighth-ranked Georgia Tech its first football loss in eight games, 22-14.

The Volunteers struck for a fourth quarter touchdown on a 41-yard drive and clinched the victory when fullback Doug Archibald picked off a Tech pass and raced 69 yards for a touchdown with five minutes left.

Tech, which had won seven straight, was not able to crack the rugged Volunteer defense for any sustained drive before a desperation passing attack in the fourth quarter.

Tennessee scored its first touchdown in the fourth period on a leaping catch by Al Tanara, who pulled down a pass from quarterback David Leake in the end zone.

Tech cashed in on a bad kick by Tennessee's Ron Widby which carried only 14 yards. The Yellow Jackets scored on a 12-yard run around end by Johnny Gresham.

The Yellow Jackets took a 14-3 lead in the third quarter when Gerry Bussell intercepted a pass by Art Galiffa deep in Tech territory and raced 84 yards for the score.

Terrapins Dump Navy, 27-22, On Kickoff Return

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Ken Ambrusko ran 101 yards with a kickoff return in the final three minutes Saturday to give Maryland a 27-22 football victory over arch rival Navy.

The exciting dash down the sidelines by the 195-pound junior quarterback from Youngstown, Ohio, eclipsed a record shattering passing performance by Navy's Roger Staubach, who only seconds before had thrown a third touchdown pass to put Navy ahead 22-21.

It was a slam-bang contest witnessed by a roaring crowd of 40,000 which filled every seat in Byrd Stadium.

Staubach's 25 pass completions in 39 attempts broke the naval academy single game record of 19 completions that he set against Notre Dame last week. His passes gained 231 yards and accounted for all three Navy touchdowns.

Phil Petry, starting quarterback in Maryland's all-sophomore backfield, was equally effective, passing for two touchdowns and scoring another on a three-yard plunge. He had powerful help from tailback Tom Hickey, whose rocking line smashes kept the Terrapin offense moving.

Missouri Comes From Behind In 16-7 Big 8 Win

COLUMBIA Mo. (AP) — Missouri spotted Colorado a gift touchdown and battled from behind with an offense sparked by quarterback Gary Lane and Charlie Brown for a 16-7 Big Eight victory Saturday.

The Tigers gave up a touchdown when Colorado recovered a fumbled punt on the Missouri eight, but Missouri came back on Lane's six-yard run and scored the decisive touchdown on a 51-yard screen pass from Lane to Brown.

Bill Bates clinched Missouri's fifth victory in eight games with a 26-yard field goal in the final two minutes.

Huskies Defeat California, 21-16

SEATTLE (AP) — The passing of Craig Morton and the dogged line play of tackle Stan Dzura were not quite enough and Washington's Huskies smashed back a fourth quarter surge by California Saturday for a 21-16 Pacific Coast Athletic Conference victory.

The decision, Washington's third in five conference starts, kept alive Husky hopes for their second successive conference title.

ATLANTIC COAST ACTION

Clemson Blanked By Tar Heel's 11

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — North Carolina methodically ground out a 29-0 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Clemson Saturday, sticking mostly to the ground and keeping Clemson bottled up.

A 69-yard scoring pass from quarterback Gary Black to back Ronnie Jackson brightened up the closing moments of the game that left North Carolina 4-4 for the season and 3-2 in the conference.

North Carolina drove 60 yards for one touchdown and staged shorter marches after Clemson fumbled for two others. Black, Ed Kesler and Ken Willard scored on one-yard plunges. North Carolina added a safety when a Clemson center snap went out of the end zone.

Clemson mounted two drives in the second period after the Tar Heels had built up a 14-point lead. The Tigers reached the North Carolina 27, but a field goal try failed. Center Bill Hanburger intercepted a Clemson pass at his two to end the other threat just before the half.

BLANK MUSTANGS, 23-0

Aggies 1st Win Humbles SMU

DALLAS (UPI)—Texas A&M broke out of the torment of an eight-game losing streak with a vengeance Saturday by cashing in on enemy mistakes and riding the passes of three quarterbacks to a 23-0 victory over Southern Methodist.

The underdog Aggies broke out of the Southern Conference cellar with the victory and snapped a losing skein that stretched back to the final game last year. It was SMU's sixth loss in seven starts.

The Aggie defense set up he victor's second period 29-yard field goal by Glynn Lindsey and third and fourth-period touchdowns by Bubber Collins from one yard out and a 17-yard pass from Charles La Grange to end Billy Uzzell by recovering SMU's fumbles.

And, the fourth came after SMU gambled on fourth down and failed at midfield with the Aggies marching to a third touchdown when their A&M quarterback, Dan McIlhany hit a 10-yarder to end John Poss with just 29 seconds left on the clock.

McIlhany had taken over in the final period after La Grange had gone out by way of the injury route — the same fate that befell Aggie starting quarterback Eddie McKaughan and brought La Grange into the game.

La Grange's pinpoint passing, mostly to rangy John Brotherton, had been the motivation in back of the first two scoring drives.

The Aggie defense throttled SMU's offense to three first downs and only six yards rushing in the first half.

SMU wound up with a minus 10 yards rushing and managed to complete only three of 16 passes for 48 yards. The Methodists lost the ball four times on fumbles.

The three Aggie quarterbacks pierced SMU's pass defense — raked fourth in the nation going into the game — for 14 out of 24 for 165 yards and two touchdowns.

Nebraska Takes Lead In Big 8 With 14-7 Win

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Unbeaten Nebraska took charge in the Big Eight by beating stubborn Kansas 14-7 Saturday on Bob Churchich's passing, Bob Hohn's running and the clutch play of its stingy defensive unit.

Nebraska then took over and ran out the clock, preserving its 15th straight victory for the longest current streak in the nation. The Huskers have a perfect 5-0 record in Big Eight play. Kansas dropped to second place at 4-1. In all games, Nebraska is 8-0 and Kansas 5-3.

Kansas tied it in six plays. Ron Oelschlager scored from the three.

Then Hohn led an 11-play 75-yard drive. He scored from the one.

Purdue Defeated By MSU, 21-7, In Big 10 Game

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State played the role of a spoiler in dealing a body blow to Purdue's Big Ten title and rose bowl hopes by upsetting the Boilermakers 21-7 Saturday.

It was the first conference loss for Purdue, previously tied with Ohio State for the league lead with four Big Ten victories. Purdue now is 5-2-0 over-all. Notre Dame. The comeback victory made MSU 4-3-0 over-all and 3-2 in the Big Ten.

Michigan State capitalized on two key breaks for touchdowns. One came after a blocked punt in the second period and the other following a pass interception call in the third. Both scores came from three yards out.

Lou Bobich, who boots the ball in side-footed soccer fashion, converted all three extra points.

The Purdue score came in the first period when the Boilermakers marched 74 yards in 16 plays the first time they got the ball. Fullback Randy Minniear ran the last eight yards.

Arizona, 14-7

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Fullback Preston Davis plunged one yard for a touchdown with 44 seconds to play to give Arizona a 14-7 victory over Idaho Saturday.

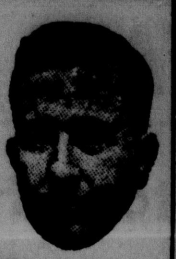
Tensas River Faces Trouble



With Sam Hanna

Flood Project Opposed

The Tensas River, which runs through one of Louisiana's prime wildlife areas, is scheduled to be converted into a drainage stream by the U. S. Corps of Engineers.

As we have done before, we voice our fears now on the prospects of what the Tensas River will be like once the Army engineers get through clearing and snagging.

If you wonder what the Tensas will be like, take a look at Boeuf River or Bayou Mason or Turkey Creek. They're muddy ditches, and that's what the Tensas River will be like.

The Army engineers plan to clear out the Tensas channel from its mouth to about the Tensas River bridge that connects Franklin and Tensas parishes, or about 109 miles.

In addition, five large bends of the river will be straightened out in an effort, we suppose, to get flood waters out of the Tensas faster. At the same time the Army engineers are building a dam near Jonesville that will back water into the Tensas River.

The Louisiana Conservationist, in a seven - page spread, presented the Tensas project in detail in its current edition, pointing out that the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission has gone on record opposed to the project.

If you haven't read the articles, then we urge you to do so, because it goes into the reasons why the Tensas project would be more harmful than helpful.

We think, however, that L. C. White, forester for Chicago Mill and Lumber Co., best pictured the problem. He pointed out that Chicago Mill owns approximately 150,000 acres in Northeast Louisiana, part of which is the 115,000-acre Chicago Mill Game Management Area.

White said, "This is well over half of the hardwood acreage in Northeast Louisiana and that half is the largest timber area in Louisiana under intensive forest and game management.

"Going through with this project would completely destroy 1,000 acres immediately and seriously affect the remaining hardwood acreage which furnishes hunting opportunity at no charge for thousands of Louisiana hunters.

"Lands are being taken right and left for such projects which are not necessary. In this case, we are being over-drained as things are. Rapid drainage taps the annual rainfall conducive to timber production. And it doesn't take a great deal of common sense to realize that as the hardwood timber goes, the game populations drop. In this area, hunters kill a great many deer. Squirrel hunting is excellent. Wild turkey flocks are well established. Why change it?"

The Chicago Mill tract of timberland is one of the few remaining big tracts of timberland left in the Louisiana Delta. Swampland is being converted into farmland all over our swamp section, which means that the future of hunting in this district is in trouble.

Haven't we drained enough in the Delta section? Or are we going to sit by and watch the Army engineers wreck another stream that means a lot to a lot of people.

The Army engineers should slow up and let the Tensas River alone. When the Tensas swamp area is gone, you can kiss the Delta's wildlife goodbye forever.

Game Agents Needed

William, only 46, had been an agent for the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission about 12 years at the time of his death. Ouachita had two state agents when he passed on. Now we have only one.

Capt. Harvey Christian, a veteran agent who serves over the agents in Richland and Ouachita and Union, praised William Oxley in a conversation with us a day or so ago.

"William worked hard, he knew a lot of people and he knew the law, which is important for a game agent," said Capt. Christian.

With William gone, agent Frank Swayze is the only state game warden in Ouachita, although the parish has two parish agents, L. E. Arrant on the west side and M. W. Meeks in the Swartz area.

Even with two state agents, we felt that Ouachita needed another, simply because the parish has a population of over 100,000 people and also because Ouachita is building a good deer herd.

We hope that the proper public officials will give this their consideration.

But Ouachita is not alone in its need for more agents. Union Parish, which is building a good deer herd also, has only one state agent. Needless to say, he can't possibly cover all the hill country of Union.

And remember that the deer hunting is shifting to the hills. In Ouachita, William Oxley's death was a loss not only to his family and friends but to the welfare of the people.

Hunting Seasons

Every hunter should pick up a copy of the 1964-65 Louisiana hunting regulations, which spell out the seasons in detail. If all hunters would do that, they would not become confused.

For instance, a 9-day still hunting season on deer opened Saturday in a small portion of Union, Bienville, Jackson, Winn and Lincoln. The season will run through November 15th.

Bucks only can be shot in the Union, Bienville, Jackson, Winn and Lincoln portion. For details on the boundary of the section that is open now, get a copy of the hunting regulations. They can be obtained from the Wild Life & Fisheries headquarters in your area, or from your sporting goods dealer or your Sheriff's Department.

Also, the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission has closed the Caldwell Game Management Area for doe hunting. The Caldwell GMA was scheduled to have a five-day any deer season beginning November 27th. Now it will be bucks only.

Other seasons are open now in Louisiana, including squirrels, rabbits and geese. The second split of the dove season ends at sundown today.

With the regular deer season opening November 27th, get a copy of the regulations so you'll be sure you're in the right area at the right time.

Little Man's Corner

The bow hunters were going strong and the little men made news afield.

Locally, the fishing was holding its own at Black Bayou too. H. C. Mills of Monroe landed 31 specs one day — including three that weighed 1½ pounds each — and went out the next day to land 41.

Bob Farrow of Monroe caught a bass at Black Bayou that weighed six and three-quarter pounds. Two West Monroe fishermen, J. A. Works and Butch Martin, caught nice strings of white perch.

Tensas Parish is producing a few good deer kills during the archery season that closes November 22nd. Billy Poe of Newellton, who has killed deer before with bow and arrow, dropped a 5-pointer while J. E. Jolly Jr. killed one of the finest bucks taken in Tensas in a long time.

While the Louisiana kills in the archery season won't be tabulated until the season ends, Arkansas reports a total kill of 15 since the season opened October 1st.

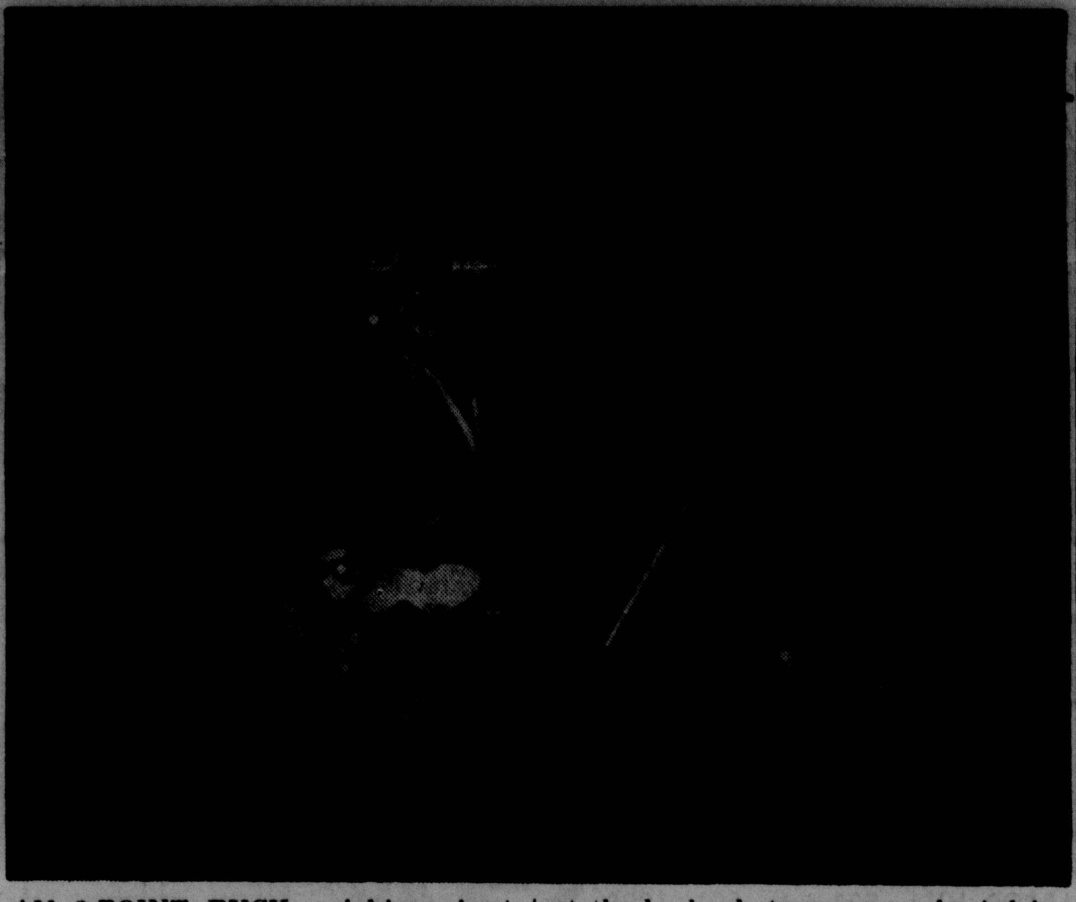
From St. Joseph, R. P. Kiper and S. L. Lofton got the limit of bream in Lake St. John and A. L. Strickland caught the limit of barfish and bass trolling in the Blue Hole.

Mrs. T. C. Barr of Jones landed the limit of bream in Old River Lake while Andy Whitten and J. T. Arnold of Ruston bagged the limit of cat squirrels in the Lake St. John area.

And, the latest waterfowl survey conducted by the Wild Life & Fisheries shows that Louisiana, between October 26-28th, had 1,401,065 ducks. South Louisiana, of course, had most of them.

Also, from Monroe, Cliff Audirsch landed 25 catfish in the Ouachita River. One weighed 27 pounds.



AN 8-POINT BUCK weighing about 200 pounds was killed by Bill Windham, a Tallulah teacher, on his farm in Madison Parish. Bill dropped the big buck with bow and arrow after the deer and another buck walked out by Windham's stand. Bill fired two shots at the bucks, but one arrow buried in the ground. After trotting off, this buck came back to investigate the arrow in the ground and that led to his doom. The Louisiana archery season runs through November 22nd.

Rebs' Second Team Defeats Spartans, 36-0

The difference was the Rebel line which kept Tampa at bay all afternoon and overran the Tampa backfield when the Spartans had the ball.

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Statistics of the Tampa-Mississippi football game:

	Tampa	Miss
First downs	8	17
Rushing yardage	15	218
Passing yardage	166	192
Passes	17-39	8-20
Passes intercepted by	2	0
Punts	9-36	7-39
Fumbles lost	1	0
Yards penalized	75	55

Cunningham got Ole Miss off to a flying start when he returned the opening kickoff to the Rebel 40. Eight plays later he circled right end 35 yards to score.

Two touchdowns and a safety in the second period removed all doubt. The Rebs added single touchdowns in the third and fourth periods.

Cunningham scored the final touchdown of the first half, making a fine catch of quarterback Charles Myers' pass and running 67 yards.

He scored the final touchdown of the game on an 11-yard sweep.

The Rebs drove 59 yards on only four plays for their second touchdown. The touchdown play was a 49-yard pass from Myers, the third team lefthander, to wingback Bill Clay. Sophomore tackle James Shows added the first of four conversions.

Late in the second quarter Ole Miss went 85 yards on only five plays with Myers pitching to Cunningham for a touchdown on a 67-yard play. On the kickoff which followed Tampa took the ball at its 15 and on a reverse halfback Billy Howell retreated into the end zone where he was tackled for a safety.

Late in the third period and Kevin Hurt of Tampa, back to punt, got a bad snap from center and had to run on fourth down. He was tackled at his 24 to set up the third Rebel touchdown.

The Rebs drove 56 yards in four plays for their final touchdown. Myers threw 39 yards to Jennings to set up Cunningham's scoring sweep.

The Rebel line superiority was reflected by the rushing statistics. Tampa got only 15 yards on the ground, compared to 218 for Ole Miss. Hitting erratically on passes, Tampa managed 166 yards on 17 completions compared to 192 yards on eight completions for Ole Miss.

Quarterback Val Johnson of Tampa completed 14 of his 35 passing attempts for 114 yards while Myers completed eight of 19 for 192 yards to lead Ole Miss.

The receiving of senior end Jim Galmin was a bright spot in an otherwise gloomy performance for Tampa. He caught nine passes for 67 yards, many of them by snatching the ball away from Ole Miss defenders.

Tulsa's Rhome Sets Marks In Pacing Victory

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Jerry Rhome set two national football records and tied another and then got help from Tulsa's defense to whip Memphis State 19-7 here Saturday.

Rhome completed 25 of 35 passes — 11 of them to Howard Twilley, the nation's leading pass catcher — to set a career pass completion record of 392 and a new mark for most points accounted for in a season, 190.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Statistics in the Memphis State-Tulsa football game:

Passing yardage	136	264

Yards penalized	81	95

But it was Tulsa's defense led by 263-pound Willie Townes and backs Jeff Jordan and Charles Hardt that preserved Rhome's record victory.

The defense never permitted the Tigers past the Tulsa 40 until the fourth quarter when little Billy Fletcher hit John Wright on a 58-yard pass play. Jordan and Hardt then combined to check a Tiger drive at the Tulsa 23, breaking up three end zone passes. The defense then stopped the Tigers on the three with 37 seconds left.

GATORS GO DOWN, 14-7

Georgia Upsets Favored Florida On Bob Etter Run

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Kicking specialist Bob Etter ran for a touchdown on a busted signal Saturday and a fired-up Georgia football team upset ninth-ranked Florida 14-7.

Etter was standing at the Florida 12 on fourth down, ready to try a field goal with the score tied and less than nine minutes to play.

When the center snap eluded end Barry Wilson, in to hold for the kick, Etter picked up the ball and looked for someone to pass to. Then he saw daylight to the goal and ran into the end zone before the Florida defense recovered.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Statistics of the Georgia-Florida football game:

	Georgia	Florida
First downs	10	13
Rushing yardage	155	76
Passing yardage	0	145
Passes	0-2	10-18
Passes intercepted by	2	1
Punts	6-39	4-45
Fumbles lost	2	4
Yards penalized	23	40

Fumbles set up the Georgia touchdowns, both scored in the fourth quarter. The Bulldogs had to go only 30 yards on their first scoring drive and 21 yards on their second.

In each case, quarterback Preston Ridlehuber and a bunch of quick, eager blockers punctured Florida's defense that had been ranked ninth in the nation.

Georgia tried only two passes. One was incomplete and one intercepted.

The Bulldogs kept their Southeastern Conference hopes alive with this fourth victory against one loss in Conference standings. It was the Bulldogs' fifth win of the season, along with two losses and one tie.

Florida, now is 5-2 for the year. This was the first time the Gators have lost to Georgia in the traditional game since Ray Graves became Florida's head coach in 1960.

MCNEESE, 12-10

Cowboys Come Back For Win

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — McNeese drove 80 yards in the closing minutes to stage a come from behind, 12-10, victory over Northwestern here Saturday night and move into second place in the Gulf States Conference race with a 2-1 record behind undefeated Louisiana Tech.

Quarterback Jimmy Guillory, directing the Cowboy offense, brought his team upfield in 11 plays, circling right end for the final 15 yards and the score with 4:21 showing on the clock.

Fullback Merlin Wallet and all-American halfback Charles Anastasio, both juniors, picked up 37 and 26 yards, respectively, in the drive. Anastasio carried 16 times in the game for a total of 135 yards, while Wallet picked up 102 yards on 16 trips.

Northwestern had slipped into the lead with 9:06 left in the game on a spectacular 62 yard scoring aerial from quarterback Don Beasley to Dick Reding to cap a six play, 91 yard drive. This score put the Demons in front, 10-6.

Anastasco got the winners on the scoreboard early in the second quarter on a 10 yard run. The PAT attempt failed and the Cowboys took a 6-0 lead to the dressing room. This drive carried 50 yards in six plays with Anastasio picking up 30 yards in four carries.

NSC took the ball early in the third quarter on a short punt and marched from the McNeese 47 down to within field goal range where Jimmy Scott booted a 25 yarder to give the Demons their first score of the night with 7:38 remaining in the quarter.

The Demons, who entered the game ranked ninth in the nation's small college poll in total offense, was held to 97 yards rushing and 93 yards passing by the stingy Cowboy defense.

McNeese now has an overall record of 5-2, while Northwestern is 4-3 and 1-2.

The World Through Twin-E-Scope

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Paul L. Honig, president of Anglo Fabrics, conceded to be this country's only fashion fabrics creator in wools, held his semi-annual fabrics preview the other day for the fashion editors. Mr. Honig spoke with authority on the creating of quality fabrics, and displayed the trend setters for spring, 1965.

He distinguished between colors which will be widely popular and those he called "fashion" colors. These are the more unusual shades, such as two in orange (one a true tangerine), two corals (one very pale, the other bright and deep), a new pink called Strawberry-Glo and a true lavender called Heather Bloom.

Mr. Honig made some interesting fashion predictions about silhouettes. He claimed that American retailers were holding back on fitted styles because semi-fits are easier to sell, and that manufacturers disliked fitted styles because they had forgotten how to make them.

"It's hard today to find workers skilled enough to make them, but I believe they will have to come. When selling gets tough, Givenchy will be the hero of the hour," said Mr. Honig, calmly flying in the face of all the fashion pundits, who say that Givenchy's espousal of fit is an absolute dud.

Among Anglo's spring fabrics are quilted pique - surface wools, double-surface wools that keep a loose silhouette from becoming droopy, and some of the first high-quality, true fashion stretch fabrics. Anglo has pioneered in this field.

Suede Coat Reverses To Otter Side

Suede on one side and fur on the reverse side is a natural idea which Americans discovered from the Spanish recently when Spain's best known designers sailed into the World's Fair for its pavilion opening.

Spankin is the name of the new process styled by a Castilian design house called Foncastel. For the Fair shows it was shaped into a handsome beige suede coat which reverses to the otter side. (No pun intended.)

Ladies Pants Go Feminine

Yes, ladies are wearing long pants and tailored jackets, all right, but some have no more similarity to men's than their length. For example, what male would be caught dead in a pant-suit with permanently pleated crepe pants wide at the bottom, as designed by Luci Ann? But these please the ladies, especially with powder blue blazer, and pink chiffon ascot.

MISS REBECCA ANN STOKER

Rebecca Stoker To Wed James Kyle November 27

November 27 is the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Rebecca Ann Stoker and James Clayton Kyle, both of Luling, whose forthcoming marriage is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Stoker of Baton Rouge. Mr. Kyle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Kyle, 2408 N. 8th, West Monroe

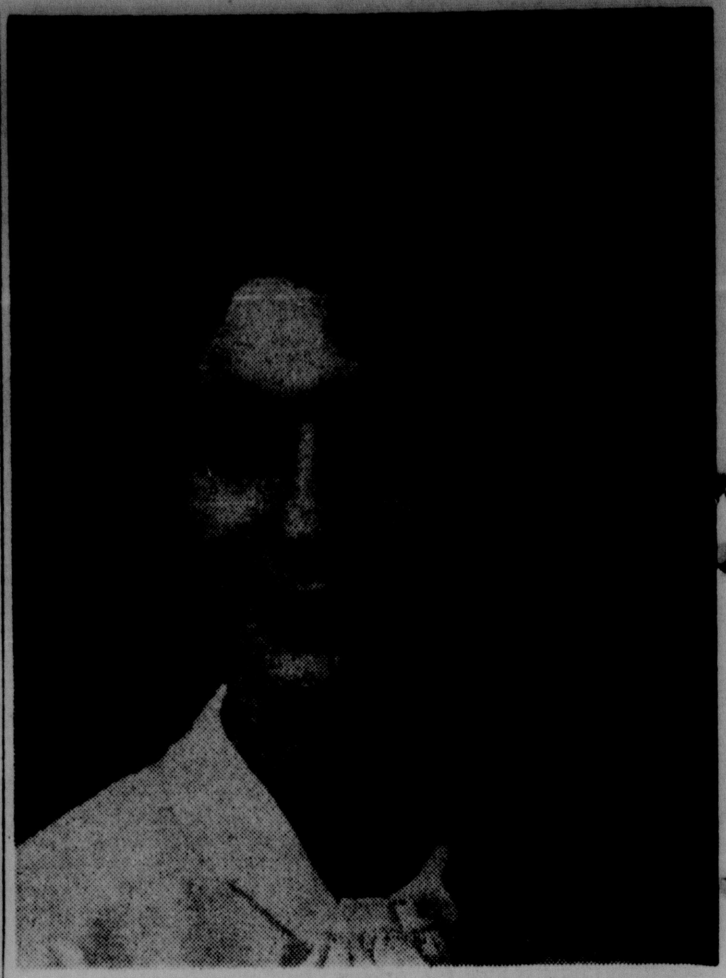
The wedding will take place at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church in Pleasant Hill with Rev. J. C. Salley officiating.

Attendants chosen by the bride-elect include Miss Zoila Valdeiviso, as maid of honor and Miss Brenda Sharp and Miss Mary Dunn, bridesmaids. Candlelighters will be Miss Cathy Beth Reed and John Farr.

Mr. Kyle has named Ronnie Wimberley to serve as best man and chosen as groomsmen are Al Farr and Carl Bartenhagen. Ushers will be Tommy Farr, Merrill Cummings and Roy Bush Bridges.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Pleasant Hill high school and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Kyle, whose fraternity is Pi Kappa Alpha, was graduated from West Monroe high school and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Following their marriage the couple will reside in Luling where Mr. Kyle is a chemical engineer for Monsanto Chemical Co., and Miss Stoker is teaching in the elementary school.



ENGAGEMENT of Miss Daina Louise Harp to Ivan O. Morris Jr., of Bonita, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan O. Morris of Wilmot, Ark., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil D. Harp of Bonita. The wedding will be an event of December 2 in the Bonita Methodist Church with the Rev. Edward R. Haug of Monroe performing the ceremony at 6 p.m.

Navy Can Be Worn All Year

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: Can a navy blue dress in wool with a suit type of jacket be worn in winter? If so, with what color hat and accessories?

A: Navy, like most colors today, is worn year round. Hat can be red, orange or white. Navy shoes and bag are best, with bone gloves, but brown bag and gloves may also be used.

Q: May patent leather be used year round?

A: Yes, Many of the "season" fashion rules were made in the days when there existed such limited choices that women felt things had to be kept for seasonal use. Now there are few seasonal rules about anything except for warmth or coolness.

Q: What time of year does one change from winter to spring hats?

A: It depends on the section of the country. The change is made earlier in warmer areas than in colder ones. However, velvet and other fabric hats can actually be worn at any time, while straws usually appear around Easter.

A: Regular fall clothes. Have warm coat, gloves, head warmer hat, as the area can be very chilly at that time. However, as sunny days are warm, take the jacket kind of costume or suit that can be taken off in the warmer hours.

A: Yes, of course the dress would be fine. Use a hat in a color contrast — any vivid shade would do, especially in velvet.

Q: For a fairly deep blue dress bought for a matinee and dinner, can I wear bone shoes and bag, or would black accessories be better?

A: From the sample of the color you sent me, I would prefer navy shoes and bag to black, which would deaden this shade of blue. The hat should have some bright contrast color such as pink, red or white, or be entirely in one of these colors.

Q: I have a silvery metallic and white dress. Can it be worn for a fall dance?

A: This kind of dress goes to a dance at any time of year unless it's too heavy for warm weather.

If you have a question concerning fashion, send it to Florence de Santis, in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Leather Look Captured In Cotton Togs

Cotton has a new look. And the look is leather. The biggest fashion fun news for fall centers on a brand new 100 per cent cotton that looks and feels like leather, reports the National Cotton Council.

Supple and butter-soft, the new leather-like cotton is washable, porous, water - repellant, and unafraid of an iron. In short, it's the ideal fabric for coat and sportswear designers, who feature it in youthful fashions that have great flair.

Sleek, casual and young, is a separates group based on black and brown leather-like cotton in tandem with bright cotton calico prints. On the mock leather side is an A-line wrap-around skirt (short or long) closed at the waist with a chain leash, a vest, slim pants, and a hooded cloak styled like a Moroccan burnoose. The calico side of the story is told in the gay color-coordinated blouses and the vest linings.

Jumpsuits Go To Parties

The private party in Paris is a social institution whose glamou. is likely to go to the opposite extreme from American casual ways at home. Paris fashionables dress more for private parties than they sometimes do for balls.

It's a special kind of dressing, with an avant-garde touch. The newest fashion is the jumpsuit, that one-piece pants costume that seems anything but sports-like at a Paris party. Chanel made it in gold lame, for example, with a chiffon coat to go over it, and it's great for all the new wiggly dances.

Stretch white wool is another favored fabric for Paris jumpsuits, found more often in poorly heated country houses, however, than in Paris apartments. After all, with a white mink jacket, what could be better for a party in the country.

Culottes Offer Animation In New Fashion

The split personality of culottes has become even more unusual, exciting and complex!

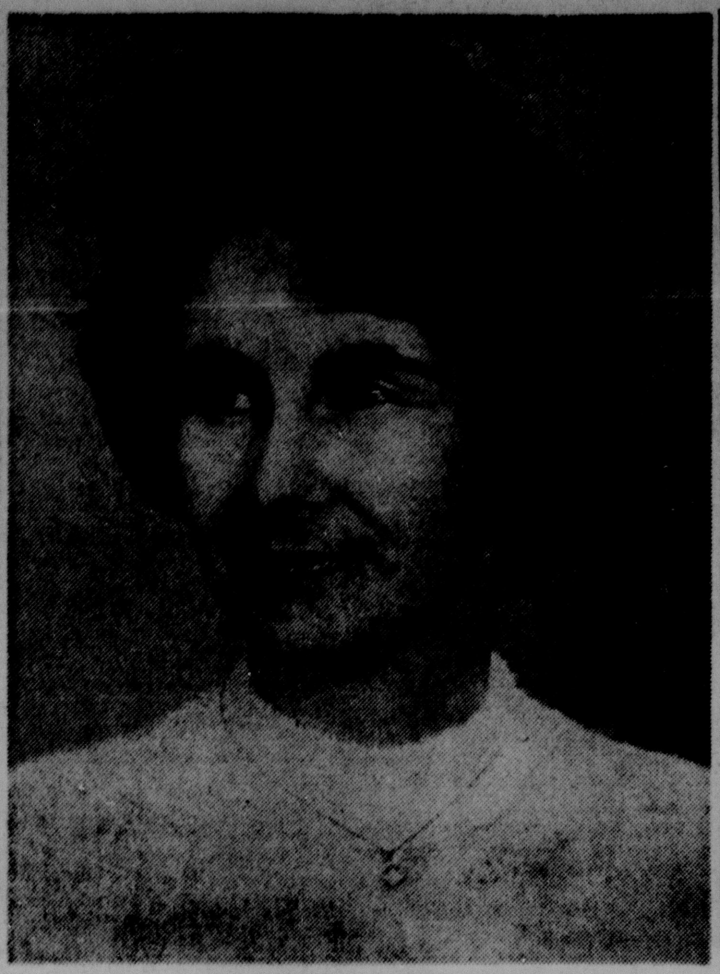
Culottes, with their skirt-like look, appear in dresses, lingerie and sleepwear . . . as well as being a new sportswear fashion!

This season, culottes go to all lengths — from full length dinner gowns (all the rage), dress length town costumes, to Bermuda-length fun outfits!

The shorter culottes look great over tights and topped with an overblouse. Knee sox too, will be right in style.

Versatility is the big point of culottes . . . combining the practicality of pants with the feminine look of a skirt. Best of all, culottes are wonderfully flattering for any figure.

About the easiest wearing fabric is wool hopsacking. Hopsacking got its name from the weave used in sackings used to gather hops in Scotland.



A DECEMBER 10 wedding is planned by Miss Linda Sue Roberts of Holly Ridge and Bobby Cumpton of Rayville, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Roberts. Have Glove Wardrobe On Hand For Fall

Some fashion arbiters feel that the gloves you wear indicate the degree of your sophistication. Taking every woman from A.M. through P.M. is the collection which master glove-creator Aris provides for Fall '64.

Short and casual gloves are right for A.M. activities. The capeskin shortie with stitching around its faintly flared top and inside vent is newly popular.

For five P.M. and later, the pale little jeweled shortie can be used with understated cocktail dresses or theater suits. Evening ambience is given with over - the - elbow classics in smooth kid, the 12-button length amenable to crushing downward below the sleeve of a theater coat or costume, or to being worn smoothly on an arm bared by a short-sleeved crepe or brocade. And for the newly fashion-important floor-length evening ensemble, the proper glove is the high-rising sixteen-buttoner in sleek and shiny black or white kid. Opening at the inside of the wrist, musketeer fashion, with three tiny pearls, the hand part can easily be removed for dining.

All-in-all, your glove collection can emphasize the good fashion of your wardrobe!

Mad, Mad Fur Season Shows Way-Out Ideas

At Georges Kaplan it's everything from little jackets for schoolgirls to a $100,000 chinchilla carpet, wall-to-wall. Late season garden chores might be done in Kaplan's mink overall, and do go to the P.T.A. meeting in his mink cardigan.

The fur suit is standard now, with everybody making them and well-heeled ladies ordering them two at a time, in black and white. So it's much newer to have velours de veau pants with a belted mink jacket to go over them.

This was in the Emeric Partos collection for Bergdorf Goodman. He went on to breeches (short pants) in white mink, broadtail or satin. The white mink ones had a kind of bikini top to them and a short coat to wear over both.

Election Night Returns were center of interest at a number of parties planned in Monroe Tuesday evening. However, from all reports, most of these affairs turned into gloomy sessions of "Misery Loves Company" as our area proved to be completely out of step with the majority of voters in the country as a whole.

One party must have been gay, as it honored its own "Matrimonial Winners:" FRAN and RAY TALLEY. Invitations shaped like voting booths were mailed last week by LINDA and TOM DANSBY, LOU and NOLAND HARVEY, bidding guests gather to honor this couple married early in the summer. Each arrival entered the Dansby residence through a full-sized, curtained voting booth. A large size sample ballot affixed to the door was marked with an extra handle labeled "Push Here to Vote for Fran and Ray," with arrow pointing to the doorbell.

A bouquet of white camellias was placed on the coffee table in the living room. On the credenza was a large red candle, encircled with small silk American flags and pyracantha foliage. Noted in the den was a white urn filled with pyracantha and white dahlias. Center of interest was a handmade "television" set featuring a picture of Fran and Ray, and lights blinking the caption "The Winners."

Campaign posters and red, white and blue bunting set the theme for a return-watching party at the home of EVELYN and ROY COLE Tuesday evening. Co-hosts on this occasion were WAVA and HARRY FRAZER JR. Posters were used in living room and den. The dining table was covered with red, white and blue crepe paper, scattered with sample ballots. Individual tables were centered with fresh flowers. Eight couples enjoyed a buffet which included venison roast, blackeyed peas, Cole slaw, and corn bread.

Donkeys and elephants keynoted decorations when LOUISE and NAJ KLAM invited sixteen guests for an election night party. Figurines of the animals were used with American flags on the hors d'oeuvres table, where daub glace, liver pate, and hogshead cheese were served, with other dips and snacks.

Campaign posters were used on the wall behind the red and white covered buffet table. Here the centerpiece included more donkeys and elephants, with flags and shields. Supper, served later in the evening, included pizza pie, hot tamale pie, salads, and cheese cake.

Twenty-five couples watched election results at the hospitable home of ROBERTINE and BEN COBB on Point Drive. Pink roses, arranged with pale pink chrysanthemums, were used throughout the reception area. Highlighting the supper menu were fried fish chips, fresh cooked by the host, working on the patio. The standing buffet served throughout the evening included roast turkey, eggplant casserole, and assorted cakes.

After a hard day of poll-watching, COY and JAY ADAMS invited a few neighbors over to watch returns and to share the misery. Snacks were served during the evening, with cake and coffee later after the watchers gave up hope.

An intricate form of election bingo, computed on popular vote, districts, and electoral college, was played over at CAROL and JESSE McDONALD's Tuesday night, with HARRY BELL declared winner. Carol served buffet supper from a table centered with bronze chrysanthemums arranged with a small scarecrow as focal point. The menu served to twelve guests included baked ham, barbecued beans, a choice of congealed or green salad, Danish rolls, and coffee.

It was a potluck supper at the TOMMY GODFREYS, with each guest bringing a specialty to contribute to the menu. The buffet thus assembled included beef stroganoff, asparagus and almond casserole, croissants, and lemon chiffon pie. Guests were ANN and JOE LEDOUX, the DON STINSONS, and BOB CURRYS.

Interesting visitors were in town last weekend to attend the organ and harpsichord recital given by FRANK SPELLER at Northeast Louisiana State College Sunday afternoon. Guests were Frank's parents, MR. and MRS. FRANK SPELLER II, of Tyler, Texas, and his brother, BILL SPELLER, OF Haynesville. They were here from Saturday until Monday morning. On Sunday evening, CLIO and DICK BRIGHT entertained at a dinner party for the Spellers. Ten guests were seated at a table centered with Talisman roses.

Yesterday morning, CLAIRE SEYMOUR and LYNN KEMP celebrated sixth birthdays at a joint party at Bayou DeSiard country club. Guests were members of the honoree's first grade class at Sallie Humble school. Madras shirts and blue jeans were the order of the day in dress for young guests, who took turns riding ponies. Punch, ice cream, and birthday cake were served.

Earliest harbingers of Thanksgiving were noted in appointments at the bridge luncheon given Wednesday by THELMA CAMPBELL. The table in Bayou DeSiard country club's bay window was covered with a gold cloth and centered with a "basket of plenty." Bronze and gold chrysanthemums, ribbon variegated in autumn tones, stalks of wheat, and fall fruit and foliage overflowed from the basket. Place cards echoed the harvest colors. Twelve guests were served turkey dinner with baked acorn squash, green pears, cranberry salad, and mincemeat pudding with rum sauce. Following luncheon, three tables were set up for bridge games on the porch.

A gourmet dinner was served Wednesday evening when the JERRY RYANS entertained nine guests at their home on Pargoud boulevard. Cissy centered her table with an arrangement of bronze and gold chrysanthemums. The menu included Cornish game hen, served with dressing, hot artichokes, asparagus casserole, green salad and almond refrigerator dessert.

On Thursday master BILL RYAN was six years old and celebrated fittingly with a cowboy party in Forsythe Park. Twenty boys and girls were invited between 3:30 and 4:30. Birthday cake, baked in the shape of a cowboy boot, was served with ice cream.

First oyster roast of the season is planned for this coming Saturday night, November 14, at Bayou DeSiard country club. This perennial favorite with club members is always one of the club's most popular parties. Oysters prepared in a variety of styles are served, with boiled shrimp, barbecued ribs, and all the trimmings. Supper is to be served beginning at 6:30 p.m.

It costs nothing, yet creates much.
It enriches those who receive, without impoverishing those Who give. . . . .
It happens in a flash and the memory of it
Sometimes lasts forever.
No one is so rich he can get along without it —
And no one is so poor but that he is richer
For its benefits.
It creates happiness in the home, fosters good-will in business and is
The countersign of friends.
It is rest to the weary, daylight to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and Nature's best antidote for Trouble.
And if in the hurry and rush of the day, you meet
Someone who is too weary to give you
For no one needs a smile so much as those Who have none left to give!

Candlelight Vows Unite Dale Leach, John House

In a candlelight ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Delhi on Sunday, November 1, Miss Elra Dale Leach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leach of Delhi, became the bride of John LaValle House, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam L. House Jr., of Lake Providence.

Rev. Connie Ward performed the double ring vows at 3 p.m. following nuptial music by Miss Diane Deloach, organist. Baskets of white gladioli and pompons with silver flocked greenery, tied with blue satin bows were alternated with seven-branched and tree candelabra to form a background setting for the white satin prie dieu. Single blue candles with silver flocked greenery marked the pew caps.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white satin gown styled with floor length belled skirt and wrist length sleeves, topped by a sleeveless jacket of white lace. Her veil of illusion, bordered with lace fell waist length from a single rose and lily of the valley headpiece. She carried a garland of white pixie carnations, ivy, white tulle and satin, centered with a white orchid atop a white Bible.

Miss Jere Card served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sharron Matheney and Miss Sheri Loper. They wore identical short dresses of blue peau de soie with matching satin slippers and headdresses of matching blue peau de soie ribbon, net and lace. Their bouquets were cascades of white miniature chrysanthemums with blue tulle and satin ribbon. Flower girl, Miss Pamela Best, was dressed identically to the other attendants and carried a replica of their bouquets.

Mr. House attended his son as best man and groomsmen were Lonnie Batton and Billy Ray Harper. Serving as ushers were Noble Ellington and Pat Bonner and candlelighters were Jimmy House and Bill Langston. Jeff Best, cousin of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a two piece blue lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of red garnet roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue knit model with beige accessories and corsage of garnet roses.

A reception followed in the social room of the church where the bride's table was covered with a white cutwork cloth over blue. The attendants' bouquets based a silver candelabra holding blue tapers which formed the central decor for the table. Miss Shirley Stephens presided at the punch bowl and Miss Jeanne Dishong served the tiered wedding cake. Tea girls were Misses Billy Woodruff, Sandra Leach, and Carrole Crawford and Miss Becky White distributed blue and white rice bags among the guests.

Mrs. Mable Best, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest book table which displayed a memory candle and the bride's bouquet.

For a wedding trip along the Southern Gulf Coast to Biloxi, Miss., the bride changed into a charcoal gray suit with gold hat and gold and black accessories. She wore an orchid corsage. The couple will be at home in Lake Providence.

The bride is a graduate of Lake Providence high school and Mr. House, who graduated from Delhi high school, attended Louisiana Tech and Northeast Louisiana State College majoring in agriculture.

MR. AND MRS. JERRY RALPH MURPHY

West Monroe Couple Wed In Baptist Chapel

The Chapel of First Baptist Church, West Monroe, was scene of the ceremony Friday, October 30 which united in marriage Miss Sandra Gayle Parker and Jerry Ralph Murphy. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Parker, 101 Dorsis, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Murphy, 213 Carter Drive, all of West Monroe.

Rev. J. T. Garrett, grandfather of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony at 2 p.m. following a program of wedding music by Miss Sandra Telford, organist and Mrs. Don Murphy, sister-in-law of the groom, who sang.

Serving as best man was Byron E. Bodenheimer and usher was Don Murphy, brother of the groom.

The bride's mother was wearing for the occasion a royal blue double knit sheath and jacket costume with black accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother chose a rose double knit ensemble with black brocade hat and nude accessories. Her corsage was also of white chrysanthemums. Mrs. J. T. Garrett, of Chatham, grandmother of the groom, wore a peacock blue dress with white gloves and black accessories and white mum corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the chapel. Miss Dorinda Rogers presided at the guest book at a table which displayed a memory candle. The bride's table was covered with a white damask cloth, overlaid with pink net and centered with a crystal epergne filled with pink flowers flanked by pink tapers in gold candle holders. Miss Susan Wade presided at the crystal punch bowl and serving the tiered wedding cake opposite was Miss Lois Wade.

For a wedding trip to Baton Rouge the bride changed into a pink wool knit suit with gray accessories and her orchid corsage. The couple is at home at 113 Violet St., in West Monroe, where the bride is a student at West Monroe high school. Mr. Murphy is a graduate of West Monroe high school and served four years in the air force, stationed at Albuquerque, N. Mex.

MR. AND MRS. JOE FRANKLIN WISENOR

Wisenor-Fisher Vows Are Read In Home Scene

Arrangements of pink daisy chrysanthemums formed a background setting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Fisher, 2107 Rainbow Drive, West Monroe, for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Betty Lynn Fisher to Joe Franklin Wisenor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Wisenor, 316 Pecan, Monroe.

Rev. E. W. Caughron performed the double ring ceremony at 5 p.m. on Saturday, October 31.

Mr. Fisher gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a dress of white lace over taffeta, styled with full skirt and three-quarter length full sleeves. She wore a small veiled pillbox hat and carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a purple orchid, showered with ribbon streamers.

Miss Janis Clark, who served as maid of honor, wore a red velvet sheath with wrist length sleeves and a corsage of red and white carnations.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Fisher wore a pink crepe sheath with accessories of neutral patent and a pink corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a suit of royal blue with mink trim, accessories of cranberry patent and a corsage of pink daisies.

Following the exchange of vows a reception was held in the home. An arrangement of pink daisy chrysanthemums, flanked by pink candles, centered the table with the tiered wedding cake and punch bowl at opposite ends. Pink daisies also graced the table which held the bride's book.

Convert Garage Into New Room

Don't overlook the garage if you're seeking ways to expand and improve your home, advises the Tile Council of America.

This taken-for-granted area can be converted into a useful recreation room if you go about it properly.

First, the garage should be finished like a room. If it's a two - car garage, use sliding doors so that at least half the garage's contents are hidden from the street at any one time. Next the floor should be surfaced with a rugged material such as quarry tile that's easy to clean and requires practically no maintenance.

Quarry tile now comes in a variety of colors and sizes. It's also available in various shapes — square, rectangular and speciality patterns. There also are rounded pieces to make it easier to clean corners.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mita Faye McVey, daughter of Mrs. Alma McVey, to Harlon Albritton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Albritton, all of Winnsboro. The wedding is planned for December 11 at 7 p.m. in Emmanuel Baptist Church at Winnsboro.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Opposite Blood Types Can Produce Children

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Dave and I have been going together for three years. He is now a junior in college and we plan to be married when he graduates.

Recently when I gave a pint of blood to a friend who was injured in an accident I learned my blood type is O negative. Dave was upset when I told him because he is a B positive. He says it is possible that we could not have a child who would survive because of the differences in our blood types.

After hours of talking it over Dave told me perhaps we should break our engagement and go separate ways. I love him and I was certain he loved me, but now I'm so distraught I'm not even sure of my own name. Please tell me if Dave is right about this or whether it could be an excuse to break off with me? Thank you. — INDIGO

Dear Indigo: The combination of your blood type and Dave's could indeed produce children with blood problems. Many years ago such babies died, and no one knew why. Today when physicians know of this condition in advance (and yours will) the babies can be given transfusions at birth and grow up to be well and healthy.

I suggest you and Dave go to a specialist. He will give you the facts.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl 15 with an unusual problem — people insist on giving me their old clothes.

My parents are not rich or poor — but sort of in the middle. I have all the clothes I need and I've always felt neatly dressed. Yet the women I babysit for, my grandmother's housekeeper and the ladies from my mother's church auxiliary are forever dropping off boxes of dresses their children have outgrown or just got tired of.

I know these people mean well and I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings but they are either too large or too small, or I just don't like the way they look on me.

I've thought of accepting the clothes gracefully then throwing them out, but this doesn't seem right. Please tell me what to do. — SHMOTTAS

Dear Shmottas: Thank the people nicely, let them know you appreciate their kindness but tell them you don't need extra clothes. Suggest they call Goodwill Industries. This wonderful organization makes sure the used clothing gets into the hands of those who do need this kind of help.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the boobytraps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Distinctive Ranch Type Fits On Irregular Lot

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Architects often are asked to design a house that will fit on an irregular lot. Knowing the exact shape and dimensions of the lot makes it possible to produce a design which is both distinctive and practical.

It is more difficult, however, to create a house plan of such flexibility that it can be placed on almost any irregular lot to suit the terrain. But architect Samuel Paul has done just that in the latest in the House of the Week series with a well-planned three-bedroom ranch with clean contemporary lines and all the modern comforts and conveniences. Its shallow V-shape enables it to be set on an odd-shaped piece of land or, on a conventional plot, to be turned to take advantage of a particular orientation with the sun.

OUTSTANDING FEATURE

The outstanding interior feature of this interesting house is the sunken, six-sided living room. Two steps below the foyer, it has a fireplace at the rear, space for built-in cabinets and glass galore, including a sliding door to the patio. In addition, the living room may be opened to the family room via a folding door, thus creating a large free-flowing area, ideal for entertaining. The living room is so positioned that anyone opening the front door has a clear view of the stylish fireplace. The huge foyer serves as an effective circulation center, since it is possible to go from there to the living room, the dining room, the family room, one of the bathrooms or the bedroom wing without crossing any other room.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-56.

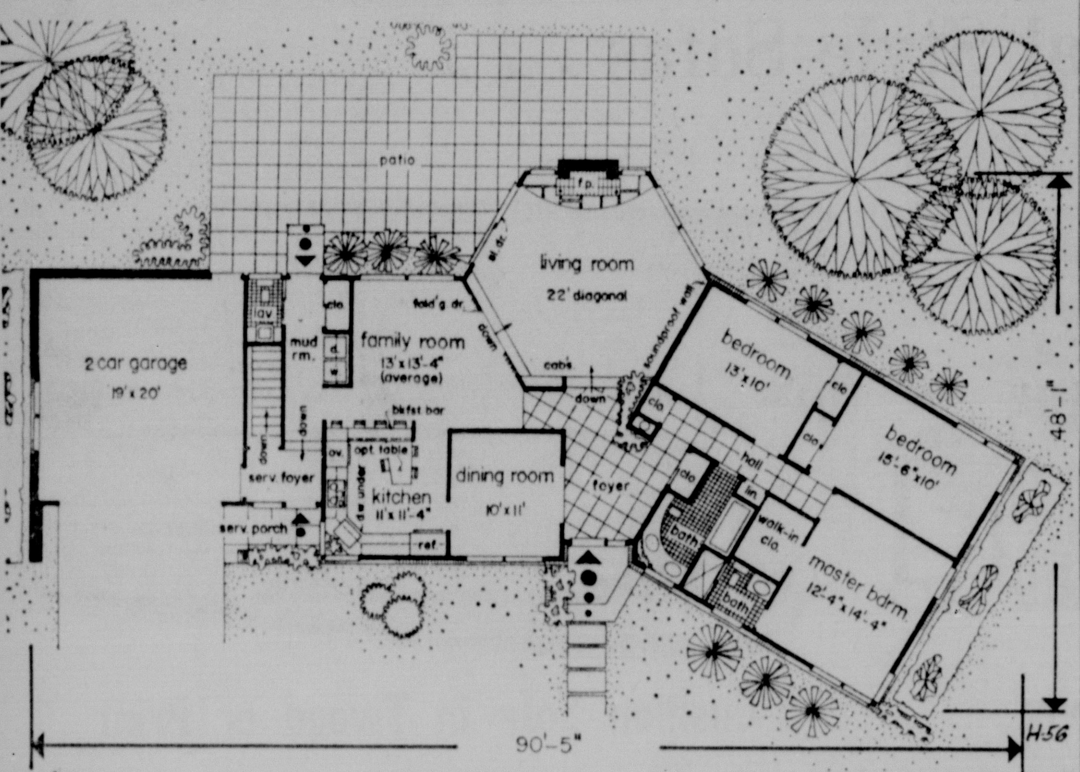
Although the kitchen is open to the family room, which in turn overlooks the rear patio, the major view of the kitchen is toward the front via a corner window over the sink. This unusual departure, in turn, has permitted a convenient service foyer to be located close to the driveway. Although it faces the front, this service entry is well concealed by an outside porch and a wide overhang. The introduction of this added convenience does not take the place of the rear mud room area, with its lavatory, laundry alcove and closet, but is directly tied to it. The resulting "through" service hall, with its front and rear entrances, will save much wear and tear over the years.

CONVENIENCES

Another concenience feature is the long breakfast bar between the kitchen and the family room. This bar, together with a table which could be located alongside, can provide enough seats to feed a sizable group.

The bedroom wing to the right of the entrance foyer, has three bedrooms, two bathrooms and five closets. One of the baths and an over-size walk-in closet are in the main bedroom. Since any well-designed house must have a noise buffer between the living area and the bedroom wing, architect Paul has made doubly certain that any member of the family retiring early will not be disturbed. He has provided for a soundproof wall between the living room and the adjoining bedroom.

The long, low silhouette of Design H-56 is enhanced by the exterior combination of brick veneer and vertical siding. An interesting use of a raised gutter with extended rafters creates a trellised effect around the entire house, adding an attractive play of light and shadow. The 1875 square feet within this house does not include the two-car garage, foyer, basement and patio.



FLOOR PLANS: Note the excellent traffic circulation of this unusual design, with easy movement from the foyer to any part of the house, as well as from the service porch to the patio.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Colorful Designs

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The program was presented last Wednesday by the Garden of Eden Garden Club of Bastrop. The club's president, Mrs. Claude Houston, and several of the club's talented members made the designs which contained materials from the gardens of the arrangers.

The finest of mum specimens and dahlias dominated the well executed designs. A selection of choice mums were sent by Mrs. J. E. Jackson of 108 Highland Ave., Bastrop, former president of Garden of Eden Garden Club. These were placed on display at the Garden Center along with the colorful designs, six in all.

BLENDING

The first arrangement, made by Mrs. Claude Houston, contained all mums of several types, but blending in colors, orange into bronze. The tall placement was made of the small bronze mums with buds at the tip followed by larger orange mums. Three bronze (giant) mums clustered together near the basic part of the design created the focal interest. The container was a yellow and brown mingled colored ceramic compote.

For her second design, Mrs. Houston created a vertical line using banana stalk with the leaves clipped to about four or five inches. Three buds followed within this tall line which was placed in a tall black cylinder container. Oasis held the material in place. Two cerise colored dahlias were placed low, one being very large created the focal interest. Several smaller leaves of the banana plant filled in the background for the large dahlia. A round wooden base painted black, was placed beneath this design to give proper balance. This is an excellent exotic design for the tall, narrow wall space, perhaps in the hall.

Mrs. L. B. Rogers used a lovely white ""basket type" milk glass compote for the unusual design created with lavender mums. The line was an inverted oval made of small lavender mums contrasted with baby ivy. Larger mums of the same color filled in the central part of the design. To add a soft touch, Mrs. Rogers clipped cedar and placed it throughout the entire design. Also, holly leaves were used to create contrast in color as well as textures.

YELLOW MUMS

Mrs. W. C. Beasley made an adaptation of the Japanese Moribana using three exquisite yellow Fugi mums for the three placements, Heaven, Man, Earth, lines that form the triangle so typical of the Japanese designs. The bowl, also oriental in feeling, was a round, footed, black ceramic with a moss green lining. The line of the mums were placed in a needle point holder to the back, left side of the bowl. This being a "water-viewing" style, informal, one could imagine this to be a scene of a tree beside a river or pond. The holder was covered with tips of green coleus, also typical of Japanese. This type design inspired from the Orient and Japan is quite suitable for our American homes.

In fact our contemporary (line) designs are derived from the Japanese. A gold mat placed under this design added the finishing touch, and gave proper balance as well as pleasing color harmony.

Mrs. Beasley used several types of mums entirely for her second design. The bronze mums formed a curving line (asymmetrical) in a bronze ceramic vase that resembled copper (antique). For the secondary line she used small bronze-yellow mums to accent this first line. Then on the opposite side she grouped bright yellow mums which formed the filler necessary for color contrast. The base for this design, very distinctive, was a burl wood that blended perfectly with the bronze colored mums and container.

ROSES USED

The last design was made by Mrs. Byron Rogers, daughter to Mrs. L. B. Rogers. Very cleverly she used all roses (five) to form a diagonal line in a tall glass vase-type container. The container was made by placing two epergne holders together end-to-end to form one tall container. There is nothing more impressive than ""all Roses" in a design, especially if they are the last ones to be found in the garden. The leaves of the roses were used as filler to accent the lovely half-open roses.

A wonderful show from a wonderful garden club. Thanks, from all of us who had the privilege to see it.

This week, the Rayville Garden Club, of which Mrs. R. L. Walters is president will present the program, so be watching.

Date to mark: Nov. 10, Bank of Oak Grove will be the scene of the third annual Chrysanthemum Show at Oak Grove. Try to go see this.

NEW PRODUCTS

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — New products sure to please the lady of the house, topped off by the first new hosiery fabric in nearly a quarter century.

A polypropylene olefin fiber is expected to offer nylon the first real challenge it has had as a yarn for women's hosiery. The fiber — the same as that used in recently introduced "outdoor-in-door" carpets — when spun into 15 denier sheer hosiery fabric, is said to produce a stocking that offers softer feel, increased snag resistance, easier washing, faster drying, and low thermal conductivity properties which make it cooler to wear in summer, warmer in winter. Hosiery mills will produce stockings of the new fiber under a variety of trade names.

With aerosol old stuff in everything from perfume to insect repellents, the latest thing is a gadget that fits on top of spray cans and automatically turns them on at specified intervals. Just wind the top, set it for duration of operation up to 10 hours, slip it on top of the can and only the imagination will limit the results. Initially, it is being used for decongestant sprays for the sick room. Used with insecticides at strategically placed locations it could insure a bug-free atmosphere — or, with perfume, to surround the hostess with an aura of her favorite fragrance.

Latest in home carpet cleaning is a triple action rug shampooer that is said to cut drying time sharply and make it almost impossible to soak the floor covering. A new foam generation system does the trick. Rug shampoo is released by a trigger on the appliance handle and is first distributed to a polyurethane sponge roller. This in turn is in instant contact with two grooved rollers which turn as the cleaner is moved over the carpet, generating dry foam above the carpet which is then rolled onto the rug surface where nylon brushes work it into the pile for maximum dirt removal.

A new kitchen helper in a spray-on protector for oven interiors, range tops, electric frypans, broilers, barbecue grills. Used regularly on pre-cleaned metal or porcelain surfaces it makes soap and water all that's needed to wipe away ordinary food spills and grease splatters. Said to be odorless, non-toxic and non-inflammable.

Any homemaker will appreciate a product that eliminates the hazard of damage to expensive carpeting and tile floorings from salt used to keep walks and drives ice free in winter. A new chemical de-icer is said to melt 36 times faster than salt yet be completely harmless to cement, blacktop, ornamental grillework, metal of all kinds, grass and shrubs, and to leave no residue to be tracked indoors.

It is said to maintain effective melting action at temperatures from freezing to 60 degrees below zero.

Shrub, Tree Planting

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Remember to do some thinking and planning before planting shrubs and trees this month. Following are some points to consider and remember: Allow ample space between young plants and house and walks for plants to grow naturally. Group trees and shrubs of the same variety for harmony and unity.

Too great a variety of textures, forms and colors in one area gives a spotty appearance. Do not sacrifice quality in plants for quantity. Only purchase healthy, vigorous plants from reliable sources that know how to handle plants properly.

Purchase, at one time, only those plants you can adequately care for at planting and then maintain for the first year. Plant trees where shade is needed to provide shade in a reasonable length of time. Framing a house is not the object.

GARDENING JOBS

More gardening jobs for November — Mulch all bulb plantings with dry leaves. Extremes in temperatures will not affect the bulbs if mulch is applied. Mulch must be removed during the last days of winter.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, are planning to add native plants to your landscape, here are a few hints or suggestions. Remember that nurserymen are skilled in growing and handling native plants. That you, Mrs. Gardener, are not skilled in digging native trees and shrubs from the woods. They require a large ball of soil with few injured roots. Most homeowners do not have the necessary equipment for moving native plants. When plants are taken by the homemaker from rich humus woodland soil to a city lot with poor soil, only a few can be expected to survive. Though the initial cost may be greater in purchasing nursery plants, you, Mrs. Homemaker, will be rewarded by having fast growing and healthy plants.

Save leaves for a compost pile, don't burn them. Humus will be very valuable for planting ornamentals.

Clean flower beds. Clear away all dead annuals and cut back perennials that have ceased blooming. Annuals that survive Louisiana winters are pansy, calendula, sweet pea, and snap dragon. Your local nursery will have most of these available for immediate planting.

NEW FOR HOMEMAKERS

Relief from the chore of melting chocolate for baking is offered as a new product. This new product comes in premelted, premeasured form, to be squeezed directly into bowl or batter, frosting or any other chocolate containing recipe. It is packed in individual nylon poly packets each containing one ounce, equals to one square of unsweetened chocolate or ¼ cup of unsweetened cocoa.

A novelty in flavored gelatin products is the new salad gelatin available in two flavors, celery and mixed vegetables. Either flavor may be used as a base for a wide variety of salads, with fresh or cooked vegetables, meats or sea food or any desired combination.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Japanese Crabapple

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

One of the very most desirable little flowering trees for yards and gardens is the Japanese flowering crabapple. Because of its small size its many color phases in the Spring when it blooms, its little yellow crabapples so loved by the birds and its small size, it ranks right at the top of the list of spring flowering trees.

During the past 10 or 15 years, our Southern nurseries have been offering us some of the purple-leaved crabapples like Hopa and Ely. Plantings in public parks and gardens everywhere have these strong-colored ornamental trees, and they are beautiful, but where they have been planted in groups, they need the lighter flowered crabapples to both tone them down and to contrast with them. Both Hopa and Ely have deep purplish pink flowers that need tones of lighter pink and good whites to make them blend with the other spring flowers.

DELIGHTFUL

The Japanese crabapple is one of those delightful small trees which the clever Japanese have developed for their small properties. It is so very old that its ancestry or history has long since been lost.

The Japanese love of subtle shades and contrasts in flowers is perhaps nowhere better illustrated than in the Japanese crab. When the buds appear in spring, they are bright red or deep pink. Then they open into soft pink flowers. As these age, they slowly turn to snow white and remain white until they fall a few days later. All these various stages make this crabapple one of the most entertaining plants in a landscape. Planted with other crabs, the various stages keep one looking almost from hour to hour at any group of flowering trees where Japanese crabs are planted.

SIZE CONTROL

Like most of the flowering crabapples, the Japanese variety may be held down to a quite small size if you so desire. When allowed to grow unpruned and untrained, all of the crabs will usually grow into a very untidy mass of old and new growths. After a few years, long new growths come out all along the main trunks and make a veritable maze of the trees.

Crabapples may be trimmed and pruned to almost any size you want for your garden or grounds. They may be guided into the shape of miniature apple trees — one of their most charming forms — by yearly pruning. You do not need to allow them to become bramble bushes. Of course, on large properties where pruning is out of the question, crabs will make stunning masses of colors whether pruned or not. They look most effective when planted, two or more together, on the edge of woods.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Ever had the experience of looking at an item of furniture (not your own, of course) that had the instant appearance of a home-made project — although you couldn't quite place your finger on what was wrong with it?

If so, the chances are there was very little, if anything, wrong with the construction. What made it look amateurish was the shoddy finish. It is curious how many home handymen will take great pains to construct something that is functional, pleasing to the eye and precisely made — only to spoil it all with an ill-conceived and careless finishing job.

The reason is probably psychological: having turned out an article that took considerable time and attention, the worker can hardly wait to complete the final steps. He slaps on the finishing material and then calls the other members of the family to look over his handiwork. Naturally, everyone thinks it's wonderful. And considering the experience, or lack of it, of the home carpenter, it probably is. But it could have been a lot better if even half as much time had been taken with the finish as with the construction.

The number one rule of good finishing, therefore, is to take your time. It has been our experience, for instance, that you can not make a mistake by allowing a little more time between coats than the manufacturer recommends on the label of his product, but that you certainly CAN make a mistake by not allowing enough time. In using clear finishes, sandings between coats usually are essential to a good finish. And many final coats can be improved with light sanding or rubbing with either pumice and-or rottenstone. (The techniques of sanding, rubbing and applying varnish, shellac, lacquer and other finishes are detailed in Andy Lang's latest booklet, "Wood Finishing In The Home." To get it, send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, NY., 11431.)

In some cases, the possibility of obtaining a perfect finish is eliminated before a brush is ever applied to the wood. This occurs when a surface is thoroughly sanded and either not cleaned sufficiently or cleaned and left in a dust-ridden atmosphere for a few hours before beginning to apply a finish.

Professional wood finishers often use what is called a "tack rag" on the wood just before they start varnishing. Saturate a clean cloth with turpentine and wring it partially dry. Sprinkle it with varnish and wring it out again. Wipe the wood with this cloth and the surface will pick up grit particles that cling to the wood when it has been merely wiped with a dry cloth.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

The lights are on, the flats are down, and paintbrushes are out, now that rehearsals for "Sunday in New York" are in progress at Strauss Playhouse.

Lines and action are still in the slow process of blocking, but the sophisticated dialogue is already bringing quick laughter from the actors and those watching from out front. One particularly clever line, used in an attempt to disuade an over-ardent suitor, brought appreciative chuckles from everyone in the theater, and this comment from Jan Evans, "I surely hope the audience thinks this play is as funny as we do!"

CAST LISTED

The cast for "Sunday in New York" is complete now. Executive Director Lonny Fraze reports it as follows: Chris West will play the part of "Mike", Jan Evans in the role of "Eileen", Arthur Griffith as "Russ", Willoughby Thomas as "Adam," Bill Wells as The Man, and Judy Evans as The Woman.

PERFORMANCES

Performance dates for this second Little Theater play of the season will be the evenings of Dec. 4, 5, 10, 11, 12, and 13. There will be a matinee on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 6, but no performance that night.

Anyone who is interested in working backstage on props, as dressers, or in the play should get in touch with Lonny soon. He is at the theater every week day afternoon and night. Come by or phone the theater at 323-1235.

Our technical director, Chris West, heard several good speakers last weekend when he attended the Southwest Theater Conferference in Fayetteville, Ark. Howard Bay, president of the New York Scenic Designers Union, spoke on new developments in general theater design. Abe Fedder, who is in charge of lighting the new mall at the Kennedy Airport in New York, showed how many new ideas in theater lighting came from commercial businesses other than the theater. The decentralization of the theater from New York to other towns was the topic of Harold Clurman. He said that every college theater and every Little Theater has been challenged, because of this decentralization, to presenting what their audiences were educated to want, and educating them towards better theater.

TWO PLAYS

Two plays, Strindberg's "Ghost Sonata," and Goldini's "Servant of Two Masters," were also on the three-day program.

Marillyn and Jack Taylor, on a business trip to Cleveland last week, saw "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" in Chicago. Marillyn said the cast of this show which was such a hit on Broadway was all familiar, but especially the two veteran actors, Edward Everett Horton and Erik Rhodes. (A note to our very youngest readers — these two fine actors played a seemingly endless series of "butler" roles in the movies a few years back.)

Verdi's 'Otello' In Shreveport

Dimiter Usunov and Katja Georgiev, a husband and wife team of Bulgaria, will star in the Shreveport Civic Opera Association's mounting of Verdi's "Otello" in the Municipal Auditorium in Shreveport, November 17.

Tenor Usunov will sing the title role in the opera and his wife, Miss Georgiev, a soprano, will sing Desdemona. Rapidly becoming one of the most well-known interpreters of the Verdi Moore, Usunov first came to international attention during the summer of 1963 when he sang the part at the Vienna State Opera with Herbert Von Karajan conducting. Since then he has done Otello at the Metropolitan Opera, Covent Garden, LaScala, the Lyric Opera of Chicago and most recently, with Tito Gobbi and Francis Yeend in San Antonio.

OTHER APPEARANCES

He has also sung with the Grand Opera in Paris and with the the Bolshoi Opera in Moscow.

The presentation of the opera, Shakespear's tragic play set to music, will commemorate the 400th anniversary of the English bard's birth and will feature Italian baritone Cesare Bardelli as Iago, the evil genius of the plot. Supporting roles will be sung by Stanley Kolk as Cassio; Perry Price, Roderigo; Malcolm Smith, Lodovico; Davis Bingham, Montano; and Norma Jean Locke, Emilia.

CONDUCTOR

Walter Herbert, general manager of the Houston Grand Opera Association, will conduct an orchestra of local musicians. Staging will be under the direction of Anthony L. Stivanello with sets by Peter Wolf.

5 School Buses Pile Up At Light; Injuries Minor

WALLER, Tex. (AP) — Five buses carrying 200 Brenham, Tex., students to a Shrine circus in Houston piled into each other at a traffic light here Saturday.

State patrolman B. J. Snow said 16 children were taken to the Waller County Hospital in Hempstead for a checkup but were released a short time later. All the students returned to Brenham on other buses.

Snow said one of the buses stopped at the traffic light on U.S. Highway 290. He said dense fog caused poor visibility and the second bus piled into the first one and each of the other buses collided with the one ahead of it.

from out of our past . . . SCENES of YESTERYEAR . . . in the Twin Cities

FIFTY-FIVE YEARS have passed by since this picture was snapped in the building at the corner of South Grand and Grammont streets. It shows the interior of the first floor occupied at that time (1909) by the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company. The bank was moved into its present location on DeSiard in 1923. Until several years ago, the area was occupied by the Motor Vehicle department, but has remained vacant since. Sam Smith, who sent in this photograph, said this four-story building constructed in 1906 was "Monroe's first skyscraper." Pictured in the Victorian setting are, from left, Theodore Marx, a bank director; L. W. Craig, bookkeeper; Uriah Millsaps, president; W. H. Beard, cashier; Sam Smith, runner; and Joe Grady, a customer. An interesting sidelight is that Smith, who was 18 when the picture was made, is the only living person who was associated with the bank at that time. If you have an interesting scene of yesteryear bring it or send it, along with all available information to this newspaper.

Meadville Men Free With Bond In Slaying Case

MEADVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Two Meadville men, one an admitted Klansman, gained Freedom Saturday under $5,000 bond each posted with Sheriff Wayne Hutto of Franklin County.

The two, James Ford Seale, 29, and Charles Marcus Edwards, 31, a Ku Klux Klansman, were arrested Friday on charges of murder in the slaying this summer of two Meadville Negroes.

Torsos of the victims were discovered in a murky Mississippi River offshoot during massive efforts to locate three missing civil rights workers from the Philadelphia, Miss., area.

The victims were Charles Eddie Moore and Henry Hezekiah Dee, 19.

The FBI announced the arrests of Seale and Edwards Friday. Details on how the arrests came were not revealed. Officers indicated Moore and Dee were beaten to death.

Seale, a truck driver, has three children. Edwards, father of four, works for a Natchez paper company. They were taken to Jackson and returned to the Franklin County jail.

The FBI said the investigation of the case was continuing.

At the time of his death, Moore was under suspension from Alcorn A&M for taking part in an April 21 campus civil rights protest. He was among 500 students who staged a walkout.

44th Meeting Of API Will Begin Monday

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — The American Petroleum Institute, with a streamlined program, begins its 44th meeting Monday to check year-end trends within the industry.

The new format for the three-day meeting and the first registration fee in history are expected to curtail attendance by representatives of all segments of the domestic industry.

The numerous technical sessions of prior years have been eliminated and the number of committee meetings has been reduced from about 150 to 25.

Emphasis will be placed this year on three general sessions at which speakers will discuss problems ranging from increased automobile travel to federal regulation of wellhead prices of natural gas.

About 5,500 oil operators, large and small, attended last year's session at which the institute's production, refining, marketing, and transportation divisions held separate meetings that sometimes conflicted with the general sessions.

Plans for streamlining the institute may be unveiled. A special committee has been taking a hard look at the institute's overall structure and objectives since May, 1963.

J. Ed. Warren, the institute's board chairman, indicated a year ago the study group would report late this year.

"I expect something tangible," said the president of the Cities Service Co.

Warren also told Texas independent oil operators at a Sept. 14 meeting in Fort Worth this self-examination and reevaluation is bound to increase the usefulness of the institute to the entire industry.

"The purpose of this study is to make the API more responsive to present-day problems," he said.

Frank N. Ikard, the institute's president from New York City, is to submit his annual report at Monday's general session.

A year ago, Ikard, a former Texas Congressman, told the institute there was a decided need for legislation to eliminate what he termed chaotic conditions resulting from Federal Power Commission to regulate wellhead prices of natural gas.

The institute, representing all segments of the industry, normally avoids such controversial issues as oil imports but Ikard and other officials have said repeatedly the past two years gas price decontrol legislation is inevitable.

Council Places Oil, Gas Data In Area Schools

Northeast Louisiana became the second area in Louisiana to place non-commercial educational material concerning the oil and gas industry in all junior-senior high schools.

This was announced Saturday by Joe W. Lister, Union Producing, who serves as District V school chairman for the Louisiana Petroleum Council. The Council sponsors the American Petroleum Institute materials in Louisiana.

Working with Lister in District V were:

J. H. Lowin, Continental; K. I. Neeley, Cities Service; B. W. Beasley, Gulf; John Brasher, Sun; Sam Harrington, Southwest Gas.

Edward Davis, Schlumberger; Bobby Leach, Union Producing; J. R. Aumiller, Texaco; Gordon Wiggins, California Company and Frank Eastman, Schlumberger.

The school program materials consist of teacher and student aids. They have been approved both by national and state educational leaders, Lister said.

A "victory" celebration dinner will be held the latter part of November honoring those that worked on this program.

Missouri Pacific Earnings Show Gain Over 1963

ST. LOUIS (Special) — Consolidated earnings of the Missouri Pacific System, which includes its majority-owned subsidiaries, topped those of 1963 in both the first nine months of this year and in the third quarter, Downing B. Jenks, president, announced.

Net income for the nine-month period increased $1,134,801 over the same months last year to a total of $18,603,509, he said, while earnings for the third quarter were up $614,438, to a total of $5,902,769 for the period, he said.

Jenks attributed the improved earnings to a modest rise in carloadings, and to a greater tonnage per car of higher rated traffic.

With elimination of income tax credits resulting from depreciation guidelines, or through generally accepted accounting procedures, net income for the nine-month period would be $11,386,221, compared with $10,395,165 in 1963, Jenks explained.

In the third quarter, on the same basis, earnings would be $3,380,555, compared with $3,016,364 in the 1963 quarter, he added.

Operating revenues in the first nine months were $298,691,410, an increase of $6,246,235, while operating expenses of $229,719,354 were $6,888,937 above those of 1963, Jenks pointed out. Significant, however, is the fact that such expenses include increased wage costs of almost $5,000,000 in the nine-month period, some of which were actual wage increases, but much of which were either accruals or non-recurring costs, he said.

Operating revenues for the third quarter were $97,881,653, an increase of $961,352 over the same period last year, while operating expenses of $76,767,760 increased $1,393,847 over those of 1963, he explained. Sharply higher wage costs also came in the third quarter of this year, he added.

R. U. Haslanger Elected To New United Gas Post

SHREVEPORT (Special) —R. U. Haslanger, assistant to the president of United Gas Corp., has been elected executive vice president by the company's board of directors, according to Ed Parkes, president.

Haslanger, who has been connected with United Gas since 1955, has been serving as assistant to the president of United Gas since 1963.

Haslanger joined the United Gas organization in 1955 as vice president and general manager of Escambia Chemical Corp., of which United Gas then owned important interests. He was elevated later that year to president and member of the board of directors of Escambia and served in that capacity until 1963, when he moved to Shreveport as assistant to the president after United Gas sold its interest in Escambia.

Mr. and Mrs. Haslanger and their two sons and two daughters reside at 3107 Country Club Dr. in Shreveport.

Cotton Futures Lose Ground In Week's Trading

Nervousness pervaded the trade Monday over the possibility of a change in administration and reevaluation of farm policies, but the Democratic victory Tuesday erased any lingering doubts in the minds of traders.

Trading the remainder of the week was comparatively quiet with no major news developments to give the market a definite trend up or down.

At the close of trading Friday soybeans were ⅞ to 3¼ cents a bushel higher, wheat ⅛ higher to ⅜ lower, corn 1¼ cents higher to ⅛ lower, oats unchanged to ⅝ higher and rye was ⅝ to ⅝ lower.

Nation Business Trend Continues On Upswing

Election week produced fresh signs of prosperity as the nation entered its 45th straight month of business upswing, the longest since the boom period of the Korean War.

General Motors Corp., the biggest industrial firm, reported record earnings. Steel production climbed to its highest level in 4½ years. The government said factory orders were up in September. Increased exports in the same month helped ease, if momentarily, the balance-of-payments problem.

There were continued indications, too, that major U.S. corporations would set profit records this year. Dividends to stockholders also appeared headed for a new annual high.

But labor problems continued to cloud the automobile industry, the nation's biggest single employer.

Ford Motor Co., the No. 2 producer, was faced with a strike over local issues by a number of bargaining units of the United Auto Workers Union. Affected were some of Ford's assembly plants, key stamping plants and parts plants.

Ford and the UAW reached a national contract agreement in September but local-issue talks at these plants have dragged on. Meanwhile, General Motors was near full production after a five-week strike.

GM reported record sales and earnings for the first nine months of this year of $1.36 billion, or $4.75 a share — up 25 per cent over the same period last year. Company directors also declared a $2-a-share quarterly dividend on common stock, $1.35 a share above the usual quarterly payment. This dividend will add a total of $569 million to the pre-Christmas flow of corporate dividends.

Steel mills, still pressed to meet bulging demand in that industry, poured 2,644,000 tons of steel during the week, almost one per cent more than in the previous week. This was the largest weekly output since March 1960, near the end of the boom period that followed a long strike in 1959.

The nation's nagging balance-of-trade problem eased slightly in September, the Department of Commerce said. Imports that month came to a seasonally adjusted total of $1.6 billion, about 2 per cent less than in August. September exports gained 9 per cent over August, amounting to a seasonally adjusted total of $2.27 billion.

Cautious Air Prevails On Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson's landslide election brought no immediate sharp move to the stock market last week.

Aside from an hour or so of enthusiasm Wednesday morning when the market first faced the election results, it was a cautious and irregular week.

A few more stocks fell than rose and the popular stock market averages were contradictory.

Wall Street seemed to be in a "where-do-we-go-from here?" mood. Many analysts commented that stocks had been discounting the success of President Johnson at the polls—even though there had been normal uncertainty just preceding the election.

The volume total was lower than it was the week before because stock and commodity markets were closed Tuesday for election day. Turnover was 18,411,050 shares compared with 23,154,970 the previous week.

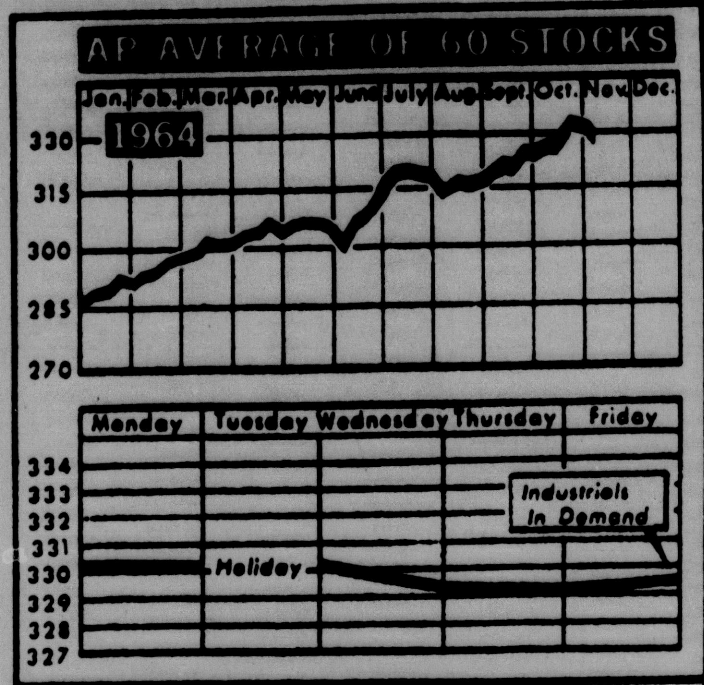
Trading proceeded at a cautious rate, below average for 1964 to date.

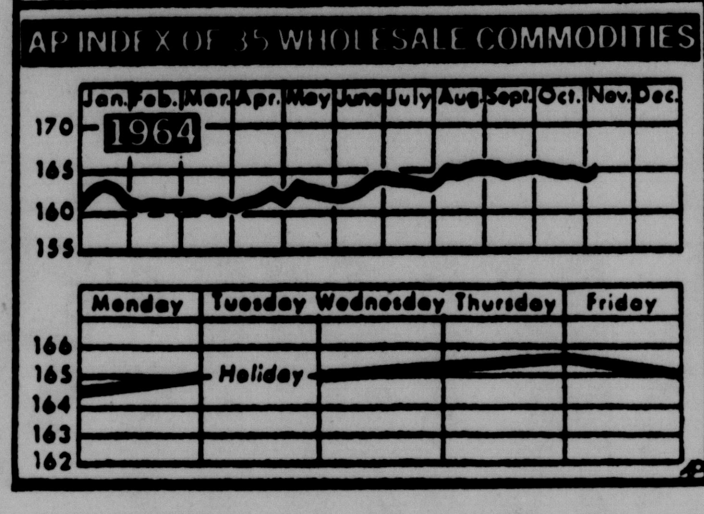
Late weakness in steels brought an irregular decline on Thursday. Post-election thinking was that Johnson, now elected to a full term, had let it be known only a week before that he was concerned about a possible rise in steel prices. U.S. Steel lost 1⅝ on the week.

Sentiment was considerably bolstered by General Motors' report of record profits and sales for the first nine months of 1964 and by GM's dividend declaration which put this year's payout ahead of 1963's. GM stock rose 1¾ on the week.

Bond prices edged upward last week, reflecting cautious optimism in the wake of President Johnson's election that government money policy will continue its present course.

On the New York Stock Exchange corporate bond volume dropped to a par value of $37.919 million, compared to $46.8 million the previous week. The election holiday accounted for the decline.





FOR THE SECOND straight week The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined, closing Friday at 329.5 from 330.2 a week earlier as indicated in the above chart. The commodity index advanced slightly to 165.0 from 164.6 in the preceding period. Livestock showed the largest increase. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Skelly Attempts Drill Stem Test At Wildcat Well

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Skelly Oil Company is reported to be attempting to run drill stem test at its closely watched Scott County wildcat the Miles No. 1 sec. 17-5n-7e, located near Pulaski. Operators are releasing no information. The depth is reported below 15,800 feet. The wildcat was abandoned in July 1963 at a depth of 11,200 feet and reopened to deepen to 16,000 feet to test the Smackover lime formation. Reports are that the venture has logged shows of undetermined commercial worth below 15,400 feet in the Smackover.

Two other important Smackover lime wildcat tests in Jasper and Smith counties are nearing contract depth with operators releasing no information on either well.

In Jasper County, Shell Oil Company is below 15,860 feet in its Brown No. 1, sec. 27-2n-10e, located a mile east of Bay Springs. Shows of undetermined commercial worth have been reported logged at 15,400 feet. The venture is scheduled to be drilled to 16,600 feet.

In northern Smith County, Pan American Petroleum Corp. is drilling below 16,200 feet and nearing contract depth of 16,350 feet in its Thomas No. 1, sec. 13-4n-7e, located near the town of Morton, with the venture also scheduled to be drilled deep enough to test the Smackover lime.

Oil, Gas Activity Heavy In District

Another week marked by heavy activity was noted in the Monroe Oil and Gas District.

Lingering favorable weather conditions prolonged field operations and caused an upswing in number of new locations comparable to last week.

Thirty-one new locations were listed in the weekly report prepared in the Monroe District office of the Louisiana State Department of Conservation.

Last week 34 new locations were charted, as compared to only 14 for the previous week.

Four of the new locations were in the Monroe Field of Ouachita Parish. Applications to drill the week ending Nov. 5 were made by J. B. Ferguson for Union Production Company No. E-2, Ohio-Monroe Corporation for McGuire No. 4, Public Petroleum Corporation for H. J. Lamson No. 2 and Joe G. Strahan for Rogers No. 1.

Catahoula and Concordia Parishes were out front in new locations, with nine each. LaSalle had five, while Rapides and Union had two each.

A total of 93 locations were reported. Forty-three were charted as active, 60 inactive, 12 completed and 17 were abandoned. None were recompleted.

THREE MONROE UNITS

Area Reservists Practice To Strengthen Readiness

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Writer

Week - end warriors. Part - time soldiers. Desk Commandos.

These are some of the terms jokingly applied to military reservists. But the 385 men serving in the three Monroe Reserve units are devoting their time and efforts for your benefit and safety. While keeping the peace, they are preparing for emergencies.

The Army Reserve unit is the 2nd Battalion of the 95th Regiment with two detachments. It is composed of 177 enlisted men and 34 officers. This is a common specialist training type organization, preparing men to function in various categories if and when called to active duty.

Unit advisers for the Army Reserves are M-Sgt. Robert G. Davis and M-Sgt. Robert W. Weaver, both of Monroe, and the Battalion Commander is Lt. Col. Aubrey B. Parham of Mangham. M-Sgt. Webber Laird serves as the Battalion Sergeant Major.

The eight unit commanders are Headquarters Company — 1st Lt. John A. DuPriest, Company F — Capt. Willard H. Augspurger, Company G — Capt. Johnny M. Wilson, Company H — Capt. Archie D. Parker, Jr., Company I — Capt. Herschel A. Gentry, Company K — Capt. Harold T. Scott, Detachment 3 (Drivers) — Capt. John C. Ensminger, and Detachment 4 (Mechanics) — Capt. James T. Davis. All of these unit commanders are from Monroe.

Members of the local Army Reserves meet at Selman Field at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays or Fridays of each week and some Sundays, working out to 48 drills per year.

Sgt. Laird explained the mission of the Army Reserves in Monroe, "In case of emergency and this organization were ordered to active duty, enlisted men would undergo basic training then come to the 2nd Bn. of the 95th Regiment for specialized training in eight categories — clerk, supply, cooks, radio, wire, mechanics and drivers."

He said they would then be reassigned to units needing men with their qualifications.

Eighty - seven officers and airmen of the 9425th Air Reserve Recovery Squadron participate in reserve training one week - end each month, usually the second week - end. The 69 airmen and 18 officers are authorized 24 pay drills per year, all taken at Selman.

Tech. Sgt. Norman G. Taylor, unit adviser, said the primary mission of the reserve squadron is to keep up-to - date on handling damaged aircraft in the event they are called to active duty.

"We would operate as an alternate base to a regular air force base in the event of war," he said.

Sgt. Taylor said that alert exercises are held about once each quarter to keep the airmen and officers on their toes. He said the last alert, held about two months ago, assimilated a case where the President of the United States and his wife were aboard an aircraft forced to land at Selman Field here. There was a fire in the cabin and some of the crew members were injured. It was the duty of the practicing reservists to extinguish the fire and see that the injured were taken care of.

Naval counterpart of the Army and Air Force team is the U. S. Naval Reserve Surface Division 8 - 19 Small.

There are 80 enlisted men, four Naval officers and three Coast Guard officers comprising the unit, which meets from 7 to 10 p.m. each Monday at the facility at Selman Field.

Heading the Naval Reserves of Monroe is Lt. Commander B. J. Hammock, Senior Chief Radioman L. E. Patrick is the Naval unit adviser.

Patrick said the aim of the Navy program is, again, preparedness.

The mission of the surface program is to provide trained officers and enlisted personnel to be available for immediate active duty to increase the manning level of a float unit of active fleet to full complement and to provide for the specific mobilization needs of other programs for personnel not trained therein.

Besides the unit training assemblies during the week or on week - ends, member of Monroe's trio of military reservists participate in summer training programs, usually of two - weeks or 15 days duration.

Life Behind 'Cocoa Curtain Is Becoming More Difficult

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — Life behind the "cocoa curtain" is becoming increasingly difficult as government controls tighten and the economy falters.

All university students, most new Ghanaian ambassadors and many senior civil servants must undergo indoctrination at the Kwame Nkrumah Ideological Institute.

The announcement of next year's budget, scheduled in October, was postponed until January. President Nkrumah's government is trying to tap fresh revenue and calculate just how rugged to make an expected austerity program.

The biggerest anti-American campaign to date has been launched.

Nkrumah has found a new description of America to replace "neocolonialist." The United States now is "fascist imperialist" in his terminology.

"The U.S. can't do a single thing to improve relations with this country as long as Ghana holds its present view that America is the big villain of modern history," said one Western diplomat.

"Even massive American aid is regarded as a scheme to make profits at Ghana's expense or subvert the people."

Ghana's proudest public works project, the Volta River Dam and its affiliated alumina smelter, is being financed largely by more than $150 million underwritten by the U.S. government.

While life here may be uncomfortable for Westerners, it is becoming increasingly harsh for Ghana's seven million people.

All members of the 10,500 man Ghanaian army have become card-carrying members of the ruling Convention People's party. Dues are deducted from pay.

Nkrumah fired Chief Justice Sir Arku Korsah earlier this year when the judge acquitted five high government officials charged with treason. These officials are now on trial again behind closed doors. Nkrumah hand-picked the judge this time and 12 young students were selected from the Kwame Nkrumah Ideological Institute to act as jury.

The ideological institute at Winneba is charged with spreading the precepts of "Nkrumahism". More than half of its staff is from Communist bloc countries.

"Nkrumahism" essentially is Ghana's version of socialism. The 55-year-old president regards himself as the main torch-bearer of socialism in this continent.

Nkrumah has lately been appearing in public more often than in the months following an attempt to assassinate him in January. But his announced schedule is usually changed to foil would-be plotters. He wears a bulletproof vest under his Chinese military style jacket.

Ghana's strained relations with some of its African neighbors reportedly worry the president. Sources say he regards the Organization of African Unity heads of state meeting scheduled for Accra next September as a great opportunity to push such pet projects as continental government and an all-African military command.

Ghana become independent of Britain in 1957 with more national promise than most other African countries. Its seven million people had the highest literacy rate — about 25 per cent — in black Africa, a well developed civil service and a $700-million nest egg left by the British.

No pay raises have been permitted for three years and government figures show the cost of living has risen 25 per cent in 1964.

Basic commodities are in short supply. Locally processed foods and such items as pickles from Yugoslavia, meat from Poland and canned chicken from Communist China have helped ease food shortages. Sugar was rationed briefly this year.

Replacement parts for worn machinery originally built in Western nations are not available from East bloc countries which the government insists receive import preference.

The country accumulated a heavy load of credit in its rush to modernize and industrialize. The debt is becoming burdensome despite good prices Ghana received this year for cocoa, her basic export.

Executives of large trading corporations said in July that the government planned to nationalize them this year. Now they report that the regime has dropped immediate plans for nationalization and has asked them to help finance imports.

Britain has around $1 billion invested in its former colony and hopes to protect its interests.

"The situation is not entirely black, you know," said an English official.

"Ghana's exports of cocoa, timber, manganese, gold and bauxite bring good prices on world markets. There must certainly be a way to sort out the present difficulty."

Communist bloc aid is mostly in the form of long-term credit or barter agreements. Officials here agree that Ghana's crying need is for cash — direct budget support with hard currency.

EAST ZONE

Churches Fare Poorly In Reich

By PRESTON GROVER

EISENHUTTENSTADT, East Germany (AP) — The 35-year-old city councilman for supplies, Sigfried Woellner, pointed proudly over the city he had helped build — new, uniform, clean, functional, without a single feature rising above the apartment house roofs.

He had proudly shown me new kindergartens and nurseries to care for the children so their mothers could work, schools, shopping centers, central laundries and dry cleaning plants.

From the hill on which we stood, the city stretched out across a sandy plain to the walls which enclosed the new iron smelting plant with its six furnaces. Woellner and other Communists had built the new city of Eisenhuttenstadt according to plan. Already 27,000 people live in it, all in tight little self-sustaining units almost as uniform as matches.

The town was built to house workers in the city, which itself was built to provide steel for East Germany. The name means "iron mine city" although there isn't a mine anywhere near. The iron ore comes from the Soviet Union, the coal from Poland, from territory once ruled by Germany.

QUESTION ON CHURCHES

"Are there any churches in the city?" I asked, looking around for the familiar steeples which distinguish all the older German cities.

"Yes," replied Woellner. "There are a Catholic church and a Lutheran church." He sensed what I was looking for and added: "They don't have steeples."

"I should like to see one of the churches," I said.

"They are just provisional buildings," he commented without enthusiasm, but when I insisted, we drove out to the Lutheran Evangelical church.

It sat on the outer limits of the city, a one-story white-washed structure looking strangely like a machine shed. Over the door at one end, just under the eaves, was a wooden cross.

A rather handsome, middle-aged man came out of a smaller shed-like house nearby, his home. It was Heinz Brauer, the minister, who invited us into the church. It was strictly economy size, but the walls were lined pleasantly with walnut-colored wood and the benches for about 150 worshipers were solid and well cut. The altar was plain.

"The building is just provisional," said the minister, echoing Woellner. But when I asked, he said it had been built 10 years ago when the city was laid out.

INFLUENCE

"The influence of the Socialist regime in the city is almost overwhelming," he said, yet he insisted the church had a place in the city's affairs. Woellner made no comment.

About 10 men and women come to church regularly, mostly women, and about 50 children come for religious instruction. Brauer said that was a small following from a city of 27,000 and a nearly adjoining old city of Fuerstenberg, with 9,000.

The pastor commented somewhat ruefully that while he was confirming four boys into the church, the Young Socialist League was initiating 400 boys and girls in their fine quarters.

Nevertheless, he said, a vital decision is in the making, and he professed solid optimism. The church is asking to put up a first-class building in the city itself. That decision won't be made by the city officials and himself, he said, because it has great symbolic importance for the whole church position in East Germany.

"Much thinking has to be done on both sides to determine the place of the church in a Socialist state," he continued. He felt it had a place and he believed a recent conference between Walter Ulbricht, party and government leader, and the Lutheran bishop for East Germany, Moritz Mitzenheim, had great significance.

OUTLOOK

Brauer paused a moment, then added that he felt the church would continue its mission whether or not the Communist state found a place for it.

"There is no question of my being discouraged. I am optimistic. The church was established on earth with a mission to perform."

In East Germany, he said, the church was no longer rich. Its lands and properties had been seized.

"But Christ started the church in poverty, and it can continue that way if need be."

The town of Fuerstenberg once had a fine church but it was wrecked during the war. The government has patched it up to prevent further deterioration, but it is still out of use. People who want to go to church go to Brauer's.

A lot of East German churches damaged in the war are still out of use. I visited half a dozen important ones. They had been repaired enough to protect them, but not enough to permit them to go into service.

St. Hester's Roman Catholic church in East Berlin, burned out during the war, has been restored. The inside has been rebuilt in such a modernistic style that at first I couldn't find the altar. It is below floor level in a pit where the performance of the Mass and other services seems almost hidden from those attending.

And the big Dom Lutheran Cathedral in East Berlin, badly damaged in the war, remains out of service.

DR. JAMES L. SULLIVAN

Hastings, former pastor of the First Baptist Church, and the Rev. Chester S. Cadwallader Jr., former pastor of the College Place Church. MY ANSWER

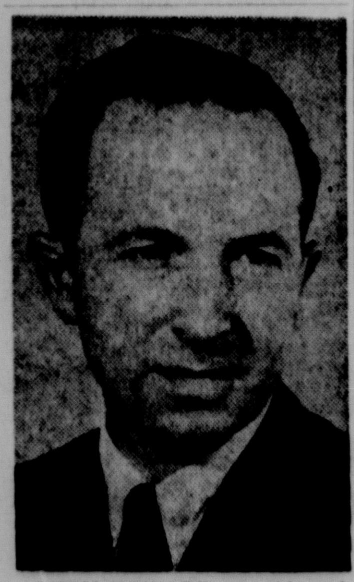
By BILLY GRAHAM

Question: Does Christ make any unreasonable demands for discipleship?
A. L.

ANSWER: To do one's duty is good—but to go beyond the call of duty is real discipleship. Christ doesn't judge us by how much we give, but by how much we have left. He doesn't judge us by how much we do, but also by what we leave undone. He praised the widow who gave her 'mite', because she gave "all that she had.' So the New Testament ideal is complete consecration; complete devotion, and complete surrender to God. No, Christ doesn't demand anything unreasonable! "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me." We don't have to do this, and most will turn back. But if we would follow Him, we must pay the price of discipleship.

I can almost hear you say: "But "Jesus paid it all', didn't He?" Yes, but the next line of that goes:"All to Him I owe." We are to say with Paul: "I live by the faith of the Son of God who loved me and gave himself for me." It is plain gratitude when we are willing to live for Him who died for us.



ALTON HOWARD, an elder of the White's Ferry Road Church of Christ, West Monroe, will speak in the chapel of Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn., Tuesday. He will discuss the dedication of Christian men in preaching the gospel. A discussion of the use of radio world-wide in preaching the gospel also will be held. Howard, a Twin Cities businessman, has been working with the church's world radio program.

WHERE IT SHOULD START

Bible's Answer On Repentence

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Have America's moral standards gone to pot?

Sweeping judgments on a nation's morals are always subject to two hazards. First, they are unfair to individuals who live by their own ethical codes, regardless of what others are doing. Second, people do not agree what constitutes immoral conduct.

To some, immorality primarily means sexual misbehavior. Others have a broader definition, which includes lying, cheating or theft. Still others believe the most immoral thing you can do is to hate, scorn or mistreat a fellow human being.

Whatever criterion you choose to apply, you can adduce evidence that immorality is currently widespread in American society.

Those who are primarily concerned about licentiousness can point to such things as the sharp increase in veneral disease rates among teen-agers; the steady rise in illegitimate births; the high divorce rate; and the testimony of pastors, high school principals and college deans about the casual attitude of many young people toward premarital sex relations.

STIMULANTS

To Prof. Harvey Cox, a distinguished moral theologian, the root of the problem is that young people today are growing up in a "sex-saturated society" in which they are "constantly bombarded through clothing styles, entertainment, advertising and courtship mores with perhaps the most skillfully contrived array of erotic stimulants ever amassed."

In other words, there's no point in wringing your hands over sexual immorality unless you're prepared to do something about the aphrodisiacal culture—the sexy books, dirty movies, titillating television shows and leg-art advertising—which promotes it.

But that won't be easy to do, Prof. Cox says. There is money to be made—big money—in the exploitation of sex. And billion-dollar industries can be remarkably insensitive to outcries about what they're doing to moral standards.

Those to whom "'immoral" is a synonym for "dishonest" also can find plenty to brood about in contemporary American life. The well attested prevalence of petty fraud in income tax returns, the well-nigh universal custom of filching office supplies for personal use at home, the large percentage of students who readily acknowledge (on anonymous questionnaires) that they cheat on examinations whenever possible: All point to a general laxity in observance of the Commandments against lying and stealing.

NO LONGER SHOCKED

Most disturbing, perhaps, is the evidence that many people no longer are horrified or outraged when they learn that a Billie Sol Estes has parlayed non-existent fertilizer tanks into a business empire, or that a Bobby Baker has amassed a "fortune" while serving in a modest-salary job as Senate secretary. There seem to be millions of Americans who simply take for granted that people will get away with all they can—and who respond to "scandals" with a collective shrug.

And what of those who feel that mistreating your fellow man is the ultimate immorality? They can hardly contemplate the American scene with optimism. They see evidence of continuing racial injustice and hatred—by no means confined to one section of the country. They also see a widespread callousness toward human suffering which manifests itself in many different ways—from senseless crimes of violence at one extreme to a polite indifference toward the plight of the poor at the other.

What can be done to raise moral standards? The question is an old one—as old as the Bible. The Bible's answer is that repentance, like charity, begins at home.

Jesus put it quite succinctly: "Why do you look at the speck of sawdust in your brother's eye, with never a thought for the great plank in your own? You hypocrite! First take the plank out of your own eye, and then you will see early to take the speck out of your brother's."

LOUISIANA CONVENTION

Baptists Slate Annual Meeting

Hundreds of Baptists in Northeast Louisiana are planning to be in New Orleans, Tuesday through Thursday for the annual meeting of the Louisiana Baptist Convention, scheduled this year in the Roland Q. Leavell Chapel at the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

OPENING SESSION

The opening session Tuesday night will be highlighted by the annual sermon to be given by the Rev. H. T. Sullivan of Oakdale.

The Rev. Glenn Pippens, pastor of the North Monroe Baptist Church, will open the Wednesday morning session with scripture reading and prayer. The afternoon session Wednesday will be opened in the same manner by the Rev. Jon Meek, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church in Gilbert.

HOME REPORT

The Louisiana Baptist Children's Home report will be presented by Wade B. East, superintendent of the Monroe child care agency, during the Thursday morning session which will be highlighted with a sermon bv Dr. W. A. Criswell of Dallas, Texas.

STEEL BIRDS' NEST

Workmen at the Allentown City Hall project discovered a vacated birds' nest — built entirely of wire. The birds had carefully carried, piece by piece, lengths of steel wire discarded by construction crews and built their own "steel-framed house."

The 100 - year - old steel industry, constantly exploring new markets as it enters its Century Two, hopes people will follow the birds and build durable homes of steel.

BEHIND CURTAIN

BERLIN, East Germany (AP) — Enrollment of Protestant theology students in East German universities has increased to 592, up 38 from the previous year, according to a Satistical Year Book issued by the East German government. In 1961, there were only 494 Protestant theology students in the Communist - ruled area.

West Monroe First Church of the Nazarene, North 4th and Stella streets.

FIRST CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

Charter Group Saw Need For West Monroe Church

The West Monroe First Church of the Nazarene, which was organized February 24, 1946, is the result of the efforts of a far sighted group of workers who envisioned the need for a church of this denomination there.

The original group consisted of 20 members. The incorporation papers and the charter were issued one year later, February 27, 1947. The group then immediately started plans for a church building.

The building, with its beautiful sanctuary and spacious educational facilities, now stands at the corner of North 4th and Stella streets. It was completed one year after the charter was issued and was dedicated in February, 1948.

DENOMINATION STARTED

The Church of the Nazarene, as a denomination, was founded in Pilot Point, Texas, October 8, 1908. The denomination was a result of the uniting of various groups from different parts of the nation. Headquarters for the church is in Kansas City, Missouri. The six presiding general superintendents also have offices there. Also located in Kansas City, officials said, is the Nazarene Publishing House, one of the largest distributors of religious literature in the world. In the 56 years since its organization, the Nazarene Church has taken its place among the leading protestant denominations of the Christian world. It leads all other denominations in per capita giving.

The pastor of the West Monroe church, the Rev. Everette A. Johnson, accepted the call in January, 1962. Rev. Johnson was born in Richland Parish and is married to the former Beverly Millis of Monroe. They have two children, Mrs. Ashely Pridgen and Noel Keith.

EDUCATION

Rev. Johnson received his earlier education in the schools of Richland Parish and later attended Northeast Louisiana State College here, and Trevecca Nazarene College in Nashville. He is a veteran of World War II, having served in submarine duty in various parts of the world. He has served as pastor of five churches in Louisiana and was an evangelist for three years prior to accepting the call to West Monroe.

The West Monroe church is governed by a church board which is made up of the trustees, the stewards, and other officers. They are E. Harold Crawley, Sunday School superintendent; Mrs. Dorothy Cromartie, Missionary president; Mrs. Doris Miller, president of the Young Peoples Society; E. H. Crawley, H. L. Godwin, and H. B. Roark, trustees; O. M. Chapman, V. S. Taylor, Dr. Dale Cronk, H. H. Roark, and Ted Walker, stewards. The church treasurer is Mrs. Dale Cronk, and H. B. Roark is secretary to the board. CHURCH FORUMS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A religious problem and a possible solution to it are seen by Dr. Henry Winthrop, social science professor at the University of South Florida.

In the Churchman magazine, he declares that "religion is becoming increasingly alienated from the significant social issues of our time," and proposes that church leaders in every city form interdenominational councils to conduct forums on live controversial issues.

These forums, employing educational film as well as discussion, would be devoted to social and political education of church members.

NEW YOUTH LEADER

Gospel Concert Is Scheduled In West Monroe

A gospel concert featuring the Statesmen Quartet and the Blackwood Brothers, will be presented 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium of West Monroe High School under sponsorship of the Montgomery Street Church of God.

Funds received by the church from the concert will be used for church work.

THE SATISFYING CHRIST

But what things were gain unto me, those I counted loss for Christ.

Phillipians 3: 7-8: But what things were gain to me, those I counted less for Christ. Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but refuse, that I may know Christ.

This modern world is seeking after peace and satisfaction. Both are closely related. To be dissatisfied, is to be lacking in peace; at least, in a measure. There are many things, today, that will bring fleeting satisfaction. There is a certain amount of satisfaction in acquiring financial independence. However, Jesus said, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." So, this will not bring complete satisfaction.

There is a certain amount of satisfaction in a job well done, but all things pass, and there are so many jobs to do.

MANY BEYOND GRASP

Acquired knowledge brings satisfaction, but again, there is such a vast amount to know. So many mysteries that we will never live long enough or have knowledge enough to discover. Time is so fleeting, Eternity so long, space so infinite, that many things are beyond our grasp.

Satisfaction is possible. Christ is the satisfying portion. A Genuine experience in Him will bring soul satisfaction. Christ alone, is the true satisfaction.

I. The arguing intellect — There is an historical Jesus and He will stand the probing intellect. He really lived just as George Washington and Abraham Lincoln lived.

Then, too, there is a Christ of God. He is all that the New Testament and fundamental Christian faith claims Him to be; very God, very man, born of a virgin, the perfect example, the perfect atonement. He conquered the cross, defeated death, ascended up to take possession of the Throne of Intercession. He lives, reigns, rules in bodily and tangible presence today upon the throne of the universe and His presence is exerted and felt throughout all creation. These truths have been attested by enough authentic witnesses to satisfy any court.

PERSONAL JESUS CHRIST

There is a personal Jesus Christ. To bring complete satisfaction, you must allow Him to completely invade your life. Total invasion. Unconditional surrender on your part. Then, He will give satisfaction of the deepest kind. The intellect may say that none of this is true within the realm of his scientific knowledge. No man knows everything. Could it be that He exists outside the realm of your knowledge? He does exist. He satisfies completely any fair, impartial, investigative, intellect. However, we do not discover the salvation that is provided in Christ by trying to reason it all out. Though it is reasonable, it comes only through faith in Christ.

II. The accusing conscience — Man cannot break God's laws and go scot-free. For one thing, his conscience will smite him. The inevitable result of sinning is an accusing conscience. The sinner stands condemned before the bar of his own conscience.

An accusing conscience and agonizing remorse, will drive a person to find help of some sort. Many times it is the wrong kind of help. It solves nothing but rather intensifies the situation.

Much of man's mental and emotional need today is because of an accusing conscience, which is a result of breaking God's laws. In Christ, we have a balm for the conscience. Repentance, restitution and faith in the shed blood of Jesus Christ to atone for us can bring satisfaction to the accusing conscience.

WILL BRING HELP

The continued faith in Him and His merit will bring help when the "enemy of souls" accuses us. He is and accuser of the brethern. Also, we sometimes, bemean ourselves because we fall short or fail be cause of human weakness of infirmity. We are to remember that "we have this treasure in earthern vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God and not of us." II Corinthians 4:7. Keep faith in Christ, He satisfies.

III. The aching heart — There are many things to cause the heart of the Christian to ache. Sin abounding, a wayward loved one, disease, death, sorrow for others in their plight. The person who loves the Lord has long since learned to take these things to Christ. I think we need to learn it anew. He alone brings abiding peace, joy, and satisfaction.

The person who has never known the Lord Jesus, or the one who has gone back on Him will also, have an Aching Heart. A friend of mine often jokingly says, "Lots of grief, lots of sorrow." This is no joke, however, with the world as it is today.

How can anyone see the suffering, injustice, inequality, the misery, the woe of earth's people, "these for whom Christ died," and not have an aching heart. Of course, there is much we cannot do, but there is much we can do. The person who has learned to take it all to Christ and to seek help from Him has found that He satisfies the Arguing Intellect, the Accusing Conscience and the Aching Heart.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who buy honey in jars and find it turning to sugar, I suggest that they put the jar in a warm oven with the lid off, and let it heat slowly. The crystallization will disappear.

Joseph

Thanks, Joseph. I had never tried putting the jar in the oven at a low temperature. I always had put it in a pan of water, brought the water to a boil, shut off the fire and let it set. This usually did the trick for me, but then I was using an extra pan for nothing, eh?

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
I just hate to struggle with those new screw caps on jars.

I said to my husband, "How do elderly women, living alone, manage these tight new covers?" While I was struggling to open one, he went to the garage and brought me a square of sandpaper and twisted the cap right off.

Nothing to it! Now I keep this piece of sandpaper in the cupboard and use it on all screw-type jar tops.

A. A. F.

[redacted]

DEAR .HELOISE:
You have so many fine suggestions and helpful hints . . . would you happen to know how a fellow can keep one of those no-iron shirttails from sliding out?

Desperate

Does anyone have an answer for this desperate male? If so, write to me care of this paper. We sure would love to know the answer.

Five men (all bachelors) have asked this question recently.

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
For housewives who are annoyed by wax in their refrigerators caused by milk cartons . . . I put each waxed carton of milk inside a small plastic bag. This is the perfect answer. Also, if the milk leaks the tiny plastic bag catches the drippings.

Mrs. N. Bester

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
My most frustrating problem has been what to do with various rolls of wax paper, foil, plastic wrap, etc . . .

Recently I found that I could insert six rolls, in their cutter boxes, in a king-sized soft-drink carton by standing the boxes on end.

This way they can be stored under the sink, in the pantry, or wherever you have room.

Gwynne Hurst

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
I coil my rubber bath mat (the two ends towards the center) and stand it on end in my bathtub to let it drain, instead of hanging it over the side of the tub.

If the bath mat will not stand alone, try closing it with a colored plastic clothespin to match your decor.

Louise Hocking

* * *

Now, who would have thought of that besides Louise? This makes for perfect drying. And I found that if you coil the mat near the drain of your bathtub, all the moisture immediately goes down the drain . . .

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
Since it is very hard to hold narrow rickrack in place with pins while stitching it on a garment, I tried using cellophane tape.

Marilyn Black

SLACK CLOTHESLINES

DEAR HELOISE:
If you fasten a length of chain to the end of your clothesline, it is easier to tighten the line when it becomes slack.

All that is necessary is to place the next link of the chain over the hook!

Mrs. D. H. M.

DEAR HELOISE:
My little grandson loves to play ball. Inevitably the ball rolls under the furniture, thus making it a game of "look for the ball," instead of "catch the ball."

He picked up a gum eraser from the desk and said, "Nana, let's play ball." We found that the gum eraser is easy to handle and to throw. It bounces, and above all, it will not roll.

So when you want to play ball with a little fellow in the house, just get a gum eraser, and your problems will be solved.

Grandmother

DEAR HELOISE:
My husband likes ties that are ready-knotted with a plastic hook in back of the knot.

To keep these ties straight and neat, I place the plastic hooks over the bottom of a coat hanger (the hanger will accommodate a half-dozen ties) and then hang it in the closet alongside his suits.

Works fine! The ties never wrinkle because they hang straight down.

Mrs. L. D. Kinney

PINK POTATOES

DEAR HELOISE:
When my children were small and did not eat well. I would use fruit coloring in foods like oatmeal, mashed potatoes, rice, etc.

This may sound awful to adults, but children just love it. The novelty of one food on the plate being colored would make them eat everything else served on the plate.

Jennie Guzzetta

DEAR HELOISE:
When I have my hair all set in rollers and then remember I have to put on a pullover sweater, I put my plastic shower cap on over the rollers, and the sweater goes on nicely!

This is a lot simpler than removing all those rollers and doing them up again.

Mrs. J. H. Comean
